HOOVER DENIES BASIS OF TAX RAISE EXISTS; MELLON BACKS VIEW

"No Ground Now," Says President, for Talk of Deficit.

BELIEVES LOWER LEVY WILL BE CONTINUED

Treasury Head Called to White House; Hopeful Words Result.

EXECUTIVE POINTS OPTIMISTIC FACTORS

tReasons Given for Discard of Gloomy Data Sent Out Day Before.

President Hoover sees "no ground now for the predictions in the press that a deficit was impending which would prevent the continuation of tax reductions established last year."

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon declares that "stories appearing in the Friday morning papers relating to the revenue prospects for the current fiscal year overemphasize the unfavorable factors," and that it is "altogether too early to make any definite statements."

With these two announcements, prepared and issued yesterday after Mr. Hoover had summoned Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills to the White House, the administration hastened to put a far brighter face on the fiscal outlook than the Treasury had officially, if anonymously, given it only the day before.

Overnight, administration political leaders took alarm at the Treasury's pessimistic prophecies, implying higher taxes next year, and Mr. Hoover lost no time in having Mr. Mellon sound a more cheerful note and in following it with one from the White House. Talk of a serious rift between Mr. Hoover and his Secretary of the Treasury went the rounds yesterday when it first developed that the White House was displeased and dismayed by the Treasury emanations of gloomy foreboding.

Mr. Hoover's Statement.

With a tone of some asperity Mr. Hoover read the following statement at his press conference yesterday afternoon:

"I have reviewed the present fiscal situation with Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills, and I can state that there is no ground now for the prediction in the press this morning that a deficit was impending which would prevent the continuation of tax reductions established last year.

"The indications of decreasing revenue and increasing expenses during the past six weeks upon which calculations were very properly based do not take several factors into account.

"Imports and, consequently, customs receipts have been temporarily reduced because of advanced imports to anticipate the new tariff law. We have been expanding construction expenditures to give the maximum employment in the first nine months of this fiscal year.

"The calculations as to possible deficits take no account of the receipts from payments on foreign debts, nor the revision of expenditures downward from the estimates of the first of last July, which were then placed at $4,203,000,000 (including the postal deficit).

Big Cut Indicated.

"I have not as yet received the reports from all of the departments of the result of their drive for economies, but from results already obtained in the departments that have reported, we have an indicated reduction of about $75,000,000 in expenditures.

"In such reductions it must be borne in mind that of the total estimated governmental expenditures, approximately $2,220,000,000 are for such fixed charges as interest and redemption of the public debt, payment of pensions, &c.

"No part of it can be reduced by administrative action. The field of economy is therefore limited to about $2,000,000,000, of which something like $400,000,000 are commitments for construction work of one kind or another which were increased and must be maintained in order to maintain employment."

Just previously Mr. Mellon had issued the following recantation of the unfavorable prospect foreseen the day before by the Treasury's high officialdom:

"The story appearing in the morning papers relating to the revenue prospects for the current fiscal year overemphasize the unfavorable action.

Too Early to Predict.

"It is altogether too early to make any definite statements. The final estimates need not be prepared until just prior to the meeting of Congress in December, at which time the department will be in a much better

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Few people not intimately connected with the clergy realize the additional burdens which are imposed upon that devoted profession by business depression. Being the natural repository for the troubles of the unfortunate, which strain their strength and resources for relief in ordinary times, any increase of such demands puts on them a very disproportionate share of the general distress. Yet they meet it effectively and cheerfully with little regard for the needs of themselves and their own dependents.

Many of us regard the clergy as a natural blessing, always serving others, never seeking their own, self-sustaining like the sun and air. The attitude makes their compensation meager and provision for old age inadequate. That is the general lot of all teaching forces. They are too little appreciated.

In every generation the clergy have furnished the spiritual leadership on which has rested both the political and economic progress of the times. They are the main source of the best standards of civilization. Without their influence the Nation would fall into a state of moral and material decay. If not for their sakes, certainly for our own, we should give them more appreciation and better support.

MRS. OMLIE LEADS DIXIE DERBY FIELD

500 Aircraft to Take Off at Chicago Today in Tenth National Air Race.

MRS. O'DONNELL GAINS

Flying through rain and "soupy" weather, Mrs. Phoebe Fairgraves Omlie, mother of three children, landed at Raleigh, N. C., late yesterday 9 minutes ahead of her nearest opponent in the Women's Dixie Air Derby from Washington to Chicago. Her total elapsed time from Washington to Raleigh was 1 hour 33 minutes and 7 seconds.

Miss Nancy Hopkins, Washington's own entrant, finished last among the six entrants, with a total elapsed time of 3 hours 25 minutes and 8 seconds. Others finishing and their time follow: Vera Dawn Walker, second, 1 hour 21 minutes; Laura Ingalls, third, 2 hours 7 minutes and 4 seconds; Mrs. Leslie Bowman, fourth, 2 hours 11 minutes and 14 seconds; Mrs. Charity Langdon, fifth, 2 hours, 45 minutes and 35 seconds.

Mrs. Omlie's time from Washington to Richmond was 38 minutes. Miss Hopkins made good time from Washington to the Virginia city, but lost ten minutes in searching for the landing field.

Despite lowering skies, a crowd of nearly 5,000 gathered at the Washington Airport yesterday morning to witness the start of the 1,575-mile flight. After the pilots had received final instructions from race officials and had posed for photographers the planes were lined up and inspected on the eastern end of the field. Promptly at 11 o'clock Bruce Lefore, starter, dropped his checkered flag and Mrs. Omlie taxied her small Monocoupe down the field for a perfect take-off.

She was followed at one minute intervals by Mrs. Walker, in an Inland Sport monoplane; Laura Ingalls, in a

SHOWS WILL GO ON, THEATER HEADS SAY

IMPASSE NOW REACHED

With both sides refusing to yield an inch, and a sympathy strike of stage hands and proectionists looming as more than a possibility, the Theater Owners' Association announced last night that Washington motion picture houses would continue to operate after September 1, when the impasse with musicians will reach a climax with the expiration of their contracts.

Final details relating to new contracts granted the projectionists were ironed out at a meeting last night, but the National Moving Picture Machine Operators Union, through its local, had informed the owners that their services would no longer be available after September 1 unless a satisfactory agreement was made with the musicians.

The situation on musicians, arising from the refusal of the owners to renew old contracts, did not enter into the conference yesterday.

A. C. Hayden, president of the musicians' union, said that he was awaiting the action of the owners on a letter outlining the musicians' stand. The owners' association, on the other hand, feels that it is up to the Musicians Union to take the next step toward a compromise.

In announcing that theaters would continue to operate, regardless of the triple alliance that threatens to result in the sympathy strike of stage hands and projectionists September 1, Julian Brylawski, speaking for the owners, did not intimate whether the owners would attempt to break the strike, if one should develop, or would accede to the musicians' demands for protective contracts, and so placate all three groups.

It was understood that the projectionists won a victory with the grant-

German Pilot in Greenland After Flight From Iceland

Capt. Wolafng Von Gronau and Three Companions Land in Western World After Anniversary at Reykjavik; Said They Would Fly East.

Copenhagen, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, German aviator, and three companions today made successfully a surprise flight from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Ivigtut, at the southern tip of Greenland.

Their arrival this afternoon was reported by Greenland authorities and cleared up much confusion about their true destination.

Von Gronau, chief of the training school for commercial airplane pilots near Warenmuende, Germany, indicated last night in Reykjavik he would return to Germany today. But an hour and a half after starting from the harbor at 6:35 a. m. (2:35 a. m., Eastern standard time) he sent a radio that he was in 65:50 degrees latitude north and 26:20 degrees longitude west, well out on the route to Greenland.

The mystery of his flight began to clear up definitely when he wirelessed at 1 p. m., Iceland time (9 a. m., Eastern standard time) that he was nearing Cape Farewell, Greenland, and bucking a heavy west wind.

This wind slowed the speed of his Dornier Wal flying boat, and it was 3:30 p. m., Greenland local time (1:30 p. m., Eastern standard time) before he alighted successfully at Ivigtut.

The entire trip, of about 1,000 miles, over water nearly all the way, required about eleven hours of flying. Von Gronau was accompanied by an aviation student named Zimmer, a wireless operator named Albrecht and a mechanic named Franz Hack.

The further plans of the German airmen were not reported, but it was believed they intended to stay for two days at Ivigtut.

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 22 (A.P.). Capt. von Gronau, a young German aviator, took off from the harbor here

Melting Ice Bares Bodies of First Explorers to Try Polar Hop.

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Out of the Arctic silence today came the grim last chapter of aviation's first North Pole argosy, solving after 33 years the mystery of how Salomon August Andree, Swedish balloonist-explorer, who set out in an airship in 1898 for the top of the world, perished with his two companions.

A Norwegian scientific expedition, headed by Dr. S. Horn, today sent word to Oslo that its members had found the bodies of Andree and his mates in a camp of their making, on White Island, far north of Rudolf Land, northernmost in the Fridtjof Nansen land archipelago.

"The discovery was reported at Tromsoe by the Norwegian sealer Terningen, which met the sealer Bratvaag, of the Horn expedition, in Arctic waters.

"The Bratvaag had aboard the bodies of Andree and of one of his companions. As it is not equipped with wireless the captain of the Terningen was requested to announce the finding. The Bratvaag is due at Tromsoe September 10.

"The Terningen's captain said no trace of Andree's balloon had been found.

Andree's diary, his scientific instruments, a few scattered objects which evidently had been nuzzled by bears but left untouched, and the bodies of the explorers, told the gruesome tale of a battle with the elements in which the tall, blonde aeronaut had survived his fellows.

Identification was easy. The frozen bodies were well preserved. Only one had deteriorated, presumably because it lay sheltered in a small boat which had been part of the equipment of the world's first dirigible. The others appeared as if the tragedy might have occurred only yesterday, instead of in a generation almost gone.

Andree was accompanied on his trip by K. Frankel and N. Strindberg, the latter then a handsome youth of 24, professor in a Swedish University.

VOTERS WILL GUIDE WOMAN CANDIDATE

Mrs. McCormick Says State Dry Law Referendum to Govern Attitude.

FOLLOWS PARTY STAND

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, today announced that if the voters of Illinois at their referendum in November ask for repeal of the prohibition amendment, she will be guided by their decision.

Before she had spoken, the Republican State convention adopted a platform with exactly the same attitude on the question as expressed by Mrs. McCormick.

"If a majority in Illinois are recorded as favorable to repeal of the eighteenth amendment," she said, "I stand ready, when elected senator, to obey the mandate and I shall vote to submit the question of its repeal to the various States.

"If the expressed will of the people is for modification of the Volstead act, my course as a member of the Senate would be in sympathy with the principles so approved, but the definite course to be pursued would be dependent, of course, upon the nature of the modification demanded."

While reaffirming that she was dry, personally, she told convention delegates that "the Republican party adheres to the principle of majority rule," and added: "I am a Republican."

Her Democratic opponent, former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, is an

ADM. BYRD WANTS NEW TYPE AIRPLANE

Explorer, at Chicago Fete, Indicts Aviation for Its Lack of Progress.

HOOVER SENDS LETTER

Chicago, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd is in the market for a new airplane—a ship that can fold its "feet" like a bird, and carry its motors in the wings.

Coming from the seclusion of a New Hampshire retreat to be the honor guest of the National Aeronautic Association tonight, he offered to place his order for such a flying machine, adding: "But I will not tell you for what purpose I would use it."

His order for the plane was part of an indictment of aviation progress which, he said, in the two years he has been gone in the Antarctic has not been sufficient to produce a trimotored ship better than the one in which he flew over the South Pole.

"The three-engined plane," he said, "is only 50 per cent as efficient as the single-motored ship. The public is no longer afraid to fly, and it is now up to manufacturers and operators to improve design and decrease the cost per mile."

He prophesied that within three or four years aviation would be well under other forms of transportation in cost per minute of travel.

He was intriduced by Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the association, as the "most distinguished young American today," and presented with a diploma of honorary membership in the organization, a distinction held by only four other

BONDSMAN COLLUSION INVESTIGATION ASKED BY ASSOCIATION HEAD

Kronheim Files Demand That Rover Give Data to Grand Jury.

SPOKESMAN ANGERED BY REPORTS OF PRESS

Denial Made That $2,500 Bail Is Required in Rum Cases.

ATTORNEYS QUESTION PRACTICE BY COURTS

Origin of Present Schedule Revealed by Letter From Pratt to Hesse.

A demand that the United States attorney have the grand jury investigate charges of reputed collusion between policemen and professional bondsmen was made yesterday by Milton S. Kronheim, president of the Professional Bondsmen's Association.

The action of Mr. Kronheim follows statements by Judge Gus A. Schuldt and Judge Isaac R. Hitt, of Police Court, insinuating that they believed the police had been overzealous in their charges in liquor cases.

The statement of the judges also followed one by Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, in charge of liquor law violations in Police Court, that he had suggested that liquor-law offenders only be assessed a nominal bond when arrested, leaving it up to the judges of the court, his office and the United States commissioner to determine if a higher bond should be assessed.

Text of Statement.

Mr. Kronheim's statement follows:

"If there is truth in the statement that any bondsman is in collusion with the police and has caused the arrest of any person for the purpose of creating a bond, it should be presented to the grand jury for investigation.

"As president and on behalf of the Bondsmen's Association I intend to request the district attorney to investigate conditions and settle the question once for all.

"Where charges are proven, persons involved should be indicted and punished."

Kronheim Is Peeved.

Mr. Kronheim was irate when he issued the statement and declared that the relations between bondsmen and the police had always been on a high plane.

"My theory," said Mr. Kronheim, "is that the police should keep on locking up liquor law violators until they get discouraged or go broke. I think the newspapers are trying to make it soft for the bootleggers in the present campaign."

Before issuing the statement, Mr. Kronheim attempted to have a meeting of his association, but when a quorum failed to materialize at 4 o'clock, the assembly was called off.

Aroused by Press Claims.

Mr. Kronheim also was incensed by the fact that newspaper reports had said the police were assessing bonds as high as $2,500 in liquor cases.

"That's all wet," said the president of the Professional Bondsmen's Association. "The judges got together last May and reduced the bonds on charges of sale and possession, transportation and possession and manufacture and possession to $1,500. This stuff about $2,500 bonds is wrong."

Mr. Kronheim, even presented a ledger entry showing the new scale—which never had been given the press—and when authenticity of the record was questioned it was vouched for by a deputy clerk of the Police Court who often is seen in his office.

Wrong Impression Admitted.

Mr. Kronheim, upon questioning, admitted that he had misinterpreted newspaper articles about nominal bonds for liquor law offenders.

He was advised that Mr. Hart had never insinuated that police fixed

Fletcher Is Appointed Head of Tariff Board

Veteran of Diplomatic Service Held Well Qualified for Post.

(Associated Press.)

Henry P. Fletcher, of Greencastle, Pa., a veteran of the American diplomatic service and long associated with problems of world economics, is to be the chairman of the reorganized tariff commission. His appointment was announced yesterday by President Hoover, who said he considered Fletcher well qualified for the post through experience with tariff matters while serving the Government abroad.

It was Mr. Hoover's first appointment to the commission since Congress ordered the reorganization in the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill more than two months ago. The President has until September 16 to name the other five members, three of whom must be Democrats.

Fletcher entered the diplomatic service in 1902 and served successively as secretary at Havana, Lisbon and

PRESIDENT, IN CAMP, SCANS WATERWAYS

Engineers Go Along to Aid Study of Improvements on Big Rivers.

SPALDING REPORT READY

Orange, Va., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—President Hoover came to his mountain retreat on the Rapidan River tonight for another week-end of rest, recreation and informal conferences on pressing Government problems.

The drought and commercial aviation have been vehicles for discussion the last two weeks, but tonight the Executive surrounded himself with expert engineers in and out of the Government to inform himself first hand on the progress of inland waterway development and the related question of flood control.

The conferences were expected to revolve principally around work now going forward on the upper Mississippi with the ultimate purpose of creating a 9-foot channel from Minneapolis to Cairo, Ill.

The Missouri, Illinois and Ohio River improvements also were to enter the conversations, as well as the proposed Great Lakes to the sea waterway via the St. Lawrence, negotiations over which probably will be renewed with Canada as soon as Hanford MacNider, new American Minister to Ottawa, assumes his post and determines the attitude of the new Canadian government. Mr. MacNider will participate in the Rapidan conferences.

The official guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover included Secretary Hurley, Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army engineers, and Col. George R. Spalding, Army engineer in charge of the upper Mississippi and Illinois project. Robert E. McConnell, a New York engineer and close friend of the President, also was at the camp.

Col Spalding was prepared to make an informal report on the upper Mississippi channel, for which the new rivers and harbors act authorizes an

LOUDOUN DROUGHT INJURY $3,000,000

County Agent's Figures Do Not Include Apple or Cattle Losses.

FARMERS HOLD STOCK

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 22.—Farmers, fruit growers and stockmen of Loudoun County, one of the most important in northern Virginia in grazing and corn production, estimate their losses due to the protracted drought at approximately $3,000,000, according to J. R. Lintner, county agent, who has completed a survey. He said today the figures did not include losses which farmers have suffered through deflation of beef cattle prices, curtailment of the apple crop and slightly decreased milk production.

The losses related to corn, hay, pasture and new grass in stubble fields. Taking the corn crop as an example of effects of the drought, he said Loudoun normally produced 1,500,000 bushels of corn on 40,000 acres. Not more than 5,000 bushels will be gathered this year from the same acreage, his reports indicated. This will necessitate large shipments of corn into the county this winter, and seed corn must be purchased in sections not hit by the drought.

Mr. Lintner said unofficial figures indicated 10,000 beef cattle in Loudoun last spring, when the long dry spell began. About 4,000 have been shipped, resulting in losses to the feeder of from $40 to $60 per head. Farmers are making every effort to hold the remaining cattle, and many have expressed a desire to keep their stock over winter in the hope that next spring will see a better market. They are, however, faced with a critical feed shortage.

As to apples, he said heavy rains would be a great aid to the crop, but it was his opinion there was serious

Senator Moses to Invade Country of 'Wild Jackass'

Chairman of Republican Senatorial Committee, After Visit to White House, Announces Plan to Tour Section West of Mississippi River.

Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, is going to visit the "wild jackass country" despite warnings that by doing so he will endanger certain insurgent candidates. Mr. Moses does not believe that a trip by him through the Progressive Republican States of the West would hurt. He is sure it would help.

Mr. Moses, in a speech on the Senate floor, during consideration of the tariff in the Senate, declared that the sons of the wild jackass were in control of the Senate. His remarks were criticized on the floor of the Senate and became part of the Record. Western Republicans were angered by the catchy, caustic speech. They let it be known that Mr. Moses had better confine his political activities to the East. G. O. P. leaders were afraid for him to go to States west of the Mississippi, and it was announced that he would stick to the New England and Middle Atlantic States and let Senator Frederick Steiwer, of Colorado, handle the situation out in his country. Mr. Moses was here yesterday, and after a visit to the White House indicated his purpose to go to Denver and places in insurgent territory.

Mr. Moses has been advised by leaders of his party that Senator W. B. Pine, of Oklahoma, and Senator William H. McMaster, of South Dakota, are in danger of defeat by former Senator Thomas P. Gore and Gov. W. J. Bulow, respectively. He has been advised that the Republican candidates, Albert J. Galen, in Montana, and Gov. Richard C. Dillon, of New Mexico, are making some headway in their contests with Senators Thomas J. Walsh and Sam G. Bratton.

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States bonds but that they assessed too high bail on the basis of unsupported charges.

"Well, that's a shoe on the other foot," said Mr. Kronheim, "the bondsmen have nothing to do with that. That's a matter for Police Court judges and police to thrash out. When we are called we go down, get a transcript of the man's record, come back to Police Court and immediately present our data to the clerk who is on duty until 11 o'clock at night. He fixes or assesses the bond and we sign as surety. The police only make the charges which regulate the bond."

Belief of Attorneys.

At the same time attorneys who practice in Police Court expressed the belief that the practice of Police Court judges in designating to deputy clerks the power of assessing and signing bonds is wrong.

One well-known attorney, who has won many decisions recently in the Court of Appeals on legal questions arising out of Police Court cases, declared that the judges themselves were magistrates and that the whole business of fixing a standardized bond for their own comfort was a matter that should be looked into.

"The judges of Police Court," he declared, "fix a regulation bond for a charge. That does not cover the merits of any particular case. A man may be a casual or an every-day offender. The bond, however, for the charge is the same. That is an evil and it should be corrected. The only people who profit are the bondsmen, who never furnish bond, large or small, until they know that the person whose bond they guarantee is a good risk regardless of the amount of bail assessed.

Night Court Advocated.

"There should be a night court or else the judges should be available when some one wants to bail a man out. As the matter now stands a person arrested after 11 o'clock has to stay in jail unless a cash bond is produced."

Mr. Hart yesterday had little to say about the crusade. He pointed out, however, that since Monday his office has received only an average of two cases a day and that in every case since Wednesday the police had scored 100 per cent in having their charges sustained by his office. The record since Monday is the smallest ever recorded in Police Court for the same period of time.

Mr. Hart refused to discuss whether he believed the reaction was due to the reprimand from the Police Department or from other alleged causes.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, reprimanded two policemen and warned twelve others as the result of thirteen illegal liquor charges made by police over the week-end. Mr. Hart declared all thirteen cases illegal because of lack of warrants or for other reasons.

Origin of Schedule Shown.

The origin of the present schedule for bonds in liquor cases was revealed yesterday by Maj. Pratt in a letter of March 6, 1929, from the United States attorney, Leo A. Rover, to Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, then superintendent of police.

The letter stated that at a conference of the four judges of the Police Court, Mr. Rover and several of his assistants, bonds were fixed at $2,000 for manufacturing liquor charges, sale, or transportation, and $500 for possession.

It was decided at the same time that any one desiring to be released after 11 o'clock at night or between 11 o'clock Saturday night and 9 o'clock Monday morning would have to make a cash deposit for bond.

Attitude of Maj. Pratt.

Maj. Pratt said he was not in favor of any reduction in this schedule, but added that it was a matter for the district attorney to decide. He also expressed the belief that in most instances a single charge was enough to place against a prisoner, but he added that he intended to leave such matters to the discretion of the arresting policeman.

The issue of primary importance, he declared, is protection of citizens from illegal arrests. Despite the fact that he recently inaugurated a drive against vice in the Capital, he said he was not impressed by records of policemen who make a large number of arrests.

"The efficiency of a police department is better measured by the number of convictions won in courts rather than in the number of arrests made," he said.

"The cause of law enforcement is not aided by illegal acts committed in the name or under the guise of law enforcement."

The Rev. Thomas F. Baker, of Oak Grove Va., father of the murdered Mary E. Baker, for the slaying of whom Herbert M. Campbell has been indicted, has receiver permission from Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins, to take possession of the car in which the girl was slain.

Since the recovery of the automobile on April 12, it has been in the custody of Arlington County officials. Dr. Baker received his permission to take the car a few days ago. He will come to Arlington County for it some time next week.

Photographs of the interior of the automobile have been taken by the Washington detective bureau for use as evidence.

Gov. Ritchie to Deliver Speech at Frostburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 22.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie will be guest of honor at a barbecue at the Junior Order Park, Frostburg, next Tuesday night, when the Democratic campaign in Western Maryland will be formally opened. Gov. Ritchie will attend the Cumberland Fair and race meeting Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. Wednesday has been designated as "Governor's Day." The barbecue at Frostburg will be open to the public, regardless of party affiliations.

A caravan of automobiles will leave the State Armory here at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. Gov. Ritchie will deliver an address at the park and a program will be given by the Arion Band of Frostburg.

EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

HERNDON FIREMEN IN CARNIVAL TODAY

Parade, Baby Show, Beauty Contest and Ball Game Will Mark Event.

CAMP MEETING TO OPEN

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The annual "Herndon Day" celebration by the Volunteer Fire Department of Herndon will open this morning at 10 o'clock on the grounds of the Herndon school with a band concert. A parade of the visiting companies will follow. A large silver cup donated by the Washington & Old Dominion Railway will be awarded to the company making the best appearance. The company making the next best appearance will receive a silver cup given by the Herndon company. Another large cup, donated by the Herndon Feed Store, will be given to the company coming the longest distance. Fire Chief Walter Farr will have charge of the parade.

A baby show will be held at 11 o'clock under supervision of Mrs. Jesse Aud. The National Bank of Herndon will give $2.50 in gold to each of the winners, best boy and best girl under 1 year old and the same to the best boy and best girl over 1 year old and under 2. The largest family present at the celebration will receive a barrel of flour.

There will also be a beauty contest, dancing at night and ponies for the children to ride, besides the regular carnival features. A baseball game will be played in the afternoon under the direction of Eustace Taylor between the teams from Chantilly and the Vienna Fire Department.

The food stand will be in charge of the Women's Auxiliary of the Fire Department. Mrs. E. M. Armfield, president, will have charge. Members of the company will be on duty at the various other stands through the day and night.

T. Edgar Reed president of the company and general chairman of the carnival, has announced that there will be no admission charge to the grounds this year. Other members of the committee on arrangements include Allen H. Kirk, Ray N. Wrenn, J. L. Nachman, Walter A. Farr, Silas F. Hutchinson, Ralph O. Ennis, Miss Marjorie Bell Reed and Mrs. E. M. Armfield.

The proceeds of the carnival will be used by the department to assist in paying off the note that is soon due on the new fire pumper.

Miss Mary Farmer who was appointed teacher of the Vale School has resigned on account of ill health according to the announcement made yesterday by Wilbert T. Woodson, divisional superintendent of schools.

The annual camp meeting of the Dranesville Association will open tomorrow in a large grove that has been improved for the occasion. C. F. Henderson, of Forestville, is president of the association, Miss Anna Hyatts, of Herndon, secretary and Mrs. Zenus McMillen, of Herndon, treasurer.

Three services will be held each day, until the closing service on Sunday evening, September 7. The services will be conducted by the Rev A. E. Wachtel assisted by the Rev. A. Simpson, evangelist and song leader of Somerville, Mass.; the Rev. Stephen W. Wyman; John Chadwick, of Fall River, Mass.; John Monroe, of Cambridge, Mass., and others. The song services will be lead by the Rev. A. Simpson and David Wachtel who will be accompanied by a group of musicians and singers. The Jones Radio Quartet, of Washington, will be present at the services on Sunday, August 31, on Labor Day and Sunday, September 7.

The children's workers for the meeting will be Miss Florence Dalton, of North Carolina, and Miss Elizabeth Louise Johnson, of Georgia. The tabernacle is about one-half mile from the junction of the Georgetown-Leesburg pike and the Alexandria-Leesburg pike at Dranesville. Arrangements have been made to furnish board to the campers at a nominal rate.

Albert Hurst, who was operating a gasoline station near the Penn Daw Hotel on the Washington-Richmond highway about three miles south of Alexandria was arrested by State Proliquor were seized. John Tyler, of R. F. D. No. 1, Alexandria, also was arrested at the same time when three gallons of alleged liquor were found in his car at the gas station. The car was seized and both men were taken before Justice of the Peace Thomas P. Chapman at Fairfax, who ordered them held for the grand jury. The men were lodged in the Fairfax County Jail, pending arrangements for their bond.

Harry Parnell of Twenty-seventh street, near K street northwest, Washington, was fined $5.00 and costs on a charge of reckless driving on the Washington-Richmond highway near Groveton, by Justice of the Peace Arthur D. Kirby, of Groveton. The arrest was made by Policeman Lewis L. Finks, of the Fairfax County road police.

BYRD ASKS FURTHER REVISON OF FREIGHT

Provision for Milling Grain in Transit Urged for Drought Relief.

REBATE PLAN FAVORED

(Associated Press.)

Revision of emergency freight rate provisions for drought relief to permit milling in transit and the designation of shipments eligible to the reductions at the destination was urged yesterday by Harry Flood Byrd, chairman of the Virginia State relief committee. Unless milling in transit, to permit the feed to be put into a concentrated form, is allowed, Mr. Byrd contended that at least 80 per cent of the feed used, exclusive of hay, would not receive reductions.

Milling in transit permits through relief rates to be charged on shipments milled at a point between origin and destination.

Emergency rates, now in effect in the Eastern and Southern drought States, will become effective in the Western drought areas early next week. They apply to feed shipped into drought areas and to livestock shipped out to feed.

Other Difficulties Cited.

Mr. Byrd said there were difficulties in the requirements that shipments to be eligible to the emergency rates must contain the certification of the county agent in the area as to point of origin.

The most practical way of handling reduced rates shipments, Mr. Byrd continued, would be to have them move in the normal way at full tariff rate, with the county agent at the destination to determine when they are received whether or not they should be entitled to the reduced rates. The railroad companies would then make refund on the county agent's certificate.

Under the present arrangement, he added, most of the farmers buy their hay and feed from dealers who rarely knows the point of origin.

Virginia Program Not Formulated.

After the conferences, Mr. Byrd said that no decision had been reached as to a definite program for relief in Virginia.

The group which accompanied him, including Senator Swanson and former Gov. H. C. Stuart, left Washington last night.

V. V. Vaiden, president of the Intermediate Credit Bank of Baltimore, and I. P. Whitehead, general counsel of the bank, attended the conferences.

danger to both trees and the fruit as a result of the long drought.

The dairying industry has been hurt less than any other, due to the fact that Loudoun dairymen are good feeders and have learned the secret of productive feeding, according to the county agent. This is reflected to a great extent by milk production having been maintained at a normal figure. Like beef-cattle raisers, dairymen are faced with a feed shortage, and already they find it necessary to use large quantities of dry feed at a time when pastures would naturally be aiding milk production.

Maryland Woman Dies of Injuries

Mrs. Anna Montgomrey Was Struck by Auto at Riverdale.

Mrs. Anna Montgomery, 59 years old, of Riverdale, Md., died yesterday at Emergency Hospital as the result of injuries suffered when she was struck Saturday night by an automobile in front of her home. She was brought to the hospital by the Prince Georges County Rescue Squad.

Her condition at first was not thought serious but it later developed that she had suffered internal injuries. Mrs. Montgomery was on her way to a wedding at a neighbor's home when she stepped into the street in the path of the automobile of E. W. Davis, of Hyattsville, Md., according to State Policeman C. W. Cubbage.

Justice of the Peace H. J. Moffat, of Hyattsville, who acted as ——, decided that no inquest was necessary and issues a certificate of accidental death.

SUSPECT IN HOLDUP AT OAK CREST SEIZED

Police Believe They Have Man Wanted for College Park Depredations.

TWO SHOT IN ROBBERY

With the arrest of a colored man who had been wounded in an alleged attempted hold-up, Prince Georges County Police believe they have the "red handkerchief" robber who has been robbing couples parked near College Park, Md.

According to police, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning three colored men and two colored women drove up to the barbecue stand of John P. Griffith at Oak Crest, near Contee, Md. The men alighted from the car and ordered sandwiches. As they started to leave with the sandwiches, Griffin asked for his money. The men then began to beat him. Griffin's son, who was in a back room, heard the commotion and ran into the room.

One of the men struck him. The young man returned to the back room and seeured a rifle with which he shot one of the men in the stomach and the other in the leg.

The men ran from the store, two of them getting away in the automobile with the women and the third running across fields nearby. The man wounded in the leg was arrested by County Policeman Claude Reese and taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment. He gave his name as Fred Young, colored, Fifteenth street, southeast near C street.

Police say that he answers the general description of the man who has been holding up auto parties near the Maryland University at the point of a pistol for several weeks.

Ritchie Names 29 On Drought Board

Three of State Commission to Attend Meeting With Hyde in Capital.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—A State-wide commission of 29 men was named today by Gov. Ritchie to seek a path out of the wilderness of drought damage for Maryland farmers. The commission embraces men prominent in the banking, railroad, commercial and agricultural life.

It will be headed by Waldo Newcomer, president of the Baltimore Clearing House Associatoin and chairman of the executive committee of the Baltimore Trust Co.

A subcommittee of three was appointed from the main body to represent Maryland at the Federal drought relief meeting which is to be held next Tuesday at the office of the Secretary of Agriculture Hyde in Washington. It is headed by Norton Prentis, president of the First National Bank, Baltimore, with Charles E. Reimer, director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and Hugh S. Mackey, of the Intermediate Credit Bank, as members.

Bogus Smith Wire Splits Association

Newark Parks Director Out of Democratic Body; Quiz Starts.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 22 A.P.).—Charging that an official of the Joel Parker Association was responsible for the spurious telegram purported to have been sent the organization by Alfred E. Smith, Charles P. Gillen, director of parks, today resigned from the association.

Bart J. Freeman, president began an investigation, as did William J. Egan, director of public safety, to whom the message was directed. The Western Union Telegraph Co. also is looking into the matter.

The telegram, which Mr. Smith denies sending, predicted Democrats soon would be in national control. Gillen said today the association had outlived its usefulness.

Mrs. Lucy V. Pugh Rites.

Danville, Va., Aug. 22 (Special).—Funeral services were held this afternoon for Mrs. Lucy Virginia Pugh, widow of George W. Pugh, who died at her home here early Thursday at the age of 84 years. Mrs. Pugh was a charter members of the Calvary Methodist Church and was generally esteemed. She had been a life-long resident of this city. She is survived by several children and three sisters.

HATFIELD, SURVIVOR OF OLD FEUD, DEAD

Brain Ailment Kills Man Who Escaped Approximately 300 Bullets.

WAS SENATOR'S COUSIN

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The last of the active figures in America's most noted mountain feud, William Anderson Hatfield, died at the age of 67, at a hospital here today following an operation, and tonight his widow, a son and a daughter started back to Logan, W. Va., with his body.

There in the town where stands a monument to his father, "Devil Anse," Hatfield, or "Cap" as he was known, will be buried.

Neither he nor his father, the chieftain of the clan army which a half century ago, after eight years of warfare, forced back into the Kentucky mountains their foes, the McCoys, died with his boots on. "Cap" succumbed to an operation for a brain tumor, and his sire died peacefully in 1921 when he was 86.

Possessed of a remarkable memory, "Cap" told many stories of the feud during his early life, but of late years declined to discuss the strife during which he "guessed" he had been shot at some 300 times.

The real cause of the feud long ago became obscured. The most widely accepted theory is that it was a suit over ownership of some hogs. Two years after the action had been settled, Bill Stayton, Hatfield adherent, was slain by two of the McCoys on the banks of the Tug River, which separates West Virginia and Kentucky.

The resultant open warfare continued for eight years and involved the governors of both Kentucky and West Virginia when they refused extradition of feudists wanted for trial in the other's State.

Several score persons met violent death.

Many of the feud figures and their descendants lived to become peace officers. "Cap" once served as a deputy sheriff under two brothers, one of whom, John D. Hatfield, is the present Logan County sheriff.

United States Senator Henry D. Hatfield is a cousin of "Cap," as is Daniel Hatfield, Baltimore City health official.

Man Accused by Wife Held on $10,000 Bond

Eugene Butler, Negro, charged with assault on his wife, Marie, was held yesterday in Police Court under $10,000 bond for trial next week.

Butler, according to police, slashed his wife with a razor and when arrested is quoted as saying he was sorry he did not finish the job. Police told the court that the only reason the man did not complete the job was because the razor broke. Judge R. E. Mattingly declared the continuance was granted in the hope the woman would be well enough in a week to testify.

Man Gets 60 Years In Slaying of Wife

Takes That in Preference to Life Term When Offered Choice by Judge.

Zacheus White, Negro, 35 years old, was sentenced yesterday by Justice William Hitz, in District Supreme Court, to serve 60 years in jail on a charge of second degree murder in connection with the slaying of his wife, Alice White, July 14, 1929.

White, when brought before the court for sentence, was given the option of life or a 60-year sentence. He chose the latter, despite the fact that he was advised that in many instances persons under life sentence had been liberated after 15 years, while under a 60-year sentence he would have to serve 20 years at least.

White recently pleaded guilty to the second degree charge, United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney James F. Hughes consenting. Mr. Hughes yesterday entered a nolle prosequi in another indictment against White in which he was charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of Edward Hall, Negro, who was a visitor in the White house at the time of the killing of the woman. Attorneys James A. O'Shea, John F. Burnett and Alfred Goldstein appeared for White.

Winter Game Assured Tom Thumb Golfers

Tom Thumb golf courses will not be closed during fall and winter months if the Department of Commerce can prevent it. The program is to cover them with tarpaulin to protect players from inclement weather. A survey is being made of the popular pastime with a view to seeing how much material would be required to make tents for 25,000 or more courses.

In the study of unemployment, Government agents have found that the peewee golf fad has given work to more than 100,000 persons during the last few months and pleasure to a great many more. The committee on new uses for cotton is behind the movement to put baby golf under textile roofs.

Four in Capital Named In Will of New Yorker

Mrs. Genevieve W. Marsh, of 8 East Irving street, Chevy Chase, Md., received $2,000 under the will of her late uncle, Dr. Condict W. Cutler, for many years chief of staff of the New York Dispensary, according to his will which was filed for probate in New York yesterday.

Three grandnieces, Elizabeth, Genevieve and Mary Marsh, all of the same address, each are left $1,000. Dr. Cutler, who died July 9, left an estate of $60,000.

Lynchburg Carpenter Dies.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 22 (Special).—L. L. Stinnett, 49, carpenter, of Madison Heights, died today at Memorial Hospital of lesion of the brain, which he sustained yesterday in a fall from a scaffold on W. L. Moorman's farm near Lynchburg. He is survived by his widow and several children.

Mills Production Stepped Up.

Keyser, W. Va., Aug. 22 (Special).—By September 1, the plant of the Keyser Woolen Mills will be operating at capacity, according to F. E. Miller, superintendent. A step-up in production has been gradually made since the 1st of July.

TODAY MARKS END OF ROCKVILLE FAIR

77th Annual Exhibition of Association Will Close With Auto Races.

DOGS ATTRACT THRONG

Closing one of the most successful exhibitions in the history of the association the seventy-seventh annual Rockville Fair will close today at the Fair Grounds at Rockville, Md.

An afternoon of auto races with eight events listed on the program will be the closing feature.

Yesterday's crowd was smaller than any of the three preceding days of the fair, but a fair-sized crowd turned out for the dog show and running races on the fair track. The dog show had been limited this year to the sporting breed and practically the only exhibits were foxhounds and setters. Honors in the latter class went to Harry J. Hunt, of Bethesda, Md., Owner of the Huntstone Kennells, whose entries carried away the majority of the ribbons in every class in which they were shown.

Results in the foxhound classes were as follows:

Aged dogs—W. J. Manlove, Beltsville, Md., first and second.

Aged bitches—Buckhorn Kennel, Woodbine, Md., first; Earp Brothers, Annapolis Junction, second; Whitney Atcherson, of Laurel, Md., third.

Young dogs—Robert Atcherson, Laurel, Md., first; Buckhorn Kennels, second; Earp Brothers, third.

Young bitches—Buckhorn Kennels, first; Earp Brothers, second.

Best couple—Whitney Atcherson, first and second.

Best in show—Buckhorn Kennels, first.

Best pack—Whitney Atcherson, first; W. J. Manlove, second; Buckhorn Kennels, third.

Results in the running races, which completed the day's program were:

Running race—One mile dash; purse, $125. Lady Monte, first; Run Chief, second; Melva Rose, third.

Running race—Five furlongs; purse, $150. Sandy Sam, first; Grace H., second; Warrenton, third.

Running race—One mile; purse, $200. Gilleret, first; Kaffa, second; Overlook, third.

Mrs. Hattie Prince Dies After Illness

Wife of General Solicitor of Southern Railway to Be Buried in Mobile.

Mrs. Hattie Beverly Smith Prince, wife of S. R. Prince, general solicitor of the Southern Railway, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital, following an illness of several months. She came to Washington with her husband from Mobile, Ala., and lived at 5 Chevy Chase Circle, Chevy Chase, Md.

Mrs. Prince was the daughter of the late Gregory L. Smith of Mobile. She was prominent in church and social life in the Capital and was connected with the All Saints' Episcopal Church, a member of the Altar Chapter of the church, and a member of the board of control of the Episcopal Home for Children. She was also a member of the Washington Club and the Chevy Chase Club.

Surviving are her husband and two sons, Sydney R. Prince, jr., and Gregory Smith Prince.

Mrs. Prince's body was taken to Mobile on a special car at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. A brief funeral service was held at the residence at 9 o'clock, with the Rev. Teller Henry Cocke, of All Saints' Church, officiating. Pallbearers were J. R. Little, J. B. Hyde, Brainard Warner, E. R. Oliver, Hugh Southgate and Judge Brantley.

Receiver Is Appointed For Clothing Company

Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court yesterday named Lester H. Steinem as receiver of Friedlander Bros., Inc., clothing merchants with offices at 428 Ninth street northwest.

Appointment of the receiver follows the filing of an involuntary bankruptcy action against the company. Allegations of petitioning creditors included the charge that the firm owes $25,000 and has only $8,000 assets. It also was alleged that several creditors had been shown preference. Complaining creditors were represented by Mr. Steinem. Justice Hitz fixed the attorney's bond as receiver at $5,000.

Davis Celebration Will Hear Curtis

Vice President Starts for Home-Coming Today in Sharon, Pa.

(Associated Press.)

Vice President Curtis left Washington last night for Sharon, Pa., to deliver the principal address at a home-coming celebration there today, honoring Secretary Davis, the Republican nominee for the Senate in Pennsylvania. The boyhood home of the Labor Secretary was at Sharon. Civic organizations are sponsoring the celebration.

The Vice President called upon President Hoover yesterday and on leaving said his Sharon speech would be in connection with the Davis campaign.

The formal opening of the campaign is scheduled for next week, probably in Harrisburg, where Republican State Chairman Edward Martin will outline a program after conferring with Gifford Pinchot, the gubernatorial nominee.

Thieves Steal Airplane Wheels.

Thieves early yesterday entered the establishment of John Raydon, 912 Ninth street northwest, and stole two airplane wheels and several motorcycle accessories, valued at $40. The burglars entered by forcing a lock on a front door.

Woman Rescued at Fire In Heart of Winchester

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 22.—Fire said by authorities to be due to defective second story electric wiring, menaced valuable property in the heart of the retail district early today, damaged offices of the Western Union Telegraph Co., and wrecked the interior of a large barber shop of James Cave. Occupants of a nearby apartment house fled in night clothes, while Boy Scouts rescued Miss Emma E. Brown, over 80 years of age, who was found overcome by smoke.

A metal ceiling in the telegraph office fell under weight of water, interrupting service which was fully restored later in the day. The loss was placed at $5,000, insured. The building is owned by Mrs. Minnie Evans Nulton, wife of Admiral Louis M. Nulton, commandant of the First Naval District at Boston.

ROYAL BABY'S NAME TOPIC OF PEASANTS

Scotch Suggest Margaret or Mary for New Child of Duchess of York.

INFANT IS DOING WELL

Glamis, Scotland, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Great Britain's newest princess, born last night while the wind howled about historic Glamis Castle, and her mother, the Duchess of York, continued today to make "satisfactory progress." The official bulletins signed by Sir Henry Simson, Dr. F. Neon Reynolds and Dr. David Miles so phrased it.

So with this yuongest grandchild of King George and Queen Mary safely arrived, a name for the newcomer is the chief topic among the loyal Scottish peasants who consider her one of their own.

There have been suggestions for Margaret, which is an old Scottish name, and for Mary, after the queen, but no official statement regarding the christening has yet been made.

The little princess is fourth in succession to the British throne, her uncle, the Prince of Wales, her father, the Duke of York, and her 4-year-old sister, Princess Elizabeth, preceding her.

While a violent storm beat around the old castle last night, the royal baby was born at 9:22 p. m. Shortly afterward J. R. Clynes, British home secretary, was called into an adjoining room to attest the birth officially. He thereupon notified the Lord Mayor of London and the war office, and the news was soon flashed to all parts of the British Empire and the rest of the world.

The king and queen, who left Sandringham tonight for Balmoral Castle in Scotland, and will visit their newest grandchild soon, were in almost hourly communication with Glamis Castle all day. The Duke of York sent them frequent bulletins telling of the condition of his wife and baby.

engaged to be married but putting off his wedding until he might return from this one last adventurous fling before settling down. The dispatches reaching Oslo did not readily identify the man whose body was found near that of Andree and described as well preserved.

Andree made his great polar attempt from Danes Island, Spitzbergen, July 11, 1897. In the previous year he had failed. He had launched the idea in 1895, thirty-one years before the epochal voyage of Amundsen and the "Norge" across the pole accomplished Andree's ideal. One of the aims of the Amundsen expedition was the possible discovery of Andree and his coexplorers.

Desolate Table Land.

On a desolate table land, at the base of a high cliff some 500 feet inland, the Norse explorers came upon the camp of death on August 6. Today a Norwegian sealer, according to advices from the Horn party, was bringing the bodies and other effects of the explorers to Norway, where they will arrive early in September.

Andree's diary was expected to yield a chronology of what had occurred between the takeoff and the calamitous interruption of the sensational project. Andree had equipped the balloon with sails to steer it and increase its speed, all necessary instruments for calculating his course and an emergency lifeboat which may have figured in the safe arrival of the little party at White Island.

Only a few messages ever were received after the balloon took the air. One of these was a carrier pigeon dispatched about 47 hours after the flight had started. The burden of its message was: "All well on board. This is the third pigeon post. Andree." This was sufficient to set the whole world in a tension of excitement and anxiety for further news.

First Buoy Found.

But a year went by and no news came. In 1898 a buoy was found in which was a metal tube containing a message dropped July 11, 1897. In September, 1899, another buoy was picked up on King Carls Land, and in July, 1900, three years after the takeoff, two more were picked up in Iceland, but the metal tubes which might have contained messages were missing from them.

Then, about a month later, came the final word, when a buoy on the northern coast of Norway was found to bear this message:

"July 1, 10 p. m., G. M. T., so far our trip has gone well. * * * We are now over ice which is broken in all directions. Glorious weather. Excellent spirits. Andree, Strindberg, Frankel. Above clouds since 7:45 G. M. T."

White Island, where the bodies were found, is an isolated bit of land in the icy waters between Spitzbergen and the Fridtjof Nansen Archipelago. At first it was identified as being a tiny island north of Rudolf Island, in the latter archipelago.

Planned American Flight.

The aim of Andree's expedition was not only to reach the North Pole in the airship, but to drift with the prevailing air currents there to America.

The Horn expedition, which found the bodies, is traveling aboard the steamer Bratvaag. Their messages indicated that Andree's party had safely landed and perished while awaiting rescue. The party evidently lived some time after establishing the camp.

Andree's log book and diary were among the articles taken aboard by the captain of the Bratvaag. They are coated with ice and so far it had been impossible to open them.

On the last page of the log book, however, an entry dated July 18, 1897, can be seen.

It reads simply "83 degrees north, 32 east" and the date.

Reached More Northern Point.

This would indicate that the expedition reached a more northern latitude than has been generally supposed. The position is roughly north-northeast of White Island in a desolate region of ice.

Other equipment taken aboard the Bratvaag included two sledges, one boat, one harpoon, cooking apparatus and some utensils.

The captain of the sealer said that recent thaws and heavy rains had made the discovery possible, bringing to light the camp and the bodies from their prison of ice. Other sealers have frequently visited the same spot on the island but found nothing. He believes the ice covering the bodies only recently melted.

No hut or tent was found. Near one of the sledges lay the skeleton of a polar bear, probably killed for food by the explorers. The Horn expedition, before leaving the spot, built a cairn to mark the site of the camp.

Man Thrown From Car Uninjured in Accident

Thrown to the street from his open touring car when it overturned in a collision with another automobile at Nineteenth and K streets northwest, Edward P. Glover, 25 years old, of 427 Sixth street northeast, escaped injury in an unusual accident late yesterday afternoon.

The driver of the other car, according to Third Precinct police, was Charles R. Warring, 27 years old, of 2528 L street northwest.

MRS. OMLIE GOES TO LEAD IN FIRST LAP OF DIXIE DERBY

Gypsy Moth biplane; Mrs. Bowman, in a Fleet biplane; Miss Hopkins, in a Kitty Hawk, and Mrs. Langdon, in an Aviana. Miss Hopkins' parents and a score or more of friends were present to wish her luck.

Four planes will accompany the women fliers on the flight. Robert Oertel, of New York, manager of the contest, will precede the entrants in a Lockheed-Vega, speedy enough to prevent the pilots from chartering their courses from his ship. He will arrive at all control points in time to record arrivals.

Fly to Columbia Today.

Three planes carrying mechanics will trail the racers. A large portion of the area to be traversed is without adequate landing field facilities, and sponsors of the contest were determined to be prepared for all emergencies. Jack Wynne, manager of Hoover Field, served as chief timer of the start, and Tom Carroll, of the Washington Airport, was referee.

The derby entrants will fly to Columbia, S. C., today for lunch, after spending last night in Raleigh. They will spend tonight in Atlanta and Sunday night in Memphis, Tenn., proceeding to Elgin, Ill., on Monday. They are due in Chicago Tuesday afternoon.

Washington Airport officials made a gala event of the race's start, and all during the day crowds that hung about the field were entertained with exhibitions of stunt flying, balloon bursting and various contests. Cars began arriving at the field at 8 a. m., and by 10 o'clock parking space was at a premium.

Bingham to Start Air Races.

Chicago, Aug. 22 A.P.).—As the motors of 500 of the world's most modern aircraft roar, Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, president of the National Aeronautic Association, will raise a flag over Curtiss Airport at 1 p. m., Central daylight time, tomorrow, officially starting the tenth annual national air races.

Surrounding Senator Bingham at the ceremony will be a group including many of the country's most famous fliers, as well as crack airmen of England, France, Germany and Italy. During the afternoon these noted pilots and scores of Army, Navy, Marine and civilian fliers will take the air to form perhaps the greatest armada of flying machines ever assembled in peace times.

During the afternoon two of the seven air race derbies—the two-man race from Brownsville, Tex., and men's Atlantic derby from Miami, Fla., are scheduled to cross the finish line at Curtiss Airport.

A crowd expected to exceed 50,000 air enthusiasts also will be entertained during the afternon by a program of 20 events, including military maneuvers by Army, Navy and Marine Corps ships; two closed circuit races, a towed glider flight by Capt. Frank Hawks and circus flying by Al Williams and his five foreign aviators.

Mrs. O'Donnell Gains.

Wichita, Kans., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Successfully negotiating a severe wind and rain storm which forced three other entrants to make forced landings, Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, today increased her lead in the Long Beach-Chicago women's air derby to 1 hour and 50 minutes.

Miss Marjorie Doig, of Danbury, Conn., second in the race in elapsed time, lost her way soon after leaving Enid, Okla., but soon corrected her mistake and followed Mrs. O'Donnell into Wichita, tonight's control point.

The fliers encountered the worst weather of their trip between Amarillo, Tex., where they spent the night, and Enid, Okla., where they halted for lunch. Ruth Stewart, of St. Louis, was forced down in a corn field near Elk City, Okla. Farmers aided her in taking off again in the rain.

Two Others Forced Down.

Mildred Morgan, of Beverly Hills, Calif., was forced down near Enid, and Miss Jean Larene, of Kansas City, near Waukomis, Okla.

All of the derbyists reached Enid in time for a scheduled take-off for Wichita, however. Miss Larene was third to land in Wichita; Miss Stewart, fourth; Miss Morgan, fifth, and Miss Ruth Barron, of Hollywood, sixth.

The racers will rest here for 24 hours and take off for Kansas City at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Total elapsed times are: Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, 9:55:51; Marjorie Doig, of Danbury, Conn., 11:05:13; Mildred Morgan, of Beverly Hills, 15:00:15; Jean Larene, of Kansas City, 15:38:29; Ruth Stewart, of St. Louis, 17:10:12, and Ruth Barron, of Hollywood, 29:16:50.

Hartford-Chicago Derbyists Land.

Cleveland, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The five fliers in the Hartford to Chicago air derby arrived here from Buffalo this afternoon with their positions in the race unchanged.

The landing times and elapsed times from Buffalo were:

Verne Roberts, Moline, Ill., 2:41:34, 1:12:34; Toney Little, Philadelphia, 2:46:03, 1:16:03; J. Wesley Smith, Philadelphia, 2:47:25, 1:16:25; Charlie Myers, Cleveland, 2:55:08, 1:23:08, and Lee Brusse, Glendale, Calif., 2:59:57.

A reception will be held for the pilots tonight. They will take off again tomorrow and are due in Chicago Sunday.

Total elapsed time for the five from Hartford to Cleveland follows: Roberts, 3:44:37; Little, 3:49:37; Smith, 3:52:05; Myers, 4:05:46, and Brusse, 4:11:12.

Bad Weather Holds Three.

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Art Davis, Art Killips and George Burrell, Miami-to-Chicago air derby fliers, were held here today on account of storms over the mountains of western North Carolina and eastern Tennessee.

They will leave at dawn tomorrow for Sky Harbor, Tenn., resuming their original schedule except for the day's delay here.

Two-Man Derby Close.

East St. Louis, Ill., Aug. 22 (A.P.). Running a neck-and-neck race on the next to the last leg of their two-man derby from Brownsville, Tex., to Chicago, Jack Livingston, of Aurora, Ill., and W. G. Moore, of Kansas City, landed at Curtiss-Steinberg Airport 1 minute apart from Springfield late today. Moore landed at 4:32 p. m. and Livingston at 4:33.

Moore flew here from Springfield in 1:56 and cut 2 minutes off Livingston's unofficial elapsed time lead, reducing it to 1 hour and 12 minutes. However, Livingston beat Moore to Springfield from Tulsa this morning by 2 minutes, so that they broke even on the day's flying.

Livingston's unofficial elapsed time is 13:26:12 and Moore's is 14:38:19.

Billings, Mont., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Nick Mamer, Spokane, Wash., arrived here at 4:49:50 p. m. today, the first of the Spokane-Chicago air derby fliers to reach tonight's control point from Butte, Mont.

His elapsed time was 1:47:50. Frank Kammer, of Wenatchee, was second, landing at 4:50:38 with elapsed time of 1:46:38.

secretary of State and Ambassador to Belgium and Italy. He served as chairman of the Pan-American conference held at Santiago and also was a delegate to the conference in Havana in 1928.

"As Undersecretary of State," a White House statement said, "he had special charge of economic work of the Department of State, and his diplomatic career has entailed careful analysis of economics, trade and financial problems in connection with the United States in all parts of the world. The major part of the work of the Pan-American conferences, at which he so long represented the United States, has been along economic lines, many of their recommendations having been at Mr. Fletcher's instigation."

The present chairman of the commission is Edgar B. Brossard (Republican), Utah, and the other members are Alfred P. Dennis (Democrat), Maryland; Thomas O. Marvin (Republican), Massachusetts; Sherman J. Lowell (Republican), New York; Lincoln Dixon (Democrat), Indiana, and Frank Clark (Democrat), Florida.

All are eligible for reappointment under the reorganization and there have been indications that Brossard and Dennis would be retained.

Robrt B. Garrett, 62, Dies.

Robert B. Garrett, 62 years old, supervising receiver of the division of insolvent banks, office of the Comptroller of the Currency, died yesterday at Watkins Glen, N. Y., after an illness of several months. He made his home here at the Wardman Park Hotel. He served as a national bank examiner from 1899 until his appointment in 1924 to the position he last held.

MARLBORO CHURCH SAVED FROM FIRE

Quick Work Prevents Razing of 200-Year-Old Edifice in Prince Georges.

CARNIVAL CLOSES TODAY

Prompt action by the Upper Marlboro Volunteer Fire Department yesterday saved the more than 200-year-old Trinity Episcopal Church at Upper Marlboro from destruction. The fire had practically consumed the woodshed in the rear of the church, and the flames were licking walls of the ancient edifice when the firemen arrived.

The fire was discovered by a passerby, who notified the telephone operator at Upper Marlboro. The fire siren called out the entire company with its new pumper engine, and the fire soon was under control. Trinity Church is one of the oldest churches in southern Maryland.

Miss Margaret Suit, 19 years old, of Upper Marlboro, Md., was adjudged the "best dressed girl" at the annual carnival of the Upper Marlboro Volunteer Fire Department last night. Miss Suit was chosen from fifteen contestants at the carnival, which is being held on the Marlboro Fair Grounds.

The judges were Mrs. B. J. Cranford, Harry Lusby and W. L. Whitney. The "most popular girl" will be chosen tonight at the closing of the carnival. As all the events scheduled for tonight are under cover, rain will not interfere with the holding of the carnival.

John S. White, Mount Rainier attorney, yesterday announced his withdrawal from the race for the Democratic nomination for State's attorney. He said that his withdrawal was in the interest of party harmony. Ellis Middleton, of Upper Marlboro, also announced his withdrawal for the nomination for sheriff on the Democratic ticket.

Henry L. Thomas, colored, proprietor of a colored road house on Sheriff road near the District line, yesterday was fined $100 for operating a road house without a license and $10 on a charge of assault and battery by Judge J. Chew Sheriff in Upper Marlboro branch of Prince Georges County Police Court.

A charge of operating a disorderly house was dismissed. Thomas was arrested by county police led by Lieut. A. W. Hepburn last Sunday.

John D. Byrd, colored, was fined $101 on charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated and reckless driving. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff L. E. Dutrow.

County Policeman Frank Prince is in Chicago on a week's vacation. He is visiting his family there. Prince originally came from Chicago.

Mother Is Freed In Theft Hearing

Dismissed on Charge She Received Stolen Goods; Three Boys Held.

Charges of receiving stolen property against Mrs. Marie Elizabeth Hazel Lowe were dismissed yesterday in Police Court by Judge R. E. Mattingly, who held the woman's 18-year-old son, Harry Hazel and two other youths when they were arraigned in connection with the theft of a quantity of dresses and other wearing apparel from automobiles parked in the vicinity of Sixteenth and Q streets northwest.

Hazel was ordered held for action of the grand jury. George Lilly, 15 years old, was sent to the Industrial Home and the other youth, Joseph Callihan, alias Patrick McGowen, was turned over to the Board of Public Welfare.

Mrs. Lowe came into the limelight several months ago when her son was charged with shooting her husband. The charge later was dropped for lack of prosecution.

ing of new contracts, and were not therefore overly sympathetic to the plight of the musicians. The instructions for the operators to walk out unless the musicians were satisfied came from the national union, and must be obeyed according to that organization's rules.

The row with the musicians developed over their insistence upon renewals of old contracts, which guaranteed the employment of a definite number in each theater, regardless of whether or not they were needed. The owners announced their willingness to continue the musicians' wage scale, but refused to sign blanket contracts.

Both sides have adopted watchful waiting tactics, with each faction expecting the other to make the next move. No conferences had been scheduled last night, Mr. Brylawski said.

Maj. Jimmy Doolittle, flying nonstop from Washington, carried with him a message from President Hoover in which the Nation's Executive regretted hi sinability to attend the 1930 national air races to which the banquet, with more than 1,000 people in attendance, was an inaugural.

"These meetings and air races are a definite contribution to the development of aviation," President Hoover wrote, "suplying stimulation, incentive, demonstration, and exchange of ideas that are invaluable. I hope the occasion will be a great success."

position to determine the budgetry situation.

"The revenue during the fiscal year 1931 will be reduced as compared with that of the fiscal year 1930, but it should not be forgotten that we closed the latter year with a substantial surplus.

"While no one could definitely promise at this time that the 1 per cent reduction granted at the last session of Congress can be maintained during the calendar year 1931, I can say that after a careful review of such figures as are available at this time I have a very real hope that we may be able to make such a recommendation to Congress in December."

Mr. Mellon's expression of a "very real hope" that the 1 per cent tax cut, amounting to $160,000,000, can be continued next year sharply contrasts with Thursday's Treasury fears that there would be no surplus to permit such a tax cut next time. While Mr. Hoover was cautious in saying there is "no ground new" for predicting a deficit and higher taxes, he took care to stress the potentially favorable factors and to declare that the falling off in tariff receipts was temporary, due to anticipation of the higher rates under the so-called Grundy act.

Democrats Act Quickly.

The Democrats were quick to seize upon the situation. The Democratic national committee put out a statement by Representative Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, one of their leading tax authorities, jibing at administration "embrrassment," charging that the 1 per cent tax cut of last fall had been too highly advertised and citing how the cost of executive departments had risen $14,136,634, despite economy drives. Moreover, he cited the increases had not been in the two departments—Labor and Agriculture—which would have been justified in expansion in these times. Mr. Hull added:

"In the midst of this appalling state of affairs nine executive departments expended considerably more for their upkeep in the month of the country's direct distress than did the two departments of the Government organized and maintained to deal directly with such deplorable conditions.

"The announcement at the White House late in the afternoon that some rearrangement might be effected to avert the tax raise merely showed that either the Treasury or the President is wrong. A great deal may be accomplished by bookkeeping."

avowed wet, and has asked election on a platform calling for repeal of all national prohibition laws and putting all liquor regulation up to the States.

"As a candidate for the Republican nomination for senator last spring, I publicly declared my position as a dry," Representative McCormick said. "That is still my personal conviction. I held that there was no alternative to honest enforcement and obedience of any or all laws except that of repeal or amendment of those laws.

"However, I wholeheartedly concur with my party's expressed adherence to the principle of majority rule. Therefore, I heartily approve my party's declaration that it will be responsible to the expression on referendum questions. I shall, as senator, accept such a majority expression as a mandate from the people whom I shall represent."

The party platform, like the senatorial candidate, was neither wet nor dry, stating merely that the party will abide by the vote on the referendum in November, asking three questions: Shall the eighteenth amendment be repealed, shall the Volstead act be modified, and shall the State prohibition law be repealed?

Mrs. McCormick asserted that, both as a public officer and as a citizen, she stood for enforcement of all law in a way which would justify respect for all Federal laws. She condemned enforcement which encroached on constitutional rights of citizens.

GERMAN AVIATOR REACHES GREENLAND

this morning at 6:35 o'clock (2:35 a. m. E. S. T.) in a westerly direction and less than two hours later radioed his position as 65:50 north and 36:20 west. That placed him as traveling west, about midway between Iceland and Greenland.

The same message said that landing arrangements had been made in both Greenland and Canada, "thanks to the good assistance of Iceland." His plane was loaded with 750 gallons of gasoline.

The whole flight was somewhat of a mystery, for Capt. von Gronau indicated before he left today that he was heading back toward Germany. When he landed here last Wednesday it was at first announced that he was going to the United States and that the next stop would be Frederikshavn, Greenland. Later he said that he was going to return to Germany instead, and German officials in Berlin also said they believed he would come back to his own country.

The mystery was heightened still further this morning, when just before the take-off Von Gronau remarked:

"We shall probably be in Germany this evening."

He refused to take letters for Germany, nevertheless.

The aviator took Iceland by surprise with his departure, paying his hotel bill last night and leaving the place this morning before any one else was awake.

TAX RELIEF PROBABLE.

Pessimistic reports that the tax reduction put into effect last December could not be maintained this year are now discredited. Statements that the higher rates would probably be necessary to avoid a deficit were attributed to officials of the Treasury, but apparently they did not have the sanction of Secretary Mellon or President Hoover. Mr. Mellon states that while there is still no certainty that finances of the Government will be such as to permit retention of the lower rates, there is good reason for hoping that it will be possible.

When the $160,000,000 reduction in the 1929 taxes was voted by Congress last year it was clearly understood to be a temporary reduction to stimulate business. For that reason the reduction was made to apply to taxes for the one year only. It had the semblance of an unexpected dividend. Therefore a reversion to the rates which prevailed in 1928 could hardly be called a tax increase. But it would no doubt be so interpreted by the public, and might have an unfortunate effect on the recuperation of business.

Revenue this year will be substantially less than that of last year. Customs receipts, income taxes and miscellaneous internal revenue lag behind the figures of a year ago. But Secretary Mellon calls attention to the fact that the Treasury closed last year with a substantial surplus. In addition, President Hoover has made every effort to curtail expenditures, except where the building programs to relieve unemployment are concerned. Departments have been asked to hold their expenditures below the amounts appropriated, and to practice rigid economy in all their activities.

It will be impossible to forecast the tax rates before additional figures on both revenue and savings of the administration are available. President Hoover and Secretary Mellon may be trusted to save the public another $160,000,000, if it can be done without incurring a deficit.

The lower rates might be maintained by reducing payments on the public debt. The Government has been devoting enormous sums annually since the war to reduction of the national debt. The results have been highly gratifying, but in times of stress the wisdom of maintaining such heavy payments is open to question. The administration could ease off these payments temporarily while the country gets its breath again, and then the heavy payments could be resumed without imposing any taxation hardships.

LET IN THE LIGHT.

Assistant United States Attorney Hart started a merry controversy when, early in the week, he refused to prosecute certain liquor cases on the ground that the arrests had been made improperly, and followed up his action by critizing the police for holding prisoners in excessive bond, to the great financial advantage of professional bondsmen. Recriminations and explanations have followed in rapid order from various quarters, with the net result that the public has become confused as to whether or not a "racket" has been exposed. The situation demands clarification.

If police and bondsmen are in collusion, drastic action is called for. But no direct charges have been made and, in explanation, Maj. Pratt asserts that the scale of bonds was fixed by the police court judges themselves.

There should be an investigation of the situation by the Department of Justice. The whole process of dealing with alleged liquor law violators should be subjected to official scrutiny. All doubt in the public mind as to the honesty and integrity of the Washington police force should be removed.

FINE AMERICAN SHIPS.

Important new records in marine transportation between United States ports and Latin America are being made by newly built and newly equipped American vessels. The Grace liner Santa Clara arrived in New York Thursday just 15 days after clearing Valparaiso Harbor. One day was cut from the scheduled sailing time. The voyage from Cristobal, Canal Zone, to New York is now made in 4 days and 10 hours, which is 3 hours faster than the Santa Clara's own best previous record.

The Morro Castle, a new Ward liner, conceded to be the fastest turbo-electric vessel afloat, is now en route from New York to Havana on her maiden voyage. The Morro Castle is capable of maintaining an average speed of 20 knots per hour and is expected to reduce the running time for this voyage from 72 to about 60 hours.

The achievements of these two vessels are significant. The Santa Clara is the first ship built for the South American trade under the Jones-White act, and like the Morro Castle, is one of the finest ships ever turned out by the United States. Both are propelled by turbo-electric engines, which have been evolved by American engineers. Construction of both was made possible by the Government's policy of encouraging the merchant marine.

American shipping over South American routes has developed rapidly since 1914, when only five American-flag ships of 23,000 tons were engaged in that trade. Ninety United States vessels of 550,000 tons now ply between North and South American ports. Even more extensive development may be expected in the future so long as a policy favorable to the merchant marine is maintained.

This new evidence of the merchant marine growing in strength and popularity is highly gratifying. It is apparent that American shipping will take its rightful place upon the seas if proper encouragement and backing are continued.

MEXICO'S DEBT ADJUSTMENT.

Reports that Mexico is considering a general plan for funding its entire national debt are gratifying. The Mexican government has paid nothing to its creditors in recent years, and probably will pay nothing until a general funding agreement is reached. The best interest of both the creditors and Mexico calls for an early settlement.

A movement to provide a "Young plan" for Mexico was set in motion when reports that Mexico's bonded indebtedness had been funded through agreement with a group of international bankers. This debt amounts to less than $500,000,000, while the total of Mexico's national debts exceeds $1,100,000,000. It was immediately pointed out that if the Mexican congress should approve this settlement, other creditors would be left with no hope of payment, since Mexico's capacity to pay is limited. Payment of the bonded debt without consideration for other creditors would amount to discrimination, and would involve the government in endless difficulties.

Any plan for funding the entire debt will necessarily provide for scaling down the claims against Mexico. Unless the reduction is too drastic this will not mean actual loss to the security holders, for approximately 90 per cent of Mexico's negotiable securities are held by speculators. It is estimated that such securities have been purchased for about one-fifth of their face value.

Mexico will not be on a sound financial footing until all of its debts are funded and provision made for payment of the annual installments. This will require the development of new sources of revenue, since Mexico has been barely able to make its budgets balance in recent years without making any payments on the national debt. The Government at Washington will welcome any agreement on a reasonable basis, but individual Americans who have suffered robbery in Mexico must not be shut out by the banking committee that represents bondholders.

THE BABE AT GLAMIS.

As Britain's home secretary rushed toward Glamis Castle to perform his constitutional function of certifying the birth of a royal heir, rain beat against its mullioned windows, stabs of lightning illuminated the Scottish countryside, and crashes of thunder drowned out the roaring exhaust of his automobile. It was a night such as Shakespeare described in "Macbeth," but the inclemency of the weather did not drive the villagers from the gates, where they had taken their positions so that they might get first news of the historic birth. That the infant was a girl and not a boy disappointed them. But the babe, had it been a boy, would have stood no closer than third to the throne, while as a girl she stands fourth in the line of succession, so the disappointment was not great. The villagers rejoiced in the announcement that "both her royal highness and the infant princess are making very satisfactory progress" and their rejoicing was shared by all England.

The Duke of York enjoys popularity equal to that of his brother, the Prince of Wales. Of recent years he has devoted much attention to the problems of Britain's young people, and has come to be looked upon as their special advocate. The duchess, too, enjoys wide popularity, and England rejoices in the happiness of this young couple as much as it does in the birth of a potential future occupant of the throne.

The world, however, is interested chiefly in the drama that surrounded the birth. This was the first royal infant in three centuries to have been born on Scotland's soil, and it seems peculiarly appropriate that it should have been ushered into the world by a typically Scotch concert of the elements.

STABILIZING EMPLOYMENT.

No event in recent years has so effectively demonstrated the need for stabilized working conditions as the current business depression. Unemployment continues to be a serious problem because of the slower pace of industry and commerce. The cooperation of industrial leaders in maintaining wage scales has made a definite contribution toward stability, but much remains yet to be accomplished.

As business begins to recover it is timely to consider plans that will give the factory worker, the railroad employe and other workmen in similar circumstances the same assurance of an income that employes of the Government now have. Washington has been affected less by the depression than any other large American city because a large percentage of its inhabitants receive annual incomes and are not afraid to spend them. This means a relatively even flow of money into markets and shops. There is no need of holding back in fear of hard times ahead, because there are no hard times on the horizon of an employe with an annual salary.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is advocating adoption of the annual instead of the daily wage for all workmen. This would cause employers to spread out their production evenly over the year, he says, and eliminate lean market periods in which the country suffers from unemployment. Business men are coming to realize that unemployment is hardly more disastrous for workers than it is for themselves. Most of them are now converted to stabilized employment. The great industrial systems of the country would no doubt welcome an annual wage scale if it could be applied to the whole country, but each hesitates to take such a step alone.

Stabilization of employment must come. It is the only method by which the humps and hollows in the business curve can be ironed out. Will business put to practical use the lesson it has learned in the current slack period? It is possible that some industrial chief will see an opportunity to make a name for himself, create good will for his business and strike the first blow against future depressions by placing his employes on annual salaries.

ANTI-FREEZE POISON.

Just prior to the time when automobile owners will be laying in a supply of anti-freeze mixtures come warnings from State health authorities against the use of synthetic methanol and wood alcohol for such purposes. The first of these cautionary announcements reached the Treasury Department from Connecticut a few days ago, and now Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, commissioner of health and president of the Chicago School of Sanitary Instruction, forwards a bulletin in which he outlines the history of synthetic methanol, first produced by German chemists, which made its appearance in Buffalo, N. Y., about four years ago, with fatal results.

Methanol, which in its toxic qualities is identical with wood alcohol, according to Dr. Kegel, is poisonous when swallowed, inhaled, or absorbed through the skin, and while the toxic dose has not been accurately determined, it is known that an exceedingly small amount will produce poisonous symptoms in many individuals. Furthermore, according to the same authority, it makes little difference whether methanol or wood alcohol enters the body through the skin, the lungs or the mouth. The toxicity is due to the methanol itself and not to impurities. The purer it is the greater the danger. Synthetic and natural methanol, having the same chemical composition, have precisely the same effect upon the human system, says the Chicago scientist. He gives warning that the increased distribution of methanol for general solvent and anti-freeze purposes will bring with it an increased amount of poisoning.

FREAK LAWS

From the Topeka Daily Capital.

A great deal is said in the press and on the street of the evil of a multiplicity of laws, particularly of "fool laws," and people are so much impressed by the supposed success of legislation that probably the most popular idea at this time of an admirable government would be one in which a "truce of God" might be adopted against further lawmaking. We have heard otherwise intelligent men say that an adjournment of all legislatures for a period of, say, 10 years would be nothing short of a Godsend to business, prosperity, or whatever may be regarded as an ideal condition of things.

Yet lawmaking goes on unrestrained by anything except the minds of lawmakers year after year. One of the paradoxical things in the common abuse of laws is that everybody is always proposing the desirability of some new law, while condemning lawmaking in general. A recent new law is reported from Boston, for example, which has adopted a curfew radio ordinance. People in Boston from now on are not to be left free to follow their own personal inclinations in turning their own radio instruments on or off, the law providing that no radio can be played between 11 p. m. and 7 a. m. "in a volume greater than can be heard 50 feet." It is another arbitrary interference, as if there were not interference enough already with radio programs, with the liberties of the individual. It is another case of prohibition instead of mild regulation.

Somebody looking up the history of so-called repressive legislation has discovered that it is far from being a modern evil. It seems that as long ago as the Second Punic War between Rome and Carthage more than twenty centuries ago Roman statutes prohibited women to own more than half an ounce of jewelry or to wear clothes of varied colors or ride in a horse-drawn carriage. And seven centuries later the City of Florence prohibited persons from wearing more than two finger rings. The Boston radio interests have fought Boston's new radio ordinance and probably the Florentine jewelers of the fourteenth century denounced the restriction on jewelry. Venice, on the other hand, which had a thriving glass industry, prohibited the giving of any wedding presents except of glass, a forerunner of Mussolini's present political policy of encouraging home industry. France prohibited the wearing of gold ornaments, gems or furs, by anybody except the nobility of the country, and before the English Puritans were ever heard of England made it a crime for anybody below the rank of a Knight of the Garter to wear blue or crimson velvet. In the days of the Holy Roman Empire marriage was automatically annulled that did not result in the birth of a child in two years.

There are fewer freak laws than formerly. Strange as it may seem to many persons, progress has been made in the matter of legislating. Most of the new laws every two years in Kansas merely provide for revenue or make appropriations for the many functions of government, or are amendments of existing laws, or concern such things as drainage, or authority to local communities to do things that they ask authority to do. The number of freak laws which are restraints upon the individual citizen in one way or another are, in fact, comparatively few.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My Dear Louise:

Today I stood at a little distance and watched you entertain a youth of your own age who was unknown to me.

A middle-aged lady who stood at my elbow watched you also, and the look in her eyes was not flattering. At length she turned to me and rendered the verdict. "She is just at the age," said the lady, "when a girl is crazy about boys."

I had seen or heard nothing to indicate that you were "crazy." In fact, I thought you were conducting yourself uncommonly well. You were laughing without having anything much to laugh about, and your conversation wasn't adding anything to the world's store of wisdom, but you were obviously at ease and as obviously having a good time—and you weren't too noisy.

Outsiders don't see with the eyes of parents, however; and as to the pure all things are rotten, so to the middle-aged all young things are foolish.

Since that is true, it might pay you to mind your p's and q's a little better in public.

If you lived in a world of your own age, nothing that you do would be wrong.

Among your own kind you could laugh and shout and scream to your heart's content, and all of you could chatter at once, each doing his best to lift his voice above competition, and nobody would offer a criticism.

But when you act natural—when you are as playful and noisy and undignified as any normal young human should be—middle-aged people who are unwilling spectators will frown in disapproval and assure one another that you are "silly"—that you are making a spectacle of yourself—even that you are trying to attract attention.

Middle-aged people—poor soured creatures who are too self-conscious to have a good time any more—are very critical of youth. And because your reputation, and therefore your future, must depend on the opinion of middle-aged people, it would be a good idea to calm down when they are near.

Make your whoopee among your own kind and walk sedately in the presence of kill-joys.

That won't be hypocrisy, but merely discretion and good manners. Don't smack your lips over your lollypop in the presence of somebody who has lost his. Love,

DAD.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

SWIMMING.

I've been in swimming with the girls and boys
Who laughed to see my lips turn blue.
Swimming is not the greatest of my joys
There are some other things I'd rather do.
They say I'd like it were I somewhat fatter
I like it now until my molars chatter.

I'm one of those cold water seems to chill;
The blood of marsh ducks isn't in my veins,
A plunge or two and I have had my fill,
Nor do I care how long the crowd remains.
To youthful hearts the lake's a pleasure-giver,
But I'm not very happy when I shiver.

Day after day I hear the youngsters cry:
"Come on! Let's all go swimming!" and I say:
"I'm busy at a task I can't put by.
Tomorrow afternoon, perhaps, I may!"
What sort of sport is this, when work is chosen?
I'm never very merry when I'm frozen!

I've hung my dripping bathing suit to dry.
I've had what mother calls my annual swim.
Says she: "He seldom ventures in July,
An August day is soon enough for him.
We'll keep his suit to lend some city-comer,
Your father won't leave land again this summer."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

SPEAKING OF DROUGHT!

"Don't talk to me about this being a dry summer," sneered Elmer Twitchell today. "Compared to the summer of 1872 it's positively wet. There was a dry summer for you! I don't remember much about it, but I've heard my father tell about it. It was so hot that year that the farmers dug baked potatoes and buttered the corn right on the stalk!

* * * *

"The corn was so hot it smoldered for six weeks, and on my father's farm eleven men were overcome by smoke during one August day while trying to help the firemen stretch a hose to a point where they could turn a stream on the crop and cool it enough to allow handling. All crops were too hot to handle with the bare hands from the Fourth of July until a week after Labor Day.

* * * *

"My father wore asbestos gloves, but he got so burned picking beans—they were baked beans by that time, of course—that he never was the same man afterward. The bean crop was practically ablaze at the time and we warned dad not to go in. Some of the help rescued him by plunging in behind a bucket brigade.

* * * *

"No man could go into a cabbage field that August and come out alive unless he was well equipped with fire extinguishing chemicals and wore a gas mask. An uncle of mine hit on an idea that won him honorable mention from the President and saved the Nation millions of dollars. He bought up a lot of corned beef and then went in and sowed it sowed it among the plants. Two hours later he went in with a hose wagon and harvested the first crop of boiled corned beef and cabbage ever harvested in this country! Farmers took it up all over the country after that. The cabbage crop would have been a total loss in another 48 hours.

* * * *

"It was a trying year, I'll tell you. The cows gave boiled milk and the grass was so hot we had to wrap their legs in burlap so they wouldn't burn their feet. We lost twenty head of cattle through spontaneous combustion. A heifer broke out in flames while walking to the sheds, and before anything could be done the flames spread to nineteen others.

* * * *

"We had a tough time with the poultry. The ground was so dry and hard that every time a chicken scratched it would throw out sparks, and we had to have all the nests fitted with a water cooling device so we could get the eggs before they were roasted in the shell. The brooks and ponds were all dry and the ducks took to roosting in the tops of trees so they could get the benefit of any chance breeze."

* * * *

"How about the hogs?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

"I was coming to them," said Elmer. "We didn't have a hog on the place after mid-August. They just melted where they stood. The grease then caught fire and that's how we lost mother."

"What happened to her?"

"She was so hot she walked into the flames to get cool," concluded Elmer.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Big Variety of Birds Driven Into City by Drought—Wood Thrush Gave the Most Melodious Concert.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One thing that the recent hot dry spell in Washington did was to drive the feathered folk from their haunts in the woods to the city parks in search of water. I often ate my lunch in Franklin Park during the hot weather. I noticed that the sprinklers were kept going in the shady places for long periods. The birds would flutter under the water, take a drink, flit around, and have a merry time. Robins in particular enjoyed the cool effects of the water, and they also captured many juicy worms that were brought to the surface by the falling water. But robins were not the only birds present. There were sparrows and starlings, of course, and also blue jays, cardinals and purple grackles. Jays and cardinals are seldom found in the heart of the city.

There are some beautiful homes on Sixteenth street, out by the reservoir. These homes are close to Rock Creek Park, which is a haven for birds. The well-kept lawns are sprinkled late in the afternoon and the early evening. While walking along Sixteenth street I noticed many birds congregated around the lawns that were being watered. In one front yard there was a cardinal, a brown thrasher, a wood thrush, a chewink or towhee, a tufted titmouse, several chickadees, a yellow-billed cuckoo and several kinds of warblers. This group of birds was making merry with song while they bathed. The song of the wood thrush was more melodious than that of any of the other birds. I certainly enjoyed the sight of these birds within the city limits. A. W. K.

Tragic Winter Faces Farm Communities in Virginia—No Vegetables, Corn or Meat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having read your editorial of Wednesday, entitled "Aftermath of the Drought," I feel I must correct your impressions of Virginia, for whatever the situation in other afflicted States, the reports from here are not "exaggerated."

Not since the Civil War have the farmers and working people faced such a tragic winter as this promises to be, for after a drought that has lasted since March the corn crop could not be saved if it rained for forty days.

Those who have made twenty barrels of corn to the acre hope to make one barrel, and they will be the lucky ones, for others have cut their crop for ensilage, and saddest of all are those who have had to turn their cattle into the cornfield to keep them alive.

The hay has been used the same way, because there is nothing but chaff in the pastures, and honeysuckle is keeping many an animal alive. Those who bought sheep at $15 a head are glad to sell them for $3 rather than buy food for the winter, and one farmer is offering a herd of young Jerseys to any one as a gift, as he can neither sell nor feed them, and so far he has been unable to give them away.

A banker told me that many farmers mortgaged their crops in the spring to buy fertilizer, &c., and now with no crops they face destitution. Vegetable gardens are completely gone, which not only means hunger now, but nothing saved or canned for the winter. No corn for hogs means an empty meat house as well as meal bag, and these conditions exist in nearly all of Virginia except where a few showers have improved the pasture.

I could go into this at length, but I have said enough already to give you a truer insight, and living as I do in the center of a farming and gardening community, I am speaking from personal experience and observation. MRS. LESLIE H. GRAY.

"Drought" Raises the Gorge of R. S. K., Who Would Bar It From the Language.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For the past six weeks the papers have been literally drenched with the word "drought." It is such an ugly word that it should be expurgated. "Drouth" is spelled more easily, it sounds more pleasant, and it seems to be the better form in every respect. The dictionary gives both forms, drought and drouth, but preference seems to be given to the ugly-sounding, ugly-looking "drought." The more it is repeated the more distasteful it becomes in sound, spelling, and meaning. I am in favor of dropping this detestable word from the English language. R. S. K.

Toll Road to Great Falls Not Kept in Repair.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I took a motor trip to Great Falls a few days ago and was amazed at the poor condition of the road after having passed the toll gate. It is seldom one encounters a toll gate in the vicinity of Washington, and after motorists pay to pass the gate they expect to find a fair road at least. The road from the Chain Bridge to the toll gate is in fair shape, but from then on it turns into a mass of bumps and hollows. Where does this money go that is collected from all the motorists who pass along this road to see the scenic beauties of Great Falls? It certainly does not go toward improving the road.

This short stretch of road between the toll gate and Great Falls is in sad need of repair, and the State of Virginia should see to it that the repairs are made.

Reader Sees No News in Roumania's Royal Scandal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As the shadows grow long it is sometimes hard to keep up with the changing definitions of the day. Please advise us whether the Associated Press still holds to the old yarn about having to report when a man bites a dog.

If so, why do they have to give nine inches of front page in your Thursday issue to the clear case of the dog biting a man—that is, by dragging out the uninteresting final details of the Roumanian dirty linen?

Harriet Adams Arranges Big African Tour

Ethiopian Coronation Is Included in Capital Woman's Plans.

By JEAN ELIOT.

WHILE attendance at the coronation of the Emperor of Ethiopia is the most picturesque event in prospect in Mrs. Franklin Adams' proposed "grand tour," the itinerary for the journey on which she is about to embark includes much else that is of exceeding interest. As Harriet Chalmers Adams, Mrs. Adams is internationally known as explorer, geographer, lecturer and writer upon the little known places of the globe.

In the course of an adventurous life she has visited every country in the world which was ever under the domination of Spain or Portugal, involving much globe trotting in Asia, Africa and South America. And before many months she will have completed a survey of all the Italian possessions in Africa, begun last summer when she visited Italian Lybia in search of material for a delightful series of articles.

Sailing on September 11, Mrs. Adams expects to go first to Spain. She will be accompanied so far by her sister, Mrs. Lander Redmond, of San Francisco, who will settle down in some quaint little Spanish town while Mrs. Adams goes prospecting into more remote regions of the world. And before setting forth for Ethiopia, Mrs. Adams will spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Stewart in Barcelona. Mr. Stewart, who is our consul general at Barcelona, and Mrs. Stewart have recently returned to their post after a prolonged visit in Washington.

From a Mediterranean port, Mrs. Adams will embark for Djibouti, the port of Ethiopia, a ten-day cruise touching at Port Said and Suez and involving the passage of the Red Sea, and from Djibouti she will go by rail to Addis Ababa, capital of the reborn Ethiopian empire, where the coronation ceremonies are to take place. The port is in French Somali Land and the journey into the interior takes three days, as the train travels only by day, with stopovers each night at picturesque rest houses.

In Addis Ababa, Mrs. Adams will be the guest of Mr. Addison E. Southard, United States Minister to Ethiopia, and Mrs. Southard, who are old friends. She will be with them for a month, including the period devoted to the coronation ceremonies at which she will be an "unofficial observer." Mrs. Adams is taking cameras along, with the hope of securing many fascinating pictures, and while in the country she expects to make a study of the high-class women of Abyssinia, about whom little is known but who are described as being exceptionally intelligent and handsome.

From Addis Ababa Mrs. Adams expects to journey into Italian Somali Land and into Eritrea, thus completing her round of Italy's African provinces, and afterward she will visit Southern Arabia and cruise up the Persian Gulf to Iraq. How one would love to follow her into these lands, whose very names suggest romantic possibilities! In the early spring the traveler will return to Spain, where Mr. Adams, the Counselor of the Pan-American Union, will meet her and will spend a long delayed vacation.

In Spain Mrs. Adams will devote herself to digesting the fruit of her travels, which will later find its way to a receptive public in the form of magazine articles and, perhaps, a book or two.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor M. Anderson who make their home at 4514 Connecticut avenue, are guests at the Grove Park Inn in the mountains at Asheville, N. C.

Engagement Announced

Harris & Ewing.

MISS MARIE GILLESPIE, daughter of Mr. George J. Gillespie, of New York, whose engagement to Mr. Sidney H. Lane, is announced. She has been a frequent visitor in Washington.

Miss Gillespie Is Engaged to New Yorker

Bride-to-Be Has Been Often Guest of Gordons in Capital.

The engagement of Miss Marie Gillespie, of New York, to Mr. Sidney H. Lane, son of Mrs. William J. Lane and the late Mr. Lane, of Dublin, Ireland, has been announced by Miss Gillespie's father, Mr. George J. Gillespie.

Miss Gillespie, who frequently has been the guest in Washington of Justice and Mrs. Peyton Gordon, attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart and Manhatanville College in New York. She has engaged in philanthropic work having been associated with the Junior Auxiliaries of St. Vincent's Hospital and the Foundling's Hospital and the Barat Settlement in New York.

Mr. Lane attended Belvedere College and Trinity College, Dublin. He now is in the insurance business in New York.

The wedding will take place in November in St. Patrick's Cathedral where Mr. Gillespie and his two other children were married.

De Lignes Are Guests Of Vanderbilts.

Princess de Ligne, wife of the Ambassador of Belgium, and her daughter, Princess Elizabeth de Ligne, are the guests of Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Vanderbilt at Beaulieu, their Newport estate. Among the other guests of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Vanderbilt are Mr James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to the Court of St. James; Mr. Charles Hanford and Mr. Coster Wilmerding. A dinner was given by the hosts last night at Beaulieu and they will entertain again on Sunday.

Princess de Ligne and her daughter will return to Washington Monday, and will join the ambassador in their cottage near Annapolis. The ambassador is spending a few days in town, and will return to Maryland for the week-end.

Mr. Frederick Sterling, United States Minister to the Irish Free State, and Mrs. Sterling are guests of her mother, Mrs. John R. Williams, at her summer home at Beverly Farms, Mass. They expect to go to Saratoga while the races are on, returning to the North Shore for a longer visit and will then spend some time with Mrs. Sterling's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter.

Mr. Moneyway Plans Trip to South.

Mr. Lewis Lofton Moneyway will leave Washington today for a trip South, visiting New York before his return. He will visit his mother and other relatives in Mobile and will go to New Orleans and several cities in Florida. While in the South Mr. Moneyway will give several lectures on short story writing.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pulver left Washington yesterday for Gibson Island, Md., for a short stay. Since her return from Europe Mrs. Pulver has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Alexander Legare, at York Village, Me., and she left her small son with Mr. and Mrs. Legare when she came to Washington.

Mrs. Montgomery Blair, who has been spending the summer at Easthampton, Long Island, is at the Weylin Hotel in New York for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Perot, jr., of Washington, are also at the Weylin.

Mr. William J. B. Macaulay, Charge d'Affaires of the Irish Free State, and Herr zu Puttlitz, Secretary of the German Embassy, are at the Ambassador Hotel, New York, for a short stay.

Mrs. Kenna Elkins, who is at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., will return to Washington early in September.

Mrs. Alexander Gregg, jr., has returned from Scarsdale, N. Y., where she has been the guest for several weeks of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Will S. Gregg.

Returns to Town

Bachrach.

MISS LALLA LYNN has rejoined her mother, Mrs. Richard Henry Lynn, in Washington after spending some time in Virginia Beach. Mrs. Lynn was at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., through the early summer.

Castles Visit In Hot Springs For Holidays

Bath County Horse Show Attended by Many Notables.

Mr. William R. Castle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State, who has been acting Secretary in the absence of Secretary Stimson, has gone to Hot Springs, Va., accompanied by Mrs. Castle, for a brief holiday. There they joined former Secretary of State and Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg and they were in the notable company attending the opening yesterday of the annual Bath County Horse Show. Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg had several guests in their box, having timed their arrival at the Springs to take in the show.

Other prominent members of Washington society seen at the Horse Show were Mr. and Mrs. James Parmelee, Mrs. George Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Gruver, Mrs. Francis S. Whitten and Miss Francine Whitten, Mr. Grant Wilmer, Miss Ellen W. Harshburger, Dr. Charles Noble Gregory, Mrs. Armstead Davis, Mr. and Mrs. H. Campbell Graef, Capt. and Mrs. Raymond E. Lee and others.

Miss Anne DuPont, of Wilmington, Del., entertained several guests during the show, occupying one of the prominent boxes, and others who had guests included Mr. and Mrs. Fay Ingalls, Mrs. George Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Kilborn, Capt. and Mrs. William Talbot, Baron and Baroness Rosenkrantz, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Jones 3d, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Leavitt, Dr. John H. Girvin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Ingalls, Mr. and Mrs. George Warrington, Senator James A. O'Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ticknor, Marquis and Marchesa Gianni Carignani, Mrs. Otho Ball, Col. and Mrs. J. Wray Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Cross, Lieut. Gov. and Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman and scores of others.

The Commissioner General of Immigration and Mrs. Harry E. Hull have as their guests at the Wardman Park Hotel Mrs. J. T. Guisendorfer, her son, Mr. Theodore Guisendorfer, and her nephew, Mr. Marvin Payne, of Illinois.

Mrs. Guisendorfer, with her son and nephew, will leave in a few days for New York to meet Prof. Guisendorfer, who will arrive from Europe. Prof. Guisendorfer is a professor of German at the University of Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins and Warren Robbins, jr., are passing a few days at Saratoga for the racing, and were guests on Thursday of Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of Gov. Franklin Roosevelt, of New York, in the governor's box.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. McNally, of Chevy Chase, entertained at dinner last night in honor of Miss Ethel Barrymore Colt, who is making a short stay with Miss Peggy Walsh before leaving for Cleveland, where she is to make her stage debut with her mother, Miss Ethel Barrymore.

Those present were, besides Miss Colt, Miss Walsh, Miss Betty McNally, Miss Ruth Richards, Mr. Grant English, Mr. Robert McNally, Mr. Clark Brandt and Mr. Bernard Heaton.

Mrs. Francis S. Whitten, of New York and Washington, and her daughter, Miss Francine Whitten, have taken one of the homestead cottages at Hot Springs, Va.

Mrs. Henry Leonard and daughter, Miss Ellen W. Thoron, are in New York.

Bettina Parker Will Wed William C. Martin.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward P. Parker, of Charleston, S. C., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Bettina Parker, to Mr. William C. Martin, also of Charleston. VOTES for WOMEN!

Whether or not you recall the days when this was the hue and cry of the militant and derisively termed "Suffragette," you will be interested in reading the article—

Suffrage's Militant Matriarch

Which Will Appear in the

SUNDAY TABLOID MAGAZINE
The Washington Post

HERE is an interesting and timely resume of the life work of Susan B. Anthony, mother of the woman's suffrage movement in America. Beginning as a school teacher, this resourceful woman—encouraged by a helpful father and aided by a devoted sister—waged a heroic fight for the Constitutional Amendment that now is completing a decade of effectiveness. This engrossing chronicle was written by Mary Jane Moore.

ST. GABRIEL'S OPENS CARNIVAL ON MONDAY

Two Weeks of Festivities Will Be Inaugurated With Parade.

CHARITY SESSION AGENDA

Ten years ago St. Gabriel's Catholic Parish was worshipping in a small wooden hut that had been brought over from Aberdeen, Md., where it had been used for K. of C. wartime activities. The congregation was small but energetic. Under the guiding hand of Bishop John M. McNamara, the pastor of the parish, it has had a wonderful growth and is now completing one of the most beautiful church edifices in Washington.

In the first year St. Gabriel's gave a small carnival—it really was a modest lawn fete—and each year since it has given a larger carnival. Beginning next Monday night it will put on a large two-week carnival, to run through September 6.

Two Score of Booths.

There will be two score booths, numerous amusements and an industrial exhibit. Washington merchants and firms will participate. The carnival will open with a parade of decorated vehicles and floats, which will follow a line of march from Fourteenth street and Park road to Grant circle. Several bands of music have been obtained.

From the wooden hut St. Gabriel's has grown until it has an episcopal residence, a large school, a convent and the nearly completed church. It is a monument to Bishop McNamara's administrative ability. Much of the funds that went into this enterprise came from these annual carnivals.

Charities Session Plans.

The National Conference of Catholic Charities will hold its sixteenth annual meeting in Washington from September 28 to October 2. Prominent Catholics from all over America will be here in attendance.

Committees are now actively at work making arrangements for the convention. Dr. Charles P. Neill is executive chairman of the local committee. Vice chairmen are: George J. Cleary, George H. O'Connor and Miss Mary V. Merrick. The treasurer is M. F. Calnan, and the secretary, Francis A. McCann.

Other members of the executive commitee are: Henry J. Auth, Joseph A. Berberick, Miss Mary C. Boland, W. B. Castonguay, James A. Colliflower, Dr. H. J. Crosson, William J. Dante, Charles W. Darr, Dr. John Ryan Devereaux, Miss Elizabeth J. Dolan, John Hadley Doyle, the Right Rev. P. C. Gavan, James H. Johnson, Miss Mary Mattingly, Arthur J. May, George J. May, Allen Pope, George E. Potter, the Rev. Dr. Lawrence J. Sheahan and Joseph D. Sullivan.

Chairmen on the committees on arrangements are: Men's committee on membership and attendance, George H. O'Connor; women's committee on membership and attendance, Miss Gertrude Marsden; committee on parish representation, W. D. Beller; committee on housing, Miss Mary Mattingly; committee on registration, Miss Mary C. Boland; committee on local speakers, John Hadley Doyle; committee on entertainment, William P. Normoyle; committee on publicity, Will P. Kennedy; committee on transportation, Joseph D. Fitzgerald; committee on halls and meeting places, Dr. John Ryan Devereaux; committee on music, Miss Jennie Glennon; reception committee, John H. Pellen; committee on exhibits, Thomas K. Gallaher.

Many Important Questions.

At this conference a number of important projects will be reported upon. Among them will be the report of a special committee making a survey of Catholic action among the Spanish and Mexican people in the United States.

Through another committee, the relations between Catholic agencies and community chests will be reported upon.

A third project of importance to be discussed at the meeting is methods in the prevention and treatment of juvenile delinquency. Special emphasis will be laid on chaplain service in penal institutions and protective work among Big Brothers and Big Sisters.

The family committee of the National Conference of Catholic Charities at this meeting will set forth its findings on the general trends of Catholic relief. It will try to explain the reason for increased relief budgets over a period of ten years.

Representatives of more than 600 child-caring homes, of more than 500 hospitals, of nearly 50 homes for the aged, as well as many directors, supervisors and social workers in diocesan agencies of charities will be represented at the meeting.

Services in Pohick Church.

The Rev. E. W. Mellichampe, formerly of the Pohick Church, Pohick, Va., will hold services there Sunday. The church was at one time attended by George Washington.

First American Toc H Branch Is in Capital

Impressive Rites Feature Meeting on Weekly Guest Night; Student from Washington Responsible for Establishment of Organization in City.

By ELISABETH E. POE.

Washington has the honor of possessing the first branch in the United States of "Toc H," an international nonsectarian Christian movement among men, which has fellowship and service to others as its keynote. The Prince of Wales is the patron of Toc H. With his own hand the prince wrote: "We must all lend a hand in helping to build Toc H, because Toc H itself is a power house for helping others." The prince once said also of the movement: "There is a saying, 'Youth must be served.' We in Toc H say 'Youth must serve.'"

Furthermore, the "Lamp of Maintenance," a symbolic light which is lit at all the meetings of Toc H at Mark 1," its Washington headquarters, at 1324 Eighteenth street northwest, was first lighted from the beautiful silver parent lamp in All Hallows Church, London, England, relit annually by the Prince of Wales as chief patron, and kept ablaze perpetually through the year.

Many seeing the words "Toc H" have asked "What is Toc H?" It has been called the new youth movement a fellowship of service, but perhaps the best explanation is that given in one of its own pamphlets: "Toc H is a spirit rather than an organization; the spirit of Christianity expressed in service and comradeship between man and man. It is a living memorial to those who by the gift of their lives in war or peace, stand before the world examples of service and sacrifice."

The Toc H. movement was brought to Washington as the result of a world-wide tour of the Rev. P. B. Clayton, founder of Toc H., several years ago when he spoke at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., where a Washington student, Craig Wylie, son of Mrs. Katherine V. H. Wylie, of this city, heard the story of Toc H. with absorbed interest.

Young Mr. Wylie repeated it to his mother and through her assistance and cooperation a Toc H. house—the first in America—was opened on P street in Georgetown. Later Mrs. Wylie presented the house at 1324 Eighteenth street northwest to the Washington branch of Toc H, and it became Mark I of the organization in the United States.

From that beginning in Washington the movement has spread to many parts of the United States. It is also taking root in American schools and universities. Young Craig Wylie, now a Harvard student, whose eager discipleship of the new movement brought it to Washington, is its college correspondent in Harvard. There are others at Amherst, Princeton, and Yale, as well as in a dozen or so secondary schools of the country.

The executive committee of Toc H. in Washington includes the following members: Chairman, Coleman Jennings; vice chairman, Woodson F. Houghton; treasurer, Merritt O. Chance; Clarence Aspinwall, the Rev. H. Woodfall, Nelson T. Johnson, now Ambassador to China; William Hurd Hill, William H. Beck, Hopewell H. Darnellle and Chauncey G. Parker, jr. The warden of Toc H. House is George Pennell, and the branch secretary is August Sperry.

The writer had the pleasure recently of visiting Toc H. at one of the weekly guest nights. The guest speaker was Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida. She was in one of her happiest moods and told of her experiences as a war nurse with Gen. Allenby's army.

After the singing of Toc H. songs by the members, the Jobmaster of Mark 1 called for reports from the members as to unselfish service they had given to others since the last reports.

This was one of the most impressive parts of the evening, for, in simple words the men told how they had found ways to serve others in Washington. Some had visited the Home for the Incurables, bringing magazines, news of the outside world and good cheer to these shutins. Others had visited veterans at Walter Reed and other hospitals of the city. Another Toc H man had worked with a Boy Scout troop, still another with the Sea Scouts. Among the other jobs reported were services in the settlement houses, Noel House and Neighborhood House, with the Christ Child Society, with St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, Sunday school closes in various churches of the city, the Y. M. C. A., with the Big Brother organizations and other young people's organizations of Washington, the Boys Club, while as a corporate job Toc H had a complete team in the Community Chest drive, going 30 per cent over the quota assigned to them and providing two divisional chairmen for the drive as well.

A notable feature of the Toc H. year is the annual rededication to their task known as the "Service of Light." This year this Service of Light was held in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral.

It was impressive when the lamp, preceded by the choir, and followed by padres and members, was carried in procession up the main aisle of the chapel to the singing of the "Hymn of Light." The phrases of dedication were spoken by the chief officers of the branch. Then, with the body of the chapel plunged in darkness, the lamp was lighted from the Gospel candle on the alter by the jobmaster and padre. The questions of initiation were put and all the members made answer; tapers were kindled at the lamp and the flame passed along the line, until every member held his light, symbol of his own pledge to shine.

Columbia B.Y.P.U. Group Will Meet

Plans Will Be Discussed for Baptist Hyattsville Retreat.

The executive committe of the Columbia Federation Baptist Young People's Union will meet Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer, 58 Franklin avenue, Hyattsville, to discuss plans for the retreat, which will be held September 6 and 7. All unions have been requested to send two delegates to this retreat when a calendar for the coming year will be formulated and local union problems will be discussed.

"Christian Education" will be the subject of an address by Vernon Bateman at Temple Union tomorrow evening.

Bethany Unions Nos. 1 and 2 will have a joint meeting tomorrow evening when Union No. 2 will present the program. Both unions will have charge of the church service at 8 o'clock when the reports of the San Francisco convention will be given by several delegates. Among those assisting at this presentation will be Mr. John Ruthven and various members of West Washington Union.

"Amusements" is the subject for discussion at First Church Union Sunday evening at 6:45 o'clock. Duncan Price and Group No. 2 will present the program. Howard Mason and Group 8 will give the Bible quiz and Alba Geraci and Group 6 will have charge of the social hour at 6:15.

Alec Turnbull's group will have charge of the program at National Baptist Memorial Union tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock.

Church of Brethren Plans Union Service

Union services in the Southeast section will be held tomorrow evening at the Church of the Brethren, Fourth street and North Carolina avenue, and the Rev. George E. Brown, pastor of the North Carolina Avenue Methodist Protestant Church, will preach.

Five churches are in this union, and the host this time is Dr. F. F. Holsopple, who has been writing the "Sentence Sermon" for the church page this month.

Covenant to Hear Minister of Troy

Preacher Is Old Friend of Dr. McCartney, of the Church.

Another old friend of Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, minister of the Church of the Covenant, will fill his pulpit Sunday morning, and again the following Sunday morning, in the person of Dr. Frederick W. Evans, now pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Troy, N. Y. Dr. Evans does not confine his friendship to just one of the four famous McCartney preachers, for he was a classmate at Seminary with Dr. Clarence Edward McCartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, and they, too, have an abiding faith in each other. To say that Dr. Evans loves one McCartney better than he does the other McCartney might be speaking outside the record, for the chances are that he loves them both alike.

For a number of years—in fact, since he left Seminary—Dr. Evans has held several important pastorates. Among these were the following: Montview Boulevard Presbyterian Church, Denver, Colo.; First Presbyterian Church, Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Harlem Presbyterian Church, New York City.

On September 7, the Rev. Dr. Robert A. Blair, the blind preacher of Parnassus, Pa., will fill the Covenant pulpit, and by the following Sunday Dr. McCartney will be back from his vacation in California.

Bible Conference Closes Tomorrow

Program at Massanetta Is Directed by Eminent Ministers.

One of the most successful Bible conferences held in the territory contiguous to Washington closes tomorrow with a big program, after having been in session for several weeks. Its domicile was at Massanetta Springs, 4 miles from Harrisonburg, Va.

Among the speakers on the program were Dr. J. Stuart Holden, pastor of St. Paul's Church, London, England; Dr. William Evans, the noted Bible teacher; Dr. Lionel B. Fletcher, of New Zealand; Dr. S. D. Gordon, whose "Quiet Talks" are known all over the world; Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, the well-known pastor of Broadway Tabernacle Church, New York; Dr. Robert E. Speer, Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, Dr. John A. Hutton, editor of the British Weekly; Dr. Charles R. Erdman, of Princeton Seminary, and seventeen prominent ministers of the Southern Presbyterian Church. The music, which was a big feature of the conference, was in charge of Mr. G. A. Lehman, assistant director of the Westminster Choir School, of Dayton, Ohio.

A number of people from Washington attended this conference, and among them were the following: Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Munch, Mrs. C. M. Balsom, Mrs. Mary L. Buckingham, Miss Dorothy Buckingham, the Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Hawthorne and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Prentice, Mrs. W. A. Winkelham, Miss Martha N. Garner, Miss Olive D. Love, Mrs. I. H. Crabill, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hanger, Mrs. M. R. Fitton, Mr. and Mrs. Lester D. O'Flaherty and Mrs. G. L. Hoyme.

Tabernacle to Hear Preacher and Wife

One preacher in a family is often enough, but this is not so with the Smith family of Canada, who have been holding the fort at the Full Gospel Tabernacle during August, while the pastor, the Rev. H. L. Collier, is in the mountains.

The Rev. C. B. Smith preaches in the morning, and his wife preaches in the evening. Tomorrow he will lift a hymn and expound the Word concerning God's eagles. His wife will talk about Paradise. Each Tuesday evening Mr. Smith conducts a divine healing service and the next night Mrs. Smith follows with a feature service.

Divinity Student to Preach.

A young divinity student, Mr. Russell Wight, who is taking a course in theology at Moody Northfield Seminary, will occupy the pulpit of the Ninth Street Christian Church tomorrow. The pastor, Dr. B. H. Melton, is spending August in Florida.

CHURCH WILL HEAR DR. HENRY ANSTADT

Former Pastor to Preach at Luther Place Memorial Services Today.

NOW IN CHAMBERSBURG

A very large congregation, in all probability, will greet the Rev. Dr. Henry Anstadt at Luther Place Memorial Church Sunday morning. He is no stranger to that fine people, for not so very long ago he was their pastor, being third in the line of succession from that grand old man, the late Dr. John G. Butler, who founded the church and was for 36 years its pastor.

When Dr. Butler died, he was succeeded by the Rev. Dr. Lloyd C Douglass, now minister of a Congregational Church in Canada, and then came Dr. Anstadt, who served until eleven years ago, when he was succeeded by Dr. George N. Diffenderfer, who resigned a year ago to be succeeded by Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, the present brilliant minister.

It is a beautiful custom these Lutherans have, to invite their former pastors back for a renewing of the old ties of friendship. Dr. Anstadt has not been so far removed from them during these intervening years, no farther than Chambersburg, which figures largely in American history as the home of noted Pennsylvania statesmen and journalists, and also the farthest point north reached by Gen. Lee's army.

It was the only northern town that felt the iron heel of war during that terrible blood-letting, for it was burned by the famous General Jubal A. Early, of Virginia, on a raid into Pennsylvania, when its fathers declined to turn over to his army certain much-needed moneys they had stored in a bank vault.

There are no scars of Mars on the face of Chambersburg now, though some may linger in the hearts of the people there. It is a lovely city, having a college or two, fine churches and able pastors. The noted old Central Presbyterian Church there recently called the Rev. Henry B. Wooding, of Eckington Presbyterian Church, but he declined the call.

Dr. Anstadt is regarded as a preacher of ability, and socially he is said to have many graces. His welcome in his old pulpit is sure to be kindly and warm hearted, and some of the brethren will certainly invite him home to dinner after service and feed him fried chicken, which contrary to general repute, is not an individualistic Methodist dish. It is the king's dish reserved for the visiting minister always.—D. R. B.

Dr. Ward to Preach To Congregationalists

Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, minister of the First Congregational Church, is still absent in Europe on his vacation and his pulpit will be filled again tomorrow by the celebrated English Congregational minister, the Rev. J. W. G. Ward, of Detroit.

Besides being the author of a number of books on religious topics, Dr. Ward is a preacher of parts, having unusual dramatic ability which is said to heighten the eloquence of his sermon appeals.

Fifth Baptist to Hear Dr. Weston Bruner

"Why should the Lord's work stop in summer?" asks Dr. John E. Briggs, minister of the Fifth Baptist Church, "the popular people's church," in a letter to the Church Page. The answer is probably that the Lord's work never stops—summer or winter. He is unhasting, unresting and never takes a vacation.

Dr. Briggs, however, is just a man, who burns up a lot of energy in his work among his people, and while he is resting his pulpit is being filled by Dr. Weston Bruner, the long-time pastor there.

Two Visiting Preachers At Chevy Chase Baptist

Chevy Chase Baptist Church, whose pastor, the Rev. Edward Clark, is on his vacation, will have two visiting ministers tomorrow, and this is a most unique situation. One of the visitors is the Rev. John D. Clark, of Towson, Md., the father of the pastor, who will preach a story sermon to the children; and the other visitor is the Rev. F. F. Leonard, of Baltimore, who is the father of a prominent layman in the Chevy Chase Baptist Church.

GETS A BIBLE

MRS. HERBERT HOOVER.

BAPTIST MINISTER HOME FROM OHIO

Dr. Ray Palmer Will Preach at Bethany Church Tomorrow.

AID FOR DR. STEVENSON

Dr. Ray Palmer, Baptist minister, who resides at 18 East Bradley lane, Chevy Chase, has returned from Columbus, Ohio, where for the past four months he has been supplying the pulpit at Hill Crest Baptist Church. Tomorrow he will preach for Bethany Baptist Church, at the corner of Second street and Rhode Island avenue northwest, while the pastor, Dr. Hugh T. Stevenson, is on his vacation.

No Baptist minister is better known throughout the length and breadth of the South than Dr. Palmer, and in many sections of the North. A native of Jackson, Miss., his father was a true blue Yankee and his mother a true blue Rebel—only you musn't call 'em Rebels in Mississippi. This combination makes a pretty good American, and in Dr. Palmer's case it worked out most happily.

Some of the proudest patrician families in Dixie had Puritan ancestry, and then some of the most prominent after-the-war clans down there had fathers who wore the blue or mothers who were called "Yankee school marms." When they get together around the festive board, where they have baked hams and pies and ice cream and corn muffins and other real Southern dishes, they do not ask any questions about the war but "Are you a Baptist? Deep water or swimmin' hole? Hard Shell or Missionary? Prayin' or shoutin,' or both?"

The Baptist Church has been a great leveler in the South, always leveling up, never down, and always Democratic. It keeps the Methodist Church from becoming too respectable. And in this leveling process Dr. Palmer has played his part, for he has often called the mourners to repentance and seen them fall at the altar before his powerful exposition of the old time religion.—G. R. B.

Annual C. E. Picnic Set for September 20

The annual field day and picnic of the District of Columbia Christian Endeavor Union will be held on Saturday September 20 at the Sixteenth Street Reservoir. Mr. Harry Thomas, recreation superintendent of the union, will have charge of all arrangements for the day. The Junior, Intermediate and Senior Unions will participate in this field day. At the close of the day the three groups will unite in a vesper service led by the president. All arrangements for the Junior picnic will be made by Mrs. Smid, union superintendent of the Juniors.

During the past week the vice president, corresponding secretary, treasurer and recreation superintendent, met in conference with the president, Robert Lyon, and planned their work for the new year.

Sentence Sermons

By DR. F. F. HOLSOPPLE

(Pastor of Washington City Church of the Brethren.)

"It is not in man that walketh to direct his steps." Jer. x:23.

There is a famous picture which has been widely circulated, called "The End of the Trail." It represents a man on horseback surrounded by a desert. Both man and horse are utterly exhausted with weariness, hunger and thirst. The horse is in the act of stumbling for the last time and the man seems to be in the act of drawing his cloak about him. The artist has presented in a gripping way a picture of infinite pathos and tragedy.

We are in a position much like that. Ever since the collapse of the stock market last November, the wisest and best of our business leaders have been exerting every influence in their power to restore confidence and the orderly processes of business. Bankers and statesmen have done all that is humanly possible to render assistance. Yet millions of assets have apparently vanished into thin air, and anxiety and foreboding still harass the minds of men; bread lines are lengthening, unemployment is on the increase, poverty stalks abroad.

For two decades prosperity has not been a tidal wave but an inundation, but now we seem to have reached the end of the trail. To add to the picture the far reaching but unparalleled drought has wrought devastation to our agricultural interests. Productive fields over vast areas are burned brown and bare. The corn crop has been hopelessly blasted and the belated rains that are now falling will do little toward increasing the yield. The business and agricultural worlds, on which we all depend, seem to have reached the end of prosperity's trail.

Two thousand years ago Jesus, followed by an infuriated mob, seemed to His followers to have reached the end of His trail as He was crucified on Calvary. However, they were in error. He had only reached a turn in the road that continued to the resurrection, ascension and enthronement. His influence that seemed at an end has not ceased to dominate the thoughts of multiplied millions of the world's leaders. Hope that seemed forever extinguished has been relighted in countless spirits.

"It is not in man that walketh to direct his steps." In the crisis that has come upon us there is a Power at work that shapes the destiny of men. We have not reached the "end of the trail," and this is no time to give way to despair. Humanity has only been looking toward a turn in the road and not the end of the trail. For more than a generation we have been interested too much in things. Like children we have been playing with toys, and more toys. The time has come to take account of our stock. We are learning that all outward semblances are transient. Only thoughts endure. Only spiritual values are real and permanent. We must now turn our thought toward our spiritual inheritances, for in these true riches reside. "It is not in man that walketh to direct his steps." "His ways are ordered of the Lord."

MRS. HOOVER SENDS FLOWERS TO CLASS

Bible Given Her by Mothers Is Remembered With Bouquet of Roses.

MADE VISIT LAST YEAR

Down in the Gospel Mission on John Marshall place, there is a class known as the Mother's Class, composed of very poor women, who toil for their scanty living. This class is quite an institution in the mission, and its members are most faithful in attendance upon the regular Friday meetings of their organization. Those who attend every meeting for three months without interruption are given a Bible, which they cherish above all other gifts.

Mrs. Harvey T. Prentice, wife of the superintendent of the mission, organized the class, and is its regular teacher. Ever so often she has prominent women come down and make formal and informal talks to these women, and the highest honor yet paid the class was when Mrs. Herbert Hoover went down about a year ago, on the twenty-third anniversary of the founding of the class, and made an informal address to her less fortunate sisters.

At Christmas time those who heard the First Lady of the Land, and those who have since joined the class, began collecting a fund to be used in getting a suitable present for Mrs. Hoover.

Pennies Swell Sum.

This fund came from penny contributions, and it grew slowly, for these women are indeed very, very poor. Finally it had reached $2.63 by the time of the annual anniversary, which comes in May, and generous friends of the Gospel Mission, who had heard of the fund and were watching its growth with interest, added to the sum.

The class decided that no present except a Bible was suitable to go to Mrs. Hoover, and so one was purchased and on its cover stamped in letters of gold this legend: "To the First Lady, with Great Appreciation."

Came time to present the Bible, and the First Lady was ill in bed, from an injury she had received, and so she could not attend the anniversary celebration. At once a prayer service was held for her recovery, and every time the class met they offered a special prayer for her. They prayed also that a way might be opened by which they could get to see the First Lady and make formal presentation of the Bible. This opportunity never came, for the First Lady was at her camp on the Rapidan, and so the Bible was sent to the White House to one of Mrs. Hoover's secretaries, with the request that it be given to her.

Roses Sent to Class.

A week or two ago, on the last Friday before the class adjourned for the summer, Mrs. Prentice received a telephone call from the White House.

"This is Mrs. Hoover's secretary speaking. She wishes to know when the class meets and how many mothers are in it," said the secretary.

That afternoon from the White House there came a lovely bunch of roses for each member of the class, and an autographed letter from Mrs. Hoover, which reads:

"My dear Mrs. Prentice:

"Please express to the members of the Mothers Class of the Gospel Mission my appreciation for their thought and the beautifully bound Bible.

"I was sad that I could not be with you all to help celebrate your twenty-fourth anniversary and renew my acquaintance of last year.

"With greetings to the Mothers of the Class, and much appreciation, I am, Yours sincerely,

"LOU HENRY HOOVER."

This Bible would seem to be bread cast upon the water. Such gifts usually are.

American Wins Sardinian Prize.

Cagliari, Sardinia, Italy, Aug. 22 (A.P.). — An American writer, May Howell, has just won the gold medal annually awarded by the Stefano Pietri Foundation for the best work on Sardinia to appear during the year. Mrs. Howell's offering for the international competition appeared in a New York magazine last spring.

SOCIETY

ceremony took place in the evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Benedict at Woodside, with a small company of relatives and close friends in attendance. The bride was given in marriage by her father and had her sister, Miss Elizabeth Benedict, as maid of honor. Her brother, Mr. James E. Benedict, jr., was best man. The Rev. Thomas G. Faulkner, of Blackstone, Va., officiated.

Miss Benedict wore a gown of white chiffon made on modified princess lines, with a panel drapery at the back held in place by white roses. Her bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor's gown was of pink chiffon and lace. The house was decorated with ferns and garden flowers.

Following their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Childs will make their home at Burnt Mills, Md., in a house built by Mr. Childs for his bride. Both families have long been residents of Montgomery County. Dr. Benedict is a scientist on the staff of the National Museum.

Mrs. B. Lewis Padgett left yesterday for the Pocono Mountains where she will complete her convalescence from a recent illness. Mrs. Padgett was accompanied by her two young sons and will be joined later by Capt. Padgett.

Mr. and Mrs. St. George Burke have come from their home at Middleburg, Va., and are at the Wardman Park Hotel for a visit.

PASTOR OF EPIPHANY BACK FROM EUROPE

Dr. Ze Barney T. Phillips, With Wife and Daughter, Toured Abroad.

ATTENDED PASSION PLAY

First among the Washington ministers to return from an extended vacation in Europe is the Rev. Dr. Ze Barney T. Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, who, with his wife and daughter, reached Washington yesterday afternoon. Dr. Phillips will occupy his pulpit Sunday and will preach at the morning service.

Early in the summer this noted clergyman and his family left for a tour of the central part of the continent of Europe, primarily to witness a performance of the "Passion Play" at Oberammergau, which, as all informed persons well know, comes every tenth year in the heated term. This has been going on since the seventeenth century, and in these later years has been a wonderful drawing pleasant homes to European travel.

After seeing the "Passion Play" Dr. Phillips and his family went through Hungary and Austria, visiting in Vienna, the city that was once the brilliant capital of the brilliant Austro-Hungarian empire. From there they toured through southern Germany and parts of Switzerland, spending some time at Bayreuth, Bavaria, where Wagner lived and where in a special opera house his great music dramas are given every year. For many years these festivals were under the autocratic control of Frau Cosimo Wagner the widow of the composer, who cast the dramas and passed judgment, often very harsh, on the singers.

That part of the Epiphany household which went to Bayreuth might have missed the very old Cosimo, but they heard the deathless strains of the incomparable "Tannhauser."

FOUR radio concerts by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra will be heard over an NBC nation-wide network this season. Sunday afternoon, October 12, is the date set for the initial concert, with the others scheduled for November 16, Christmas Day and Easter Sunday of 1931. The famous conductor and his symphony group will be heard here through Station WRC.

This promises to be a full season for symphony lovers. Some time back the Columbia System announced a series of twenty-nine Sunday afternoon concerts by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra from Carnegie Hall, beginning October 5.

In addition, the CBS will broadcast ten Philharmonic children's concerts and five young people's concerts.

Kleiber, Toscanini and Molinari are the conductors for the Philharmonic concerts.

The failure of the District of Columbia to attain chamber of commerce expectations in population figures by the new census has its effect in the radio field.

A recent survey by the Federal Radio Commission showed the district to be .23 units under quota in the distribution of broadcasting facilities based on a 1928 population estimate which listed Washington as having 522,000 residents.

This under-quota figure is reduced to .04 units by the tabulation of commission engineers on the basis of the census count of 486,869.

Following Paramount's decision to change its broadcast from Saturday to Tuesday evening, competing directly with the R-K-O Hour, the latter organization has announced that it will discontinue the regular Thursday matinee and inaugurate a second evening broadcast on Friday, August 29. Both R-K-O periods will be heard through WRC, while the Paramount outlet is WMAL.

Seth Parker and his neighbors have gone on their vacation but will return to the air on September 7 at the regular hour. In the meantime a program entitled Musical Memories will be presented tomorrow evening (WRC, 9:45 o'clock).

The finale of the Chicagoland Music Festival, in which musical talent considered the finest in Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan participate, will be broacast from Soldiers' Field, Chicago, this evening (WRC, 9:30 o'clock).

Twenty-two bands massed as a single band will be picked up by the microphones. "The Star-Spangled Banner" will be sung by the entire assembled audience.

A supervisor of sound effects for the NBC is recovering from a severe case of "nerves." The attack was induced by the engineering feat of removing a fifty-pound set of unmuffled chimes—needed elsewhere immediately—from a studio in which Dr. Thomas Darlington, former New York commissioner of health, was broadcasting a talk on "Noise Abatement."

Ernest W. Naftzger will begin a music appreciation course over the Columbia System next month on Thursdays from 3:30 to 3:45 p. m.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I HAVE some peonies which I have had for many years. They were always covered with flowers until 1915, when we transplanted them. Now a few buds come, but only a few, and the flowers which do open are poor. Can you give me a cause for this or tell me what to do with them, as I have followed your advice and my flowers do well.

MRS. LEWIS D. I.

I think that your peonies have outlived their usefulness. Better purchase new plants. It is nice to know that your flowers do so well.

How can we save our Boston ivy? It is a young vine, but is bare in spots, with all the leaves hanging, limp. This condition developed only yesterday. I can not imagine what it is because as a rule this variety of ivy always does well.

THEODORE M.

Better examine the main stems of the vine. You may find that they have been injured by the sickle. Ampelopsis veitchii has no insect enemies nor is it prone to any special form of disease. Examine the leaves and if they seem to be covered with blight, spray the vine with Bordeaux mixture.

I have a plant which bears long sprays of white, feathery flowers. I have been told it is an astilbe. If it is an astilbe can't it be left outdoors in winter? MRS. J. G.

Your plant is an astilbe. It is perfectly hardy. Plant it in rich soil and give it an abundance of water while in bloom. It will be happy when planted in partial shade. It will live, but not do so well in sun.

Please inform me as to the best soil in which to plant the seed of a palm. ELSIE D. Y.

Light loam with which leafmold has been incorporated.

Please tell me how to prune a flowering maple for winter blooming.

MRS. GEORGE T. O.

No pruning is necessary unless you desire to reduce the size of the plant. In such an event prune the plant in the early spring, as flowers are borne on new growth. When flowers are wanted in winter it is well not to allow the plant to bloom during the summer.

Please tell me how to care for a potted pandanus. CAROLINE R. B.

Keep plant in a sunny place and water it every other day if on the porch; in the house in winter, water it only twice a week.

Please tell me if it is true that if I plant edelweiss in the strong sun it will be greenish gray and that if I plant it in partial shade it will be white. AN AMATEUR GARDENER.

Yes.

Does virgin's bower do best in sun or shade? What kind of soil suits it best? HANNAH G. T.

Virgin's bower does best in partial shade. It likes a soil of good loam containing a trace of lime.

Please tell me something about the bugle flower. I want to plant some to cover bare places in my border.

MRS. WILLIAM G. T.

The bugle flower is an excellent carpet plant for growing under trees where it is hard to establish a lawn. It is not apt to grow well when planted in a sunny spot.

Please tell me when to prune a deutzia bush. ANN McM.

Prune a deutzia immediately after it has flowered; in late May or early June.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Skirts and skirts, blouses and blouses, sweaters 'n' sweaters spell the college girl's wardrobe! (Says Dare Dah-ray.)

Paris, Aug. 22.

OH-OH, school time, school time! It's high time to think about your college wardrobe, young woman, and not only to think of it either, but to get goin' on it.

And mothers have to get going on the kiddies' things for school, too, not to mention young business women for their fall and winter business togs. Now is the time to plan and buy, before the cold days are right on you—as you know they will be. How about it?

I think how about it might well mean sweaters and skirts, the old standby. For from the 3-year-old stage to the 39, there is nothing more practical, smarter, more economical, nor anything that lends itself to such variations as the sweater and skirt idea. Only a couple of skirts, three sweaters, three blouses, a jacket to match the skirt, and a three-quarter coat, and you have an outfit for each day in the year—a different one, too. You know how smart belts, scarfs, jacquettes and hats are. Well, the simple sweater or jacket or blouse and skirt, and a variety of accessories and there you are. Should you tire of the same skirt and jacket or coat, a new handkerchief scarf and beret, and you feel as though you have a whole new outfit.

And skirts are so smart these waistline days! They don't differ from any skirt that ever was, of course, but they do manage to look more trim, being as high as the natural curve of the figure. Blouses and sweaters the same—they, too, have a new face these days, with their belted-in at the waistline look. See, for instance, some of the Dah-ray ideas sketched for you today—aren't they the smartest—?

* * * *

Golla, I could talk about blouses and skirts and jackets I have seen in the fall collections all day, only I had better not. S'pose instead that you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet that just came back from the printers today which tells you how to make all the new skirts, circular ones, wrap around ones, pleated ones, and those with only a few pleats.

And not to be stingy, I told you how to make some awfully smart blouse, sweater and jacket tops to wear with these skirts!

* * * *

Oh-me-oh-my-oh-me—stop it! Don't you remember that collerette does Fleurs I designed for you four years ago? Well, would you believe that that's the newest accessory wrinkle in Paris this minnit? It is! Especially is it favored by lovely ladies with longish and thin necks, in a flat, soft flower gardenia, the color of the gown. The flowers are a collar, flat to the neck—and flattering, too. Better go easy on it, though, and not get too gobbed up looking.

* * * *

You shouldn't fail to look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post tomorrow. You'll not regret it.

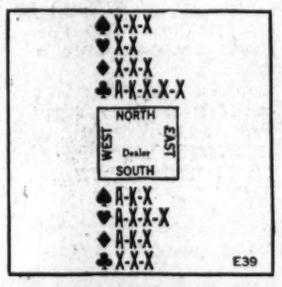
WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

One of the easy points in play which a novice at times finds complicating is the question of establishing a suit in the dummy hand when there is no entry in that hand in any other suit. To illustrate:



If South were playing a No Trump contract and a Spade were led, South would win and then appreciate that he could make game by taking two Spades, one Heart, two Diamonds and four Clubs. With the probable 3-2 division of the five adverse Clubs, this would easily be accomplished by losing either the first or the second Club trick. If dummy should win the first two Clubs and then lead a third Club, the suit would be established but dummy could not get in again to make the two established Clubs.

By ducking the first or second round of Clubs and permitting the adversaries to win one of those tricks, dummy's Ace or King would clear the suit on the third round and that hand would be in the lead to cash its two long Clubs for a total of four Club tricks.

Suppose, however, that the Clubs in dummy were the Ace-Queen and three small, all the other cards in the North and South hands being the same; South's Clubs being all small ones. In that case there would be only an even chance of making four Clubs because two Club tricks must be lost if the King of Clubs is held by East. But if the King be held by West and the division of the adverse Clubs be the normal 3-2, four Club tricks can be won in either of two ways: Lead a small Club from South and play the Queen from dummy, then if the Queen win return a small Club from dummy; or lead a small Club from South and let dummy duck with the intent of finessing the Queen on the second round of the suit.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF AUGUST 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. and 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. and 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

Propitious influences will be in force on this date, and will bring personal happiness. Travel indicated, and advisable. The evening hours favor pleasures and friends. A betrothal or marriage under these influences would not bring tears.

Children born on this August 23 will be outspoken and lacking in tact and restraint. They will have mental vigor, redundant energy, and resourcefulness. They will display a disregard for conventionality, and will have rebellious dispositions.

You are a serious minded person, and you want to pull your weight in the affairs of mankind. You have an appetite for intellectual adventure, and you are not afraid of arduous physical and intellectual efforts. You are definite in your tastes, your likes and your aims. You stick to your interests, you do not half assimilate them to pick up new ones—you are, above all else, thorough. You are not a three-quarters explorer. You do not sit down on your little handful of thorns to mope, it does not appeal to you to be a self-inflicted, self-appointed martyr, and you soon try to cure yourself of pain. You desire a pleasant and harmonious life, and you will hunt far and wide to secure it. If you do not like people, you keep away from them as much as possible.

You know how to be frugal and thrifty without being mean, and when buying you usually get your money's worth. You make the most of your opportunities, and you have your eyes open to them. With your practical conception of things, you know how to produce in the concrete the ideal that is in your mind. You are both a dreamer and a doer. You have enough imagination, and a warm enough heart to be sympathetically understanding. You are usually good humored and sensible, and are always ready to listen to reason. You are resourceful and shrewd, and few people can place you at a disadvantage.

Successful people born August 23:

1—Thomas Robinson—Artist—painter of animals.
2—Charles F. Hartt—Geologist—discoveries in Brazil.
3—Barrett Wendell—Educator and author.
4—Louis XVI.
5—Amelie Reeves Chanler (Troubetzkoy)—Author.
6—Sophie Kerr—Author.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

HOW TO GROW SUNFLOWERS.

(Bureau of Plant Industry.)

Sunflowers are tall-growing, bright-flowered annual plants that have not received the attention they deserve. The tall-growing, large-flowered sorts, as well as the dwarf many-flowered varieties are useful when skillfully employed in mixed plantations with other herbaceous annuals; the golden yellow disks are like sunbursts among the shrubbery. The tall habit and the dense foliage of some varieties make them suitable for backgrounds and screens. Because of their long stems and extraordinary lasting qualities they are of value as cut flowers.

Sunflowers are of easy culture. The seed should be planted in the open garden in spring at about the time that corn or beans are planted, or about a week later the average last frost, and the plants should be thinned to stand from 2 to 4 feet apart, depending upon whether it is a dwarf or a tall-growing variety. The height ranges from 1 to 10 feet with the different varieties, while the habit of growth, character of foliage and number of flowers vary correspondingly.

HADLEY WILTS IN NINTH, BROWNS TRIUMPH IN TENTH, 4-3; MITCHELL REACHES FINALS IN U. S. PUBLIC PARKS TENNIS

CAPITAL HOPE BEATS MARKEY, WILL MEET JENNINGS TOMORROW

Mrs. Martinez Loses Women's Title to Mrs. Dueker.

Mitchell-Considine in Doubles Semi-finals Today.

By JACK ESPEY.

WASHINGTON'S hopes for the national public parks tennis singles championship were kept alive yesterday when Dooly Mitchell, local parks champion, defeated Thomas "Bud" Markey in a hard-fought semifinal match, 6—4, 6—2, 3—6, 6—4, before 1,000 spectators on the Rock Creek courts.

Mitchell will tackle the defending champion, George Jennings, jr., Chicago, in the final tomorow afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock. Jennings, who is favored to retain the crown he won in 1928 and 1929, disposed of Arnold P. Simons, Louisville, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3, for his fourth successive straight-set triumph in the tournament.

Mrs. Martinez Beaten in Women's Final.

While Mitchell was winning, Washington lost its chance for women's singles honors when Mrs. Ruth Martinez, local parks queen, bowed to Mrs. Virginia Dueker, St. Louis, 3—6, 6—1, 6—3.

Paired with Bob Considine, whom he conquered Thursday in the singles, Mitchell advanced to the doubles semifinals with a straight set win over the Louisville team of Monte Tiller and Robert Hall, 6—2, 7—5 6—3. The doubles semifinals are to be played this morning starting at 10 o'clock, the Capital duo being matched against Jennings and Jack DeLara, Los Angeles, seeded first, who eliminated Robert Elliott and Elmer Rudy, Baltimore, 9—7, 6—2, 6—3.

Mitchell uncorked the same devastating tactics against Markey that he did in his defeat of Considine. The Georgetown University star rushed to the net as often as possible and outdrove his opponent throughout. Mitchell's volleying was of a high caliber, while his forehand and backhand shots were placed with great accuracy.

Markey's game was not powerful enough to keep Mitchell in the back court, although at times his lobbing made it tough for him. Markey also caused trouble when he got in a steaming first serve.

Markey Rallies in First Set of Match.

In the first set Mitchell broke through to lead, 4—1, and increased his advantage to 5—1 with a love game on service. Markey then shot into high gear and took three games in a row, breaking Mitchell's delivery at love in the eighth. The Hilltopper put an end to this counter attack and won the set in the tenth.

Mitchell smashed through twice to gain command, 5—2, in the second set, using the volley for many points, and after four deuces captured the eighth for the set decision.

Losing accuracy, Dooly lost the lead in the third set when his foe broke through in the sixth game to tie him, 3—3. Markey capitalized to the fullest on Mitchell's unsteadiness and ran out with the next three games, featuring his comeback with a fine overhead offensive.

The ultimate winner didn't resume his stride until after Markey had gone ahead, 3—2, in the fourth chapter. Here he charged into the forecourt, volleying sharply to take the sixth game on Markey's service, and followed with a series of effectual smashes on his own serve in the seventh. The eighth went to Markey, but it was his final bit of success, for Mitchell pulled up from 15-40 to annex the ninth and blazed away at the net for the clinching points in the tenth.

Mrs. Dueker Hits Stride In Second Set.

Mrs. Martinez' steady baseline driving was not enough to stop Mrs. Dueker in the women's final. The St. Louis woman not only drove well, but brought into play a nice volley and smash.

In the opening set Mrs. Martinez' steadiness gained many points on her opponent's errors, but when Mrs. Dueker settled down, the tide rapidly turned in her favor. She repeatedly passed the Capital colorbearer and lobbed so well that Mrs. Martinez missed the ball completely on several occasions.

The hard-hitting Buffalo team of Ethel Haas and Lydia Kayser, won the women's doubles final by defeating Mrs. Dueker and Mrs. Ann Linde-

14-Year-Old Lad Wins Title Handicap Shoot

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—A 14-year-old boy from Wichita Falls, Tex., today won the grand American handicap championship—most coveted prize in the trapshoot world. While more than 1,000 seasoned gunners from over the country looked on in amazement, Alfred Rufford King, jr., took the highest honors in the annual tournament when he tied for the lead in the feature event with L. H. Crampton, Dayton, and Don Casey, Toledo, and later won the 25 target shoot-off. Each had cracked 97 out of a possible 100 targets.

Those trailing in the final event of the week's shoot included Mose Newman, Sweetwater, Tex., defending champion, who had hoped to end the tradition that no champion has repeated in the 31 years of the meet's history.

Errors Cost Dodgers Fifth Straight Loss

Cincinnati, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Cincinnati's Reds handed Brooklyn its fifth straight defeat and its third of the series today by a 4-to-1 score, dropping the third-place Robins another game behind the Chicago Cubs.

Larry Benton and Dazzy Vance were about equally matched in the mound duel, Brooklyn getting seven hits and Cincinnati six, but the Robin defense wavered at times and the two runs the Reds scored in the eighth to clinch the victory were due to an error by Hendrick. He muffed Red Lucas' drive to left when the bases were full.

Betty Nuthall, Mrs. Harper In Finals

British Girl Forced to 3 Sets to Eliminate Marjorie Morrill.

Baroness Levi Beaten by U. S. Hope in Easy Match.

By ALAN GOULD.

FOREST Hills, N. Y., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Blond and blue-eyed Betty Nuthall, England's darling of tennis courts, will make her second bid for the American women's championship tomorrow.

The 21-year-old British girl enters the final round favored to beat Mrs. Anna Harper, of San Francisco, fifth ranking American player, and carry to England for the first time the title forfeited by Helen Wills Moody, winner of six of the last seven tournaments.

Miss Nuthall Provides Thrills of Day.

Miss Nuthall furnished the only thrill of the semifinals today by overcoming the spirited, hard-hitting opposition of the youthful American, Marjorie Morrill, of Dedham, Mass., to win in three sets, 6—8, 6—4, 6—2. "Bounding Betty's" superior experience, control and greater stamina saved the day for her after Miss Morrill, by the sheer force of her attack, had pulled out the first set and gained a 4—2 lead in the second.

Mrs. Harder, a left-hander, was offered no such keen opposition as she swept through the other semifinal match easily at the expense of the Baroness Maud Rosenbaum Levi, of Rome, Italy. The California woman won by scores of 6—2, 6—3, easily outstroking the former Chicagoan as she came from behind in each set to run out six straight games.

As a result, it will be California against England for the fourth time in the last six years of tournament competition for the American women's crown. In 1925, 1927 and 1929 Miss Wills repulsed in succession the challenges of Kitty McKane, Betty Nuthall and Phoebe Watson.

Speed Prevents Long Rallies of Play.

Miss Nuthall had brushed all opposition aside easily until she faced the blond, sturdy American girl, who swept into a lead at the very outset with an attack as powerful from the baseline as any Mrs. Moody has exhibited on the West Side Club's classic turf. Betty thrives on speed herself and the two girls slashed away at such a swift pace that few rallies were sustained.

Miss Morrill, getting fine depth to her drives and passing Betty repeatedly with beautifully angled shots off forehand as well as backhand, was within a point of leading 4—1 in the first set when she experienced her first let down. Miss Nuthall rallied with such determination that she was herself within a point of taking the set in the ninth game, only to have her rival make a superb stand, pull up even and capture the set on the sheer force of a hard-driving attack.

Thus fortified, Miss Morrill sustained her fast pace, continued to outdrive the English girl and gained a lead of 4—2 in the second set on a break through service in the sixth game. Here the expenditure of energy in racing all over the court for Miss Nuthall's sweeping drives began to tell on the American.

Miss Morrill Weakens In Second Set.

With victory almost in her grasp Marjorie wilted, lost control of her service and began overdriving the backlines. Betty was content to force her rival into errors and ran out four straight games for the set with the loss of only five points.

Except for a few flashes, Miss Morrill never regained her effective stroking control and was decisively beaten in the final set.

Miss Nuthall and Mrs. Harper also will be opponents in the final match for the doubles championship, taken to England last year by Mrs. Phoebe Watson and Mrs. L. R. C. Michell.

With little Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline, Mass., as her partner, Miss Nuthall scored her second semifinal conquest over Miss Morrill and Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., 6—2, 6—4. Mrs. Harper and Edith Cross, of San Francisco, emerged triumphant in a three-set contest with two young Californians, Marjorie Gladman and Josephine Cruickshank, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4.

Pirates Hit Zachary Freely for 10-3 Victory

Pittsburgh, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Old Tom Zachary was hit freely in the pinches while Larry French kept Boston's nine hits scattered here today and Pittsburgh defeated Boston, 10-3. The hitting of Pie Traynor, Pirate third baseman and captain, aided his club to run up the large score. He drove in four runs and made one himself.

45,000 WATCH CUBS ROUT GIANTS

Knock Donohue From Box in 1st, Scoring 5 Runs; Win, 12-4.

By WILLIAM WEEKES.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Joe McCarthy's Cubs, battling to keep the lead in the National League championship race, threw the New York Giants' machine into reverse today, winning by 12 to 4, and evening up their important series.

The general outline of the game was about the same as yesterday when the Giants trounced the Cubs, 13 to 6—but everything in reverse.

A rousing first inning, which was worth five runs to the Cubs, started the National League champions, and a big eighth frame, in which five more Cubs crossed the plate, soldered the position. The Giants won by about the same procedure yesterday, scoring six in the first and five in the eighth.

Root Hurls Another Fine Game.

Charley Root was just as good a pitcher today as he was against Brooklyn last week. He held the Manhattan maulers to nine hits and was in trouble only in the eighth when the Giants scored twice. Freddie Lindstrom, a Chicago boy, playing third base for the Giants, cracked a home run off Root in the first inning, but the blow was a mild affair compared to Gabby Hartnett's twenty-seventh of the season in the eighth with the bases full.

The defensive situation also was in reverse. The Cubs fielded just as well today as the Giants did yesterday, while the New Yorkers were guilty of four misplays.

Night Baseball Plan Announced by Orioles

Baltimore, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—A special dispatch today to the Evening Sun says the announcement that Oriole Park, home of the Baltimore International League baseball team, will be lighted for night baseball and football has been made by George Weiss, general manager of the club.

A contract closed yesterday at Toronto, where the Birds are playing a series, provides that the lighting system be ready for an exhibition game September 4 with the Philadelphia National League Club.

No International League evening games are planned this year, but exhibition games at night with the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds are scheduled.

Weiss is counting on staging a numbef of football games under the flood lights at the park this fall.

U. S. Yacht Defense Trials Halted by Wind

Newport, R. I., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Trials for the selection of the yacht to defend the America's Cup were temporarily halted today because of heavy wind and sea. The section committee felt that enough was known about the four racing ships—Yankee, Whirlwind, Weetamoe and Enterprise—in boisterous weather, and planned to await test conducted in lighter breezes.

Australian Cricket Team Defeats British

London, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—A group of fighting Australians walked off with the "ashes" of British cricket again today, winning by an inning and 39 runs the last of a series of five test matches at the Kennington oval.

Play in the final match began last Saturday. England scored 405 in her first innings, while Australia soared to 695. There was no play yesterday because of rain, and in her second innings today England added only 251 to her previous score of 405, thus losing the match.

Of the previous matches England and the "Ashes" are a mythical symbol of cricket supremacy. The term originated when Australia won her second match with the mother country, and the Dominion was said to have walked away with the ashes of England's cricket.

Goneaway, 2-5 Choice, Nosed Out by Kildare

New York, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—It was only by a nose, but the margin was enough to give the Newtondale Stable's Kildare victory over William Ziegler, jr.'s, Goneaway the 2-to-5 favorite in the Ballston Handicap today and furnish Saratoga racing fans with discussion matter of another sensational upset.

Goneaway, one of the consistent 3-year-olds of the season, was considered to have the mile gallop won when the six starters faced the barrier. But evidently Jockey E. Watters and the 4-year-old Kildare thought differently. Watters got Kildare away flying and quickly opened up a long lead over Partisan with Fair Ball third and Goneaway fourth.

Mrs. Moody Should Accept Legacy—Jones

New York, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The Sun quotes Bobby Jones today as saying that Mrs. Helen Wills Moody should accept the $20,000 left her in the will of Senator Phelan, of California, as a reward for her tennis playing.

"Why shouldn't she?" he asked. "I wish some one would leave me the same amount and see how quick I would take it." He said that his own refusal of a $50,000 house offered by Atlanta friends a few years ago was "different."

"I think it is absolutely assinine," he said, "for any one even to question Helen's procedure in this instance. An heir has all the right in the world to accept an inheritance."

When the inheritance was announced officials of the Lawn Tennis Association took under consideration the question of its effect on Mrs. Moody's amateur standing and acknowledged themselves puzzled by the problem.

MACKS BOW TO TIGERS, 7 TO 1

Pound Earnshaw as Sorrell Goes Route; Errors Figure.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Detroit Tigers turned in their first triumph in three games with the Athletics here today when they clubbed George Earnshaw out of the box in five innings and defeated the world's champions, 7 to 1.

A wild throw by Bishop gave the Tigers two runs in the first inning, to which they added another pair in the fourth when Dale Alexander hit a homer behind Gehringer's triple. In the next inning four hits and a wild throw by Foxx helped Detroit to a cluster of three additional tallies. Vic Sorrell went the route for the Tigers with little bother. The Macks retained their 8½-game lead over Washington, which also lost.

Cards Pound Quartet Of Phil Hurlers to Win

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals, pounding four Philadelphia pitchers, overcame an early lead to win their second straight from the Phillies here today 10 to 8. Thirty-two players took part in the game which lasted two hours and a half.

Chuck Klein hit his thirty-first home run of the season.

The heavy stick work for the Cardinals was done by Gus Mancuso who drove in four runs, three of which came in the eighth inning, when the Cardinals were trailing 7 to 8. His double with the bases loaded gave the Cardinals the game.

Flint Rhem, who went to the hill for the Cardinals in the sixth, gained credit for the victory.

SARAZEN TAKES 2-STROKE LEAD IN WESTERN OPEN

New York Pro Setting Pace With 142

Dazzling Round of 69 Gains Lead at Half-Way Mark.

Hampton and Brinke Second; Armour Is Far Behind.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

INDIANWOOD CLUB, Orion, Mich., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen is out in front of another golf championship parade.

The stocky Italian professional from New York today bounded two strokes ahead of a deadlocked field in the drive for the Western open golf championship with a par-breaking total of 142 strokes for the first 36 holes of the 72-hole stretch over the Indianwood Club course.

Tied for fifth place at the end of yesterday's initial 18-hole round with a 73, the former national champion flashed over the championship course with a pretty 69 today that sent him ahead of the field and labeled him as the one man to beat in the 36-hole final tomorrow. Brilliant approach shots that sailed his ball repeatedly to within easy putting distance of the cup were responsible for his score.

—INSERT A—

Deadlocked for second place, two strokes behind Sarazen, tonight were five golfers of the long-shot variety, who were not expected to cause him much trouble in the final sprint for the title tomorrow. They were Harry Hampton, Chicago professional, whose 69 topped the field yesterday and whose putter turned out to be so balky today that he took a 75; Chris Brinke, Detroit amateur, who shot a record-equaling 67 for the best round of the day; Emerick Kocsis, young Detroit professional; Bob Shave, Cleveland, professional, and the veteran Al Watrous, of Detroit.

All of the favorites with the one notable exception of the defending champion, Tommy Armour, of Detroit, placed within striking distance of the lead today. The Black Scot fell far behind the leaders yesterday with a 78, six shots over par, and didn't do much better today by comparison with his rivals, getting a 75 for a 153 total, eleven strokes behind Sarazen and just three strokes away from the qualifying dead line of 156, which let 73 remain in the field for tomorrow's play.

RULE B——————

Poor putting ruined Armour's score and all but left him among the also rans. Tied for third place with a pair of 145s at the end of the first 36 holes tonight were another pair of dark horses, Johnny Watson, South Bend, Ind., professional, with cards of 73—72, and Laurie Avento, of Evanston, Ill., who added a 71 to his 74 of yesterday.

The rest of the leaders for the most part were figures well known in the world of golf. Densmore Shute, of Columbus, Ohio, and Abe Espinosa, of Chicago, 1928 champion, had 146's; Horton Smith and "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, of New York; Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., and Charles Kocsis, of Detroit, Mich., State amateur champion, trailed with 147s. Walter Hagen also came back to land among the leaders. The "Haig," almost out with a bad 77 yesterday, scored a par 72 today for a 149.

Johnny Farrell, New York professional, landed near the danger line by getting a 77 today for a 151 total.

Army Medicos to Play Fort. Humphreys Today

The Fort Humphreys Team, undefeated in the Third Corps Area League, will invade Walter Reed today for a series battle with the Army Medicos. The game starts at 2:30 o'clock. The Medicos are confident they can end the winning streak of the Virginia Soldiers. Woods or Lewis will hurl for the Medicos with Rahn the probable pitcher for Fort Humphries.

D. G. S. Nine Defeats Columbia Heights, 4-2

The District Grocery Store Nine, which upset the Union Printers recently, came through with another surprise yesterday when it took the Columbia Heights Club in camp by a 4-2 count. Foley, D. G. S. star, was in rare form. F. Tonker and Diver hit homers. The Grocery Team scored what proved to be a winning margin in the first frame, sending three runs across.

—Saratoga Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 22.—The twenty-eighth running of the $15,000 Grand Union Hotel Stakes for 2-year-olds today has a standout horse in George D. Widener's JAMESTOWN, and there will be very little disposition on the part of the large crowd expected to see the contest to regard it otherwise than one-sided.

While the bookmakers have had some fine breaks in some of the stakes here—notably the Travers—and had an upset last year in the Grand Union caused by the same precocious colt, Jim Dandy, which beat them all, there is little encouragement for the sharpshooters in expecting a form reversal by JAMESTOWN, as he appears to be the 2-year-old champion. He is so good that he has scared out the opposition, Equipoise refusing to try it again.

JAMESTOWN will be required to carry 130 pounds, and few have won with that heavy impost. But JAMESTOWN seems to be an exceptional colt, and has show weight-carrying ability. He won the Saratoga Special with 122 pounds, beating Equipoise two and a half lengths; he won the United States Hotel Stakes with the same weight, beating Novelist, and he won the Flash Stakes on opening day here, carrying 118. He has never been really extended. If he should fail, he is coupled with CONDESCEND, which appears next best in the field. ANCHORS AWEIGH, a Man o'War colt, coupled with COMIC as the Greentree entry, should take the third money over NOVELIST.

FIRST RACE—HORNPIPE a week ago ran second to Voltear and is selected on that showing and the work chart to win this race. He won a race in Chicago. MARTIS is rated the contender and will be hard to beat. He was out of his class last out, but won his two previous races. Favors mud. KIANG had a conditioning race Thursday and should beat the others.

SECOND RACE—A steeplechase. AUTUMN BELLS is best and should win at a short price. STALKER had bad luck last out, but appears the contender. Amateur riders make steeplechases more uncertain. VAN DYKE can hold the others safe. He may be closer than third.

FOURTH RACE—The Olambala Handicap at seven furlongs. MR. SPONGE should repeat and his odds should be below even on his last race in which he drew away from Judge Schilling. There is no real contender. That is the trouble with many races here. They are one-sided, with a stand-out horse, all too often, which not only makes the winning price unattractvie, but the place price on the contender also very lean. FLYER, which ran well in the West, may be the contender, with BLACK MAJESTY third.

FIFTH RACE—CURATE also is a standout in the fifth, the Merchants and Citizens Handicap at a mile and three-sixteenths. DR. FREELAND will have FRISIUS to beat for the place. This makes four races, including the steeplechase, with standout favorites.

SIXTH RACE—ANCHORS AWEIGH, if he does not start in the feature race, should win easily in the sixth race. This colt has had bad luck or bad riding or he would have won his last two starts. If he should not start here, CHRISTMAS will be the winner on form. HURRY BYE may be better than rated.

OPPONENT broke well, followed pace closely to stretch, ran into lead, drew out and won under a drive. PENNATE, well up from the start, ran a good race. KNOWLTON broke fast, but was in close quarters in early part, finishing fast when clear in stretch. JOHN F ran a good race. RED FLARE was taken very wide and stopped badly in stretch. He is overrated. CLAREMONT had plenty of early speed. SWEEP ALL broke slow and in a tangle and failed to show any speed.

PULLMAN NINE WINS CITY SERIES GAME IN 10TH, 5-4

Church Team Beaten on Error

Winning Run Scores on Harwood's Wild Throw in Tenth.

Calvary Is Unable to Hold 3-0 Lead Gained Off Clapper.

THE Pullman Co. Nine, which entered yesterday's week-day championship series game a decided favorite, had to fight an uphill battle to beat the Calvary Drakes, Georgetown Church League champions, by a 5-4 score, in ten innings on the Terminal Diamond. An error, which allowed Pullman to score the winning run, marred the thrilling contest, after the Terminal League kings had tied the score with rallies in the eighth and ninth.

Fee Colliere opened the tenth with a single. Smithson filed to right, but Stahl came through with a double, sending Colliere to third. Chaconas then hit to Harwood, who threw wild, and Colliere came home with the winning tally.

The Drakes gained a 3-0 lead in the second frame, knocking Babe Clipper out of the box, and scored another run off Colliflower in the fifth. Pullman was held scoreless by Ball until the sixth, when it counted once. Two runs in the eighth and another in the ninth evened the score, Colliflower having blanked the opposition in the closing frames.

Berger Leads Attack For Drakes.

Bosie Berger, Maryland U. star, led the Calvary attack with four hits in as many tries, including a homer over the left center-field fence.

Clapper, after getting by the first frame, became a target in the second. Goodwin and Berger singled. Goodwin scored and Berger went to third when Clapper threw Kilroy's attempted sacrifice into right field. Booker was an easy out, but Bowman singled, scoring Berger and Kilroy. A single by Ball and a walk filled the bases. Colliflower relieved Clapper and fanned Buscher.

The Drakes made their run in the fifth on Berger's home run.

Pullman got its first scoring taste in the sixth on Hall's double, Collier's sacrifice and a fielder's choice.

In the eighth, Pullman counted twice, Radtke doubled and Colliflower sent him home with another double. Colliere doubled the pitcher home a moment later.

Pullman tied the score in the ninth on passes to Stahl and Chaconas followed by Booker's single. Pullman filled the bases and it appeared that the game might end but Hall lined to Goodwin to prolong the action.

Ruddy Seeking Third Title In 3-Mile Swim Here Today

Small But Select Field to Compete on Potomac With New York Youth Favorite; Race for National Title.

A COMPARATIVELY small but select field of swimmers this afternoon will seek to win the President's Cup 3-mile race to be staged on a triangular course on the Potomac at 2 o'clock, with the start and finish at the Washington Canoe Club, which organization is sponsoring the race.

Raymond Ruddy, of the New York Athletic Club, who has won the race for the last two years, will be on hand to try to make it three in a row. He probably will gratify his ambition, but some of his teammates, including his brother Don, are likely to furnish keen opposition. The race carries the national 3-mile championship.

Five more entries were received by Commodore Elmer McGuigan last night, one, Arsenio Orellano, being a Washingtonian and entering unattached. The others were members of the Baltimore Central Y. M. C. A. team—George Dreyer, Fred Muhlenfeld, Robert Weiner and Cyril Caulk.

The host club is pinning its hopes on two youngsters—Lawrence Buscher, 17 years of age, who was the first District entrant to finish last year, and Bob Wrenn, 16 years old, who has been showing up well in practice.

Baltimore will be rfepresented by two clubs as, in addition to the Central "Y," the Bay Shore Swimming Club has entered a group which has hopes of taking team honors from Ruddy and his New York A. C. mates. The Patooka Club, of Annapolis, composed of Naval Academy swimmers, may spring a surprise on the New Yorkers.

No admission will be charged, and the Washington Canoe Club invites spectators to witness the event from its clubhouse.

RASKOB WINS FEATURE IN REGATTA

Wins 1st Leg on Cup in Chester River Club's Event.

Special to The Washington Post.

LOVE POINT, Md., Aug. 22.—Under leaden skies and driven by a stiff northeaster through seas churned into foam by a typical Chesapeake Bay breeze, John J. Raskob, for the first time in his career sailing one of his fleet of meter craft, crossed the finish line of the first annual Chesapeake Bay sailing championship race well in advance of all other entries and gained the first leg on his own $5,000 gold cup offered to the entry in the annual Chester River Yacht Club regatta which wins the cup three times.

The financier was at the helm of his twelve-meter sloop Patsy Ann. The race was the first event of the third annual regatta of the Chester River organization.

Scheduled to start at 10 o'clock this morning, the bay classic was delayed by rough seas and though about twenty sailing craft of 25-feet water line or over were expected to enter, only eight started. The Patsy completed the 21-mile triangular course from Love Point light to Swan Point to Baltimore Light and return shortly before 1 o'clock standard time. John J. Raskob, jr., sailing his 10-meter sloop, finished second, and the Lady Susan, owned and sailed by George A. Whiting, of Baltimore, was third.

First Race Entered by Senior Raskob.

It was the first time the senior Raskob has ever sailed a boat in any race, and the boats in his wake were yet out of sight when he hove across the line.

In the annual Star boat race the six starting enteries finished, with The Cod, owned and sailed by A. Murdock Morris, of the Gibson Island Yacht Club, narrowly beating out The Sole, sailed by J. R. Miller, of the same club. The race was sailed over a smaller 9-mile triangular course in the mouth of the Chester River for the Star boat championship of the club.

The Urchin, of Harold W. Smith, the Gibson Island Yacht Club, crossed the line third and the following finished in order: Eel, R. Hammond Gibson, Chesapeake Bay Yacht Club; Sailfish, C. H. Reeves, Gibson Island Yacht Club, and Albacore, Oscar Trail, Chesapeake Bay Yacht Club.

Tomorrow the annual Chesapeake Bay log sailing canoe event will be run off as the feature of the second day of the two-day regatta, together with a variety of speedboat and cruiser races. These events will be staged in the Chestertown River at Chestertown, off the clubhouse, beginning at 9:30 a. m. (standard time).

GEORGETOWN—NOTICE.

The Georgetown Midget and Insects will be busy today. The Midgets meet the Colonials in the Sport Mart League at 11 o'clock, while the Insects practice on the South Ellipse at 4 o'clock in preparation for their championship battle tomorrow with the Wonder Boys.

TILDEN GAINS FINALS WITH ALLISON

Advances at Newport by Hunter's Default; Lott Eliminated.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—With the national tennis championships just around the corner, Big Bill Tilden, who has dominated the American game for the past decade or so, today advanced into the two championship rounds of the important Newport Casino invitation tournament.

He gained the title round of the singles play through the default of his doubles partner, Frank Hunter, of New Rochelle, N. Y. Both, however, gained the last round of the doubles play with an impressive straight set victory over Jack Tidball and Gerald Bartosh, two steady Californian youngsters. The scores were 6—1, 6—3, 6—3.

Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., won the right to meet Tilden in the singles final by defeating George M. Lott, jr., of Chicago, 3—6, 6—3, 7—5, 6—3 in the upper half semifinal.

Allison Smashes Lott's Service.

Lott started off with a rush and took an early lead. He was stroking expertly until the second set, when the steady Allison smashed his service to bits and pulled up even. Lott became very erratic and Allison, despite his numerous errors, was able to put over enough of his choppy placements to gain the last bracket.

Hunter complained of a sore arm and explained that he withdrew from the semifinal round with Tilden to escape exertions that might be harmful to their chances in next week's national doubles play at Brookline, Mass., as well as their team play in the current tournament.

Hunter Plays in Mixed Doubles.

A few minutes after the announcement of Hunter's default he appeared on another court to play mixed doubles with Mrs. C. Oliver O'Connell, of Newport, against Miss Rose Davis, Newport, and H. L. Johnson, Boston. Mrs. O'Connell and Hunter were victorious in straight sets, 6—4, 6—2.

The keenest of the semifinals was the doubles match put on by Wilbur Coen, jr., Kansas City, and Harrison Coggeshall, Des Moines, to become finalist by defeating Berkley Bell, Austin, Tex., and Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., in the third seeded combination, 6—4, 6—4, 6—3.

BAUSERMANS PLAY.

The Bauserman Motor Co. Nine meets the Chevy Chase Grays, runners-up in the Montgomery County League, tomorrow on the Arlington Field at 3 o'clock.

D. G. S. EXCURSION.

A baseball game with the Washington Terminal Team and two six-round boxing matches will be among the features of an excursion to Marshall Hall tomorrow under the auspices of the District Grocery Stores Nine.

Spengler Post to Battle Virginia Champs Today

Semifinalists in Legion Series Meet at Alexandria in First of Three-Game Set. Clubs Plan Football.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 22.—Alexandria Post, No. 24, junior baseball team, champion of Virginia, will tackle the Legion Spengler Post Team, champions of the District, in Baggett's Stadium Saturday at 3 o'clock. These two teams represented their respective State and District in the regional playoff and both advanced to the semifinal round before being eliminated.

A three-game series with the Spengler Post Team will be played by the locals, beginning with the game tomorrow. The second game will be played in Washington and the third, if necessary, will be determined later by the officials of the two posts.

Alexandrians Ready For Battle.

The local aggregation held a snappy workout yesterday and will also practice today. Coach Prex Wilson pronounced his team in the pink and rarin' to go. Hudson or Nicholson will draw the mound assignment with Backus doing the receiving.

This game has created a great amount of interest and a big crowd is expected to attend. All arrangements have been completed and the two teams are eagerly awaiting the call to play ball.

The Del Ray Athletic Club will hold an important football meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of President P. P. Clark, at 1015 Clyde avenue. Del Ray will play in the same class this year as that of last when they made such an impressive record. Plans for the grid season will be outlined at this session and a captain elected. All members who are anxious to play football with the Del Ray A. C. are requested to be present.

Friends A. C. Gridmen Meet Tonight.

The Friends Athletic Club will hold an important meeting at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at 201 North Columbus street. Manager Dienelt and Coach Delaney request that all members be present and also any candidates for the football team. The Friends will oppose Fredericksburg Tigers next Tuesday on Goldman's Field in Fredericksburg.

Behind the fine pitching of Parke Bell, the Old Dominion Boat Club defeated the American Legion Seniors in a well-played baseball game yesterday by the score of 5 to 3, on the George Mason Field. Bunching hits in the sixth inning the boatmen scored three runs to sew up the ball game.

WEST'S LAST GAME HERE TODAY

Brown Faces Browns; Bluege, Myer Return Tomorrow.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WESTERN teams will be through with Washington for the season after today's final of the series with the St. Louis Browns. Needless to say the Nationals will be striving for victory, which is needed to keep them in their fight for a slice of world's series melon. The Johnsons still believe that they have a chance to win the pennant, although admitting that it is a slim one, while they are actually confident of their ability of finishing second, despite the challenge of the New York Yankees.

Lloyd Brown, the little southpaw who performed so brilliantly while losing a 2-to-1 decision against Earl Whitehill and the Tigers last Tuesday, will draw the native mound assignment, with George Blaeholder, who has been going great guns of late, slated to oppose him.

Washington Club officials and players are not the only ones who have not given up on the Nationals with respect to their pennant chances, for E. S. Barnard, American League head, who was here for a short time yesterday, also believes that the Johnsons still are in the race.

Teams Have Gained 7 Games in Week.

"I've seen teams gain seven games in one week," said Mr. Barnard yesterday, "and my experience has shown that a race is never over until the finish. Suppose, for instance, the Nationals should take their five remaining games from the Mackmen," he said. "Then the race would be tightened up and you never can tell what might happen. You know, when a team suddenly threatens from behind, it's the front runners who suffer the strain, while the spurt gives the rallying team added confidence. Take it from me, you can't count Washington out of the race until the standings show it mathematically impossible for them to win."

The Nationals meet the Mackmen three times in succession beginning Sunday, the Sabbath contest being scheduled for Griffith Stadium, with single games listed in Philadelphia Monday and Tuesday.

Regulars to Return For Series.

Not only is Johnson saving his three best pitchers for these games, with Al Crowder due to hurl tomorrow, Jones on Monday and Hadley on Tuesday, but he plans to have all of his regulars back on the job. This means that Buddie Myer will return to second and Ossie Bluege to third, with Joe Judge remaining on first. With respect to the latter berth, Joe Kuhel was out in uniform yesterday and says his injured right ankle will be as good as new within the next few days. Judge, however, likely will remain in action over the balance of the route, the Nat leader stated last night.

Manager Johnson last night had nothing but good to say regarding the manner in which Jimmy McLeod has been holding down third-base in recent games. The youngster has particularly impressed the Nat leader with his steadiness. "If he develops into a hitter, he'll be one of the best third-sackers in the league," Johnson remarked. When it is considered that "Mac" is only 19 years of age and that he has had less than a full season of professional experience, his case surely is exceptional.

BROWNS BEAT NATS IN 10 FRAMES, 4-3

the eighth. Then the Nat pitcher let the Brownies snatch victory from his grasp.

Meanwhile the Nats had touched Stewart's offerings for a dozen hits and three runs and appeared to have the little left-hander beaten. They jumped into a 2-run lead in the fifth as a result of West's opening single, McLeod's sacrifice, Hadley's three-bagger, and Rice's one-shot, while they added their third run in the eighth, molding it from Manush's double and a single by Judge.

Manush led the Nats in their attack against his former mates, poling out a double and two singles, with Hadley getting a triple and single to help along his cause. Of the six St. Louis hits, Metzler and Melillo were credited with two each, the latter driving home two runs with his double, while Metzler propelled one over and scored another himself.

Judge's defensive work in the tenth was dazzling, and it was not his fault that the Nats were beaten, for his timely single scored the third Washington run of the game.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

the first run of the game in the home fifth, went all the way to the angle to the left of the scoreboard. Had the pitcher been a little faster the blow would have been a homer.

Hadley fanned the side in the sixth while the Browns died on successive pop fouls in the seventh. Spencer was charged with an error in this latter frame when he dropped Farrell's high foul after having caught two in a row. This did no harm for Ferrell then popped to Judge near the coacher's box.

Goslin made a nice catch at Judge's expense, ending the sixth, taking a near Texas leaguer after Kress first had waved him away. He had to dive at the last moment to grab the ball near the ground.

Hadley came through with his second hit of the game in the seventh.

Strikeout victims Nos. 7 and 8 were added to Hadley's list in the eighth. They were Schulte and O'Rourke, the latter fanning for the third successive time.

Manush's double in the eighth hit fair on the right-field wall by a margin of less than a yard.

Hadley did not issue a walk until the ninth. Then this was turned into the run which tied the score.

A good running catch by Metzler robbed Hadley of a third hit and the Nationals of what would have been the winning run, for Bluege, running for McLeod, was on first at the time and the drive looked like a sure double.

Judge made the best play seen here for a long while in the tenth. Taking Stewart's attempted sacrifice bunt with his gloved hand he turned it into a force play at second, for O'Rourke had led off with a walk.

PLAYGROUND HONORS TO CARDOZA

Post's Track Trophy Is Eagerly Sought in Colored Meet.

CARDOZA PLAYGROUND boys won the Municipal Playground Department's annual field and track meet for colored youths yesterday and by so doing gained possession of The Washington Post Cup for a period of one year. Every boy who was first, second or third in any event received a gold, silver or bronze medal, respectively, from The Post. The meet was held in the Howard University Stadium.

Cardoza owed its success to strong relay teams more than anything else. The winners scored 38 points and of these 16 were earned in the relays. Howard tracksters were close on the heels of Cardoza with 30 points, and Briggs, 1929 champions, was a good third with 29.

Other point scorers follow in order: Sixth and L, 15; Magruder, 13; Willow Tree, 12; Shaw, 8; Bruce, 7; Lovejoy, 5; Barry Farms, 4; Logan, 3; Rose Park, 3. Although scoring but 3 points, Logan Playground, winner of The Post Cup three times, was commended by Mrs. Susie Root Rhodes, supervisor of playgrounds, for its large entry list, as 51 boys represented it. Cardoza brought 52 athletes, while the remainder of the grounds were represented by from 40 to 48 trackmen each.

No Records Are Broken.

Despite the fact that no records were broken, competition was keen throughout the day. Fast time was made by R. Miller, of Cook, in the half-mile run, which was negotiated in 2 minutes and 12 seconds.

The new race on the Municipal Playgrounds program, the Tehe, brought out a large number of entries. Incidentally this race was the feature of the day, although it was in the 70-pound class. R. Coulston, of Cardoza, pulled a "Paddock" finish to get the verdict in this event. Five yards from the finish he was trailing by 2 feet, but by lunging at the tape he nosed out his competitor by inches. The winning team was coached by Chauncey Parker.

70-POUND CLASS.

50-yard dash—Won by Jackson (Briggs); Page (Bruce); Blair (Cardoza). Time, 7 seconds.

Baltimore, Manchester To Eastern Legion Final

Meet Today for Right to Tackle Western Champs; Baltimore Beats Bridgeport; Tampa Bows to Manchester.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Aug. 22. Following hard earned victories today in the Eastern division semifinals of the American Legion national baseball tournament, the Baltimore and Manchester teams will meet tomorrow to decide which nine will be matched against the champions of the West in the "Junior world series" at Memphis next week.

It required ten innings for the B. & O. Post Team to conquer Bridgeport today. The Connecticut lads, quite chesty following their decisive win over the Gastonia, N. C., Team yesterday, were confident of repeating today. The Maryland boys got off to a good start, registering three runs in the first two frames, only to lose the lead in the third when Bridgeport scored four runs. Baltimore again forged to the front in the fifth, when Bolognes' double sent Jacobs and Newberry across.

Kaun's circuit smash in the eighth seemed to cinch the contest, but Bridgeport knotted the count in the ninth.

Baltimore launched a vigorous attack in her half of the tenth. Successive hits by Steiner, Koslowski, Kaun and Burrows produced three runs, which proved sufficient, as the best Bridgeport could do was to add one run to her total.

Kaun led with the stick for the victors, getting three hits, including a double and homer.

His backstop work was of a high order. Jacobs, midget second baseman, again put up a flashy game. He drew three passes. Bolognes contributed a pair of timely doubles.

The Manchester, N. H., Team, after trailing Tampa for eight innings, pounded Carstans from the mound in the ninth frame, and treated his successor, Leavine, almost as harshly. In all, five runs filtered over the plate, which left the score standing 6 to 3 in favor of the New Hampshire Team.

The Floridians fielded brilliantly throughout.

Philadelphia Girl Winner Of 10-Mile Toronto Swim

TORONTO, Ontario, Aug. 22 (A.P.). A distinct outsider, Margaret Ravior, of Philadelphia, splashed her way to victory in the 10-mile Marathon swim for women, opening event of the Canadian National Exhibition today.

Finding the waters of Lake Ontario much to her liking, Miss Ravior, always a contender, took the lead after 8 miles and crossed the finish line nearly three minutes ahead of Mrs. Ruth Tower Corsan, of Toronto, former Denver girl, and with Ethel Oertle Gary, of New York, an outstanding favorite to win the event. Mrs. Gary finished third, nearly 20 minutes behind the winner.

Miss Ravior swam the rectangular course in 5 hours 31 minutes 39 1-5 seconds, to win first prize money of $5,000. Mrs. Corsan's time was 5:34:31 3-5 and Mrs. Gary's 5:51:15. Second place carried a cash award of $2,500, while Mrs. Gary's share of the prize money was 1,000.

May Loney, of Warren, Ohio, another outsider, won fourth place and $750; Anna Priller-Benoit, of Miami, Fla., won fifth place and $500, while the last money winner was Irene Yurack, of Elmhurst, N. Y., whose sixth place entitled her to $250.

One hundred and fifty yards behind Miss Yurak and just out of the money was Olive Gatterdam, of Toronto, formerly of Seattle, Wash.

mann, St. Louis, 6—4, 6—2. The winners had enfirely too much speed afoot and too much power on their drives for the St. Louisians, whose soft returns and lobs made smashes at the net rather easy to negotiate. The extremes of age of the tourney met in this match. Miss Haas is 15 and Mrs. Lindemann, 34.

Markey and Eddie Yeomans, holders of the Washington parks double title, registered a sensational upset when they eliminated the famed Lejeck brothers, Leo and Charles, of Chicago, in a second-round doubles match. The scores were 6—3, 5—7, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4. The first three sets of this encounter were played on Thursday.

Darkness Stops Doubles Quarter-Final.

Following within fifteen minutes of the last two sets, the winners tackled Jack Castle and Leo Kronman, Buffalo, in the quarter-finals, but darkness halted the battle with the score deadlocked. Markey and Yeomans won the second and fourth sets, 6—4, 6—3 their rivals winning the first and third, 7—5, 7—5, with the fifth and final tied at 1-all. This will be finished this morning at 10 o'clock.

Considine and Mitchell had little trouble winning from Tiller and Hall, although they loosened up in the second set to make it hard for themselves for a short time. The count was 5—3 against them in this chapter, when they settled down and ran out with four straight games. In the first set they took a 5-to-0 lead and gained a 3-to-0 advantage in the third set.

Gus Amsterdam and Milford Meyer, Philadelphia second seeded doubles team, were taken by surprise when they ran up against the accurate-driving Nowak-Simons combination and were eliminated in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4, 6—3.

Grocery Store Is Robbed.

The Sanitary Grocery Co. store at 1533 Eleventh street northwest was robbed early yesterday by thieves who entered the place through a side window. Eugene F. Wemple, 4306 Third street northwest, manager of the store, discovered the robbery when he opened the place for business. A small amount of cash and some commodities were taken.

Rum Arrest Follows Vigil.

A three-day vigil by Eighth Precinct Policemen William McEwen and H. M. Smith at a private garage in the rear of an Eighth street residence near V street northwest, ended early last night with the arrest of a Negro on charges of possessing seven half-gallons of liquor. He gave his name as Benjamin Brown, 30 years old, of an Eighth street residence near B street northwest.

STOCKS TURN HIGHER IN LISTLESS SESSION

Bears' Early Efforts Are Resisted by Modest Price Advances.

SALES VOLUME IS SMALL

New York, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Share prices turned upward once more in an extremely sluggish session of the stock market today.

Bears made efforts to extend the decline of the previous session during the early hours of the day, but made so little progress that speculation for the rise was resumed after midday. Price movements on the whole were narrow, and the advance was modest. The price index of 90 shares showed a gain of only 1 1-5 points for the day. The day's turnover of 1,335,680 shares was one of the smallest of the year.

The rally appeared soon after announcement of filing of a receivership petition against Warner Bros., charging mismanagement. This stock has become an unsettling factor of late, as Fox Film was last December. It was omission of the Warner dividend that was a moving factor in the sharp decline of a fortnight ago.

Contest for Control Seen.

The fact that the petition charged mismanagement rather than questioning the company's solvency, however, was reassuring. After selling off 3 points to a new low, the stock rallied to close only ½ off. Wall street looks for a contest for control of the company.

The day's news was meager enough to intensify the speculative apathy. Aside from the Warner devolpment, there was little in the way of corporate news, aside from announcement of halving the $2 dividend rate of McKesson & Robbins. After the close, Sinclair's first half earnings were disclosed as only 49 cents a share compared to dividend requirements for the period of $1 a share.

The tobacco issues displayed conspicuous group firmness, reflecting the favorable cigarette consumption figures from last month. Manufacturing issues and utilities generally were firm, but rails and coppers eased and oils were sluggish.

Tobacco Shares Up.

American Tobacco B sold up 6½ points to within 11 points of the year's high and closed near the top. The new American Tobacco issues reached new highs. Other tobaccos generally gained 1 to 2 points.

Radio Keith was again an active feature, selling about a point higher, then losing its gain. Fox and Loew's were firm. International Business Machines, normally lightly traded, sold up about 4 points in a fair turnover, then yielded half its gain. The rise was attributed to announcement that it had orders to keep its principal plant running at capacity for several months.

The safety razor stocks rallied a little, reflecting reports that merger negotiations are still in progress. Autostrop closed up 3. Shares gaining 2 to 3 included American Power & Light, Bullard, Eastman, Johns Manville, Stone & Webster and Vanadium, while U. S. Steel, General Motors, General Electric, American Can and United Aircraft gained about a point each.

Coppers and Rails.

Anaconda and Kennecott both sagged about a point to new lows, and Illinois Central and Baltimore & Ohio also reached new minimum levels. Goodyear sagged 2 points on a report that output would be curtailed next month. Nickel Plate, Chicago Northwestern and New Haven eased a point or two.

Like stocks, commodities moved narrowly and uncertainly. Wheat and corn closed practically unchanged after selling off a little, then rallying. The movement in cotton was also narrow, and the closing tone steady.

Credit was plentiful. Call money held at 2 per cent all day but was available outside at 1½. Foreign exchanges were steady to firm. Sterling held at $4.87⅛, and the Canadian dollar increases its premium to ⅛, suggesting the revival of gold shipments to Montreal.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Evidence of corn market power to rally from price setbacks did a good deal to put backbone into grain values here today, despite earlier downturns. A reason for renewal of strenth in corn values was likelihood that liberal clearances of corn out of Chicago by lake vessels will be announced tomorrow. There were also late estimates that the yield of wheat in the Canadian prairie provinces would be only about 338,000,000 bushels, contrary to previous estimate today was 350,000,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on corn were nervous, ⅛ cent off to ¼ cent up compared with yesterday's finish. Wheat closed irregular at ⅛ cent net decline to ¼ cent advance, with oats 1 cent to 1¼ cents advanced and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Bulges in corn prices carried the market up quickly 2 cents a bushel today, but then selling that was associated with what was heavy trade in a temporary drop, which, however, was displaced by rebounds as the day drew to an end. Demand for corn available to be used at once showed enlargement, whereas country offerings to arrive lacked volume. Meanwhile, advices were plentiful indicating continued deterioration of the corn crop since August 1, notably a report from a nationally known authority, who telegraphed from Brookings, S. Dak., saying expectance in that region is for only half a crop of corn and that no one will feel the loss more poorly filled ears until corn picking starts.

Wheat, oats and provisions all responded readily to late rallies in the corn market. It was noticeable that reports of feedings of wheat to live stock were increasing, with some reports saying that such feeding has started earlier and on a much larger scale than ever before. Over a large area of the corn belt damaged sections during past years. A leading trade expert said the heavily increased use of wheat as a feed is due to the unusual present price relations of corn and wheat as much as it is to corn crop damage. Announcement of liberal export clearances of wheat this week helped the late recovery of wheat values. Oats displayed independent strength owing to free speculative buying of the December delivery.

Provisions turned upward toward the last with grain, despite previous setbacks on account of lower quotations on hogs.

BOND MARKET RISES TO NEW HIGH LEVEL

Advance Is Attributed to Strength of Utility and Rail Issues.

INDUSTRIALS ARE FIRM

New York, Aug. 22 (A.P.). — The listed bond market was carried to a new high level for the year today on the strength of selective buying of domestic issues. It was the second time this week that the former high mark for the year has been revised in the averages.

The advance was ascribed to the strength of railroad and utility issues, with the latter profiting from increased buying. Many seasoned issues which have previously reached new peaks on the present forward movement were conspicuous in the list of carrier issues which sold at new top prices.

They included Chicago & Alton 3s, Canadian National 4½s, Cincinnati, Indiana, St. Louis & Chicago 4s; Rock Island & Pacific 4s of 1988, Lehigh & New York 4s, Toledo & Ohio Central 5s, Wabash second 5s, and Western Maryland 4s of 1952.

B. & O. Convertibles Active.

Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, a convertible issue, was the most active in the railroad group, sagging nearly a point, and closing ⅜ lower. Other rail convertibles were steady to firm. Cuba Railway 5s rallied 3 points, up 16 from its recent year's low, and Lehigh & New York 4s, an inactive issue, soared 4 points.

Bidding for about a dozen utility obligations was brisk. Brooklyn Union Gas 5s, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s, Public Service Electric & Gas 4½s, Columbia River Power & Light 4½s, Newark Gas 5s, New York Gas & Electric 4s of 1949, and Federal Light & Traction first 6s registered new peaks. Havana Electric 5½s rallied 1½ points from its low.

Good Industrials Firm.

High-grade industrials were firm. Western Electric 5s duplicated its recent high.

Renewed selling of Warner Bros. convertible 6s carried it to a new low at 87½, off 1⅝.

Treasury issues were lightly traded and firm. South American issues were a weak spot among foreign bonds. Peru first and second 8s sagged nearly 2 points, and several other municipal issues were in supply. German 5½s were the most active of the European issues, holding steady.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agri., Weather Bureau, Washington, Friday, Aug. 22—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia—Somewhat over cast Saturday; Sunday fair; slowly rising temperature; gentle to moderate north winds.

For Maryland—Cloudy, possibly preceded by rain on the coast, Saturday; Sunday fair; slowly rising temperature; fresh to strong north winds, diminishing.

For Virginia—Partly cloudy and continued cool Saturday; Sunday mostly fair; fresh to strong north winds, diminishing.

The Atlantic coast disturbance is central about 200 miles east of Cape Hatteras, attended by gales. It will move northeastward with increasing intensity. Pressure is relatively low and falling over British Columbia, Kamloops, 29.72 inches. High pressure prevails from the upper Lake region eastward to the Canadian Maritime Provinces, Marquette, 30.26 inches, and Cape Race, 30.28 inches. During the last 24 hours showers have occurred in the middle Rocky Mountain region, the southern Plains States, the Carolinas, along the Middle Atlantic Coast, and in the upper Ohio Valley. Temperatures have risen over the northern Plains States and in Montana, while they have fallen slightly in Virginia and North Carolina.

The outlook is for rain on Saturday along the Middle Atlantic Coast and in portions of New England, and for showers on Sunday in the lower Ohio Valley and western Tennessee. Elsewhere the weather will be partly overcast Saturday and Sunday in the Washington forecast district. Temperatures will rise on Saturday in the southern Appalachian region, and on Sunday, in the lower Lake region, the Ohio Valley and the interior of the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States.

SHOW GIRL — Hard on the Feet! — By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

HIDE IN THE DARK

By FRANCES NOYES HART
Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

A Ruined Career.

Tom asked: "Are you trying to pick a quarrel with me, old boy? I wouldn't."

"Go ahead—tell him," commanded Sherry fiercely, far beyond the control of that quiet voice. "Trudi thinks you're keeping your mouth shut because you're a little tin god on wheels, that wouldn't let me down by telling Dart that you got out of the firm because you thought that the plantation stuff was crooked. Well, I think you aren't telling him because you don't want him to know that you had a bloody row with Doug in 1919, and that you've hated him like rat poison ever since because you believe that he ruined your career."

"I know that he ruined my career," said Tom Ross, and once more the line of sweat edged the fine, sensitive lips. "I know that he has ruined Chatty's life and my children's lives, too. I know that I can't give my children proper medical attention when they're ill, or proper education when they're well, and that the only evening dress my wife has had since I can remember was made tonight with nail scissors out of a 3-year-old street frock. I know all of these things and I think that Doug King was a little bit cheaper and rottener and viler than rat poison * * * Is that what you wanted me to tell Gavin Dart?"

"You're crazy, what did Doug have to do with your career after you cut loose from me?"

"He had this to do with it. Since the day I forced you into choosing between Doug and me, and you chose Doug, there's not been one opportunity that he's let go by to spread and intensify the rumor that I was forced out of that firm because of unprofessional and discreditable conduct on my part."

"You're out of your head. Doug never——"

"Sherry, I know that I'm a failure, but you know that I'm not a fool These rumors have been getting back to me for a good many years now, they've reached my own firm—they've reached half a dozen other firms that were disposed to be friendly to me. In at least four cases I learned that Doug knew the fellows that were putting me on my guard as to those rumors. He knew that if I were ever in a strong position I might be able to do him some damage; and he took excellent care that I should never get in one—such excellent care that today I'm barely more than an underpaid law clerk, while you're able to give Trudi seventy pairs of shoes a year."

"Trudi!" Sherry turned his livid face to the still figure in the corner of the loveseat, with a dreadful sound of laughter. "Trudi, that's good! So you haven't got anything, haven't you? You poor lucky stiff, you've got everything in the world! You've got kids instead of parrakeets and a fan-tailed goldfish; you've got a home instead of a traveling circus; you've got a wife who thinks you're a genius and a hero and a martyr instead of a total loss; and if you want Trudi, you've got her, too—you've had her ever since the first day you laid eyes on her."

"Oh, Sherry, you fool!" Trudi's voice barely above a whisper, stayed the frantic torrent for a moment. She sat rigid, her eyes fixed unflinchingly on the desperate face, her hands wrung together until the knuckles gleamed white, while over the level eyes, the steady lips, wave after wave of engulfing crimson broke and ebbed.

Sherry, Gone Mad.

"You're right, I'm a fool! But Tom isn't—didn't you hear him tell you so? Tom knows that all he has to do is to whistle and you'll come running. Whistle now, why don't——"

The crack of a hand against his cheek echoed through the appalled silence like a pistol shot, and Chatty the gentle, Chatty the soft and yielding, stood glaring down at him like a miniature of the avenging angel.

"How dare you talk about her that way? How dare you?" She flashed by him, without so much as a glance at the red bars of her fingers against the livid cheek, dropping on her knees beside the loveseat. "Trudi, darling, don't listen. Trudi, don't mind * * * we know it's not true. We know it's just that Sherry's gone mad——"

Trudi, from whose face and throat the scarlet wave had ebbed, said quietly through white lips:

"I don't mind * * * And you mustn't mind that Sherry's not really mad. He's quite sure, you see, that Tom won't whistle." She lifted the small sturdy hand, with its dimpled knuckles and reddened palm, and held it for a moment against her cheek, as though in that brief contact she found healing. "Chatty, you love me, don't you?"

"So much, Trudi."

"And I love you—so much. Let's forget everything else and remember that—that and one other thing. Remember that there's never been one day since you found each other that I haven't been glad that you had Tom and that he had you. Don't forget that, will you, Chatty?"

"No, dear."

After a moment, she said slowly:

"Sherry, if I've made you or any one else think that I despise you, I deserve everything you've said—I deserve more. Don't go back on me now, old boy * * * Friends again?"

He caught convulsively at the outstretched hand, his face straining for the control that Trudi wanted.

"Trudi—my God, my God, Trudi, what made me do that? Trudi——"

"Don't take it too hard, Sherry; we're all in the same boat * * * I've been acting like a beast myself for hours. I don't think any of us seem temperamentally adapted for a murder. Well, Gavin, still think it was Sherry?"

"I've about given up thinking." He looked as weary as the weary voice. "The only valid reason that I can see for eliminating Sherry is that we've temporarily substituted some one else."

"Some one else?"

"We've substituted Tom Ross, haven't we? You were in the chapel at the time the murder was committed, Ross?"

"I don't know. I don't know when the murder was committed."

"At approximately that time then. And you were in this room again when the phonograph started playing?"

"No. You're quite wrong there. I wasn't more than half way across the chapel when the phonograph started."

Facts and Theories.

"I wasn't trying to trip you up, my dear fellow. What I meant was that theoretically you had access to this room on both occasions."

"I'm afraid that I haven't attained your Olympian detachment," replied Tom Ross pleasantly. "I thought you were after facts, not theories. The fact is that I wasn't in the room."

"And if you're linking the phonograph and murder together, you're letting Sherry out, aren't you?" inquired Trudi dispassionately. "It would be a little difficult even for you, Gavin, to evolve a theory that would bring Sherry from the ladder to this room in three or four seconds."

"Sherry might have an accomplice."

"You mean me?" She considered this for a moment in silence. "Yes, I see what you mean. If Jill could have slipped into the room in the dark, so could I—and out of it, too, if it comes to that. Well, that seems to let all of us in—Larry, Jill, you, Hanna, Tom, Kit—oh, the whole shooting match. And that leaves us just about where we started, doesn't it?"

"A little worse off, I should say."

"All right then; let's start again. Let's start with those three or four questions that you wanted cleared up. You found out about Kit and Panama, but you haven't found out what Doug wanted Lindy for, or what upset Ray when she went upstairs, have you? Why not have another go at that?"

"An excellent suggestion, Trudi—and a fairly well-merited rebuke. I'm afraid. Very well; here is where the clouded Master Mind abandons the blind alleys of speculation and returns to the straight and narrow path of facts. Lindy, will you tell us now why Doug King called you upstairs just before the game started?"

Questions Unanswered.

Lindy lifted her eyes from the twisted pearls, looked at him pensively for a moment, as though she were trying to weigh some inponderable facts, and then said, with a curious and inflexible finality: "No."

"No?" He echoed it blankly. "And why not, may I ask?"

"Because, Gavin, the thing that Doug wanted to discuss with me didn't involve simply myself. Others were seriously involved in it, and as it was an extremely personal matter, I'm sure you'll forgive me for not being willing to drag them into all of—this."

He said quietly: "I wish you could see your way to helping us, Lindy. Well, Ray, how about you?"

The small creature curled dejectedly in the corner of the love seat turned on him a pair of round hazel eyes, tragically forlorn in the small face.

"Gavin, I don't want to talk about—about those things—not now, please. Oh, Gavin, if you knew how absolutely dead I was, I do think you'd let me alone, just for tonight. I'm absolutely hollow I'm so tired, and everything all mixed up in my head. I'll only get it more mixed up if I try to tell it now, truly I will."

Joel, a brown hand linked securely about the small limp paw, murmured cajolingly: "Honey, if you tell him what happened then, Gavin'll let me take you upstairs and tuck you into bed, and I'll sit right there beside you until you go sound asleep and forget the whole dreadful mess. That's straight, isn't it, Gavin?"

"Perfectly straight."

"Can I keep the light on all night?"

"You can keep the light on for the rest of your natural life, darling Now tell us about those ghosts of yours——"

An Unknown Voice.

"They weren't—ghosts " She shuddered, her fingers clutching desperately at the reassurance of Joel's. "Gavin, it all makes me seem like such an idiot. I don't know what happened to me. I've been like an imbecile all night and that just finished me. I was pretty nearly demented with that wind and my head before I started upstairs, and then when I got there it was all dark except for one light way at the end of one of the corridors and I got frightened again * * * only worse. I remembered that there was a little jog near by bedroom, and I could see one there, too—and then something banged somewhere—oh, frightfully loud, and I put my hands over my ears and started running. I couldn't have heard anything anyway, because of that hideous wind. I wanted to shut it out, and when I got to the door I was afraid to take my hands down even for a second, even for the second that it would take to turn the handle * * * And then I took them down, and turned—and the door wouldn't open at all; it was locked. I stood there hanging onto the handle, wondering how I could ever get down those corridors again, wondering why Joel hadn't told me he'd locked the door, when I heard something move—inside, And I heard a voice." Her own voice, edged with horror, trailed off into space, her eyes following it, dilated with some incommunicable memory.

Gavin Dart asked gently: "Whose voice, Ray?"

"I don't know. It didn't sound like a real voice at all: It sounded like—like an animal's—strangled and choked, and—gagged."

"Could you hear what is said?"

"I don't want to tell you."

"Ray, I'm afraid you'll have to."

"Hold my hand tighter, Joel; hold it tighter still. It said, 'I'll get you for this tonight—if I burn for it * * *' And then I knew—then I knew that it wasn't my room that I was outside of—then I knew that this door belonged to some one else, and that something dreadful was happening behind it * * * And I let go the handle, and I ran."

"One minute, Ray. Does any one remember who was out of the room when Ray went for the aspirin?"

"I was," said Kit Baird, with commendable promptness. "And so was Doug King. I'd gone up to give him some iodine for that cut of his."

"And it was your voice that Ray heard?"

"My voice? Isn't it fairly steep to ask a fellow to split the faggots for his own funeral pyre?"

"Not so steep as to deny my question, I'm afraid."

A Bedroom Struggle.

"Still, you know, that's just exactly what I'm going to do. The voice of prudence is counseling me to enter a blanket denial of the entire episode, but prudence and I don't get on very well together. And as we're all might seekers after the truth, I am now going to confide in you that it wasn't my voice—it was Doug's."

"And are you going to confide in us why Ray told us that it sounded so strangled as to be unrecognizable?"

"Even that, Your Honor. It sounded strangled for the simple reason that at the time I was engaged in choking Mr. King a little—oh, not enough to really hurt him, but quite enough to upset him rather badly."

"Why?"

"Is there supposed to be no limits to my philanthrophy? Very well; in one last burst of confidence I'll confess that Doug had been getting fairly well on my nerves all evening, and that I found our last little chat over the iodine just a bit more than I could stick. He was touching up the Panama episode a bit and I was fairly fed up on Panama * * * so I stopped him."

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

CHANGE IN COUNTY GOVERNMENT ASKED

Manager Form to Be Urged Upon Arlington Group by Committee.

HEALTH WARNING GIVEN

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Abolition of the present form of county government and the adoption in its stead of the county manager form, as provided in a recent act of the General Assembly, will be recommended to the Arlington County Civic Federation at its September meeting as a result of the action of that body's committee on legislation last night. The committee met at the home of William D. Medley, in Lyon Village, with its chairman, Robert N. Anderson, presiding.

The meeting marked the conclusion of several months of study on the part of the committee, during which time it considered the comparative merits of the several forms of government available to the county. These included, in addition to the present form of county government, incorporation as a city of the first class, a modified county commission form and the county manager form.

The present county government consists of a board of supervisors, three in number, one selected by each of the three magisterial districts of which the county is composed. The board is the legislative body of the county and also exercises the executive and administrative functions of the government through a directing engineer appointed by the board at a salary fixed by them and holding office at their pleasure.

Provides for Election.

The recent county government act provides for the holding of an election, upon petition of 200 voters, on the question of a change in form of county government. Three questions are to be submitted to the voters, as follows:

1. Shall there be a change in the form of government?
2. In the event of such change, shall it be the modified commission form or the county manager form?
3. In the event of such change, shall the members of the county board be elected by districts or at large?

Under the modified commission plan the act provides for the election of a board of five commissioners, to be elected at large or by districts as the voters shall have determined. All legislative, executive and administrative functions of the county are conferred upon the board of commissioners. They are required to create five administrative departments, each commissioner to be the executive head of one of such departments.

County Manager Plan.

Under the county manager plan there will be a board of five members, to be elected at large or by districts as determined by the voters. This board will possess legislative powers only. All the executive and administrative functions are to be exercised by a county manager who will be appointed by the board, at a salary fixed by them, for a term of one year, and who can not be removed from office during the year for which appointed except for cause. The county board will not have the power to appoint any of the officers or employes subordinate to the county manager. That official will make all such appointments.

Under either of the new plans of county government the present magisterial districts will be abolished. If the voters favor election of the five members of the county board by districts instead of at large, the act directs the court to divide the county into five districts of as nearly equal population as possible. These, however, will not be magisterial districts. They will be election districts.

Salary of Board Members.

Under both plans of county government the members of the board are to receive a salary of $600 each per annum. The federation committee will point out in its report that this provision alone renders the commission plan impracticable. It is impossible, they say, to obtain at that salary the services of competent commissioners who are required by the act to discharge the duties of administering one of the departments of the county government. Under the county manager plan, where the functions of the board are legislative only, the salary of $600 is regarded as adequate.

The committee will recommend that steps be taken to have the question of a change in government submitted at the regular November election. If the proposal carries the officers of the new county government will be elected in November, 1931, and take office the 1st of January, 1932.

The committee had the cooperation of similar committees from the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and the Arlington County Bar Association. It is regarded as a certainty that the latter organiations will receive the same recommendations from their committees, namely, the adoption of the county manager form of government, with the members of the county board to be elected at large.

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, again calls the attention to persons against bathing in the streams in the county and the Potomac River.

"There is great danger to health from bathing in the water of the Potomac River aboue the Key Bridge, due to the present low water resulting from the continued drought. Getting water into the mouth and ears already has caused illness among a number of children," he said.

According to reports from the office of County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, the resurfacing of all roads in the subdivisions of Virginia Highlands and Aurora Hills, within Jefferson district, has been completed. With the work of Jefferson district completed, the program as laid out will take the county road force next to Washington district and thence to Arlington district.

This work, it is stated, is being done at this time in order to have all roads within the county in good condition before the winter weather starts in.

Commenting on reports that many of those who have received their letters from the Cherrydale Baptist Church as a result of the recent disturbance, will return, the Rev. Elmer Lucas, formerly pastor of the church, said last night that it is just as certain that they will not return as it is that the sun will rise. He added that there are a number of other members who have asked him for their letters, to which he has replied that he is no longer connected with the church.

The Rev. Mr. Lucas stated last night that his plans for the future are still uncertain, but that he hopes soon to receive a call to another church.

After one of the most successful conventions and carnivals which has been conducted for the past two weeks on the field adjacent to the Woodrow Wilson School Building at Fort Myer Heights, the carnival comes to a close tonight.

Chairman John R. Mossburg announces that prizes, including an automobile and a suite of furniture, will be awarded as a closing feature tonight.

WARRENTON SHOW LURES HORSEMEN

Biggest Exhibit in Virginia Scheduled to Open on September 10.

RICH PRIZES OFFERED

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Horse fanciers of Virginia are grooming their charges for the thirty-first annual Warrenton show, the State's largest horse exhibit, which will be held on September 10 and 11. Entries close August 29.

Founded in 1899, the Warrenton Horse Show Association this year offers competition complete with 39 classes and rich in prizes. Cash and plate awards worth $7,000 are to be given, including the $1,000 Hunter Stake, coveted trophy eagerly sought after by owners throughout the State.

Another prize highly valued is the Brown Boy Trophy given annually by Mrs. D. N. Lee, of Middleburg. It is for horses 4 years and under, graded 50 per cent on conformation, quality and general promise and 50 per cent on performance. Jumping requirements are three and one-half feet for 3-year-olds and four feet for 4-year-olds.

Orange Winner Entered.

The winner in the Orange show hunter trials, Fortune Teller, owned by Dr. E. T. Price, of Richmond, has been entered in the Warrenton hunter trials, an event which attracts wide interest.

One of the most highly prized awards of the show is the Ullman perpetual challenge trophy, given to the grand champion hunter. It has a value of $300, and remains the property of the association. Each year the name of the winner is engraved on the trophy.

Plate valued at $200 and $50 in gold will be presented to the winning huntsman in the foxhound classes. Hounds will be judged as a pack for levelness, manner, workmanlike appearance and condition, 75 per cent; horses, for manner and appointments, 25 per cent.

Silver Vase to Be Awarded.

A silver vase of $250 value and ribbon will be awarded in the saddle horse championship, to which only blue ribbon winners of the Warrenton show are eligible. The trophy must be won three times by the same owner to become the winner's permanent property.

Judges of the show are to be as follows: American foxhounds, William duPont, jr., Wilmington, Del.; breeding classes, C. J. Fitzgerald, New York; hunters, Frank A. Bonsal, jr., Glyndon, Md.; Harry V. Colt, Geneseo, N. Y.; Dr. A. C. Randolph, Bluemont, Va.; saddle horses, Julian Morris, Keswick, Va.

COAL FOR SCHOOLS MAY BE REPLACED

Montgomery County Chief of Education Defends Action as to Fuel.

FAVORITISM IS CHARGED

If the coal put into three schools in Montgomery County, Md., before competitive bids were opened August 12 is found below the standard for Big Vein Georges Creek coal, it will have to be replaced with standard quality, it was declared yesterday by Dr. George E. Lewis, of Rockville, Md., county supervisor of school property.

This statement was made after the Progressive Democratic faction, which is opposing the organization now in power in the county, had protested when it was shown that Grimth & Perry, a coal company of Silver Spring, Md., had filled the bins in the Takoma Park, Woodside and Glenmont schools before the bids submitted by 25 other competing dealers had been opened and read by the county board of education.

Declaring that there had been "nothing wrong" with the transaction and that he had given the Silver Spring firm permission to put the coal into the three schools "merely as an accommodation because they had no other place to store it," Dr. Lewis said that "some time before school starts" he would ask the United States Bureau of Mines to analyze samples of the coal supplied by Griffith & Perry.

May Have to Remove It.

"If that analysis supports the analysis made for the Progressive Democratic faction and shows that the coal is below specification standards," he said, "Grimth & Perry will be required to remove it and replace it with coal that is up to standard."

Asked what would happen in case Grimth & Perry should be unable to supply standard coal, Dr. Lewis said he was unable to state yet whether the contract would go to the next lowest bidder, whose price was $5.27, or 2 cents above that quoted by Griffith & Perry, or whether new bids would be asked.

"But if any of these other dealers finally supplies the coal for these schools," he added, "we certainly will have their coal analyzed, too. It would be unfair for us to analyze the coal supplied by Grimth & Perry and not take the same precaution with that supplied by any other dealer."

250 Tons Involved.

Between 250 and 300 tons are understood to be involved in the bids for the three schools, or a total price between $1,130 and $1,575 on the basis of the low bid of $5.25 per ton submitted by Griffith & Perry. Other dealers state that a fair market price for good Big Vein Georges Creek coal now would be between $7 and $8 per ton.

In criticizing the transaction leaders of the progressive forces brought out that Thomas W. Perry, a partner in Griffith & Perry, is a brother of Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, present chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, and a brother-in-law of Mrs. Walter E. Perry, a member of the school board, both of these officials being allied with the Democratic organization forces now in power in Montgomery County.

Howard Griffith, the other partner, is a brother-in-law of Dr. Perry, it was brought out, and a brother of County Assessor A. H. Griffith, likewise an incumbent under the organization regime.

Dr. Lewis answered these facts with the declaration that "those things have no influence over our purchases of supplies for the county schools."

PRINCE H. CROWNED CHAMPION HUNTER

Bay Gelding Wins Honors in Clarke County Horse Show Feature.

300 ENTRIES IN EVENTS

Special to The Washington Post.

Berryville, Va., Aug. 22.—Prince H., a beautiful bay gelding, owned by E. W. Wolfe, of Upperville, was declared the champion hunter today of the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Clarke County Horse and Colt Show Association. This was an honor to be proud of, as never before in any of the previous shows have there been as many beautiful horses shown as the 300 entries which represented 54 leading stables from many sections of northern Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia.

There is always keen competition in Clarke County for the honor of carrying off the prizes. In the class for Clarke County hunters this year that premium went to Sir Clifton, owned and raised by Dr. L. M. Allen, of Clifton Farms.

Nothing could have been more beautiful than the Corinthian class in which the riders in full hunting costume took so easily the 4½-foot jumps. Judges for the jumping classes were Wilbur Osborne, of Gordonsville, and Congreve Jackson, of New York; for the heavy draft, Harry K. Russell and Scott Grant, of Winchester; for the races, William Metzger, of Leesburg.

Mrs. Potts Applauded.

When Mrs. Allen Potts, who is one of the most beautiful riders in Virginia, won the blue ribbon in the class for saddle horses with Love Token, her handsome brown gelding, the grandstand shook with applause.

There were fully 5,000 persons in attendance today.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA noticed me rambling around the house, looking into all the nooks and crannies.

"What're you doing?" she asked, "inspecting the premises?"

"Something like that. I'm just admiring the way you've arranged the furniture—after our vacation."

It rather pleased her, to see interest displayed in her housekeeping. Truth of it, I was searching for something that might be turned into ready cash; to get some money with which to redeem the family silverwars, down at "Old Uncle Ben's."

By and bye, I came across a lovely old oil painting—a real rarity, by a celebrated artist—tucked away in the attic. 'Twas quite a job getting the landscape out of the house without being detected; but eventually the grade was made, and I went on downtown, sold the piece to an art dealer and reimbursed Uncle Ben.

* * * *

WHEN I came home with the plate silver Luella went into ecstacies. "Oh, my!" she exclaimed, "I'm so glad you got it back. Now we can give a dinner party. Who do you think we should invite"

Enthusiastically, she went down the list of names, calling off all our friends.

"Anybody you say is all right with me," I agreed, "they're all good pals, good friends."

"But you must have somebody you like more than anybody else?"

"I do, but——"

"Who is it?"

"You embarrass me, Luella."

"No, go on and tell me."

For a moment I was frustrated, not wanting to play any favorites among our many friends; but Luella was adamant.

"Who is it you like more than anybody else?"

"If you must know," I breathed, quite romantically, "it's you, my love——"

* * * *

TAKEN unawares, for a moment she was quite nonplussed.

Finally, she rushed into my arms, buried her head in my shoulder: "In that case," she gurgled, "I'll invite the ——," and she rattled off a list of names long as your arm.

"That'll be fine," said I, relieved of the task.

"And to make the party complete," said Luella, "I'll hang the oil painting, the Old Master, that was willed to me from Uncle Bedford's estate——"

"That what?" I gasped.

"The celebrated landscape, 'Moonlight on the Glen.' It's up in the attic. You can bring it down, if you please."

Here was another blow to happiness.

TEXTILE WORKERS DRIVEN FROM TOWN

Union Group in Danville Escorts Truckload of Men to State Line.

WELFARE WORK IS CUT

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Aug. 22.—A truck containing a score of men, said by the local branch of the United Textile Workers of America, to be strikers from the textile mills at Gastonia, N. C., here seeking work in the local mills, was escorted out of town this morning by a committee of the local union. The group of 23 were taken in hand by the local union members and escorted 5 miles to the State line and told to stay out of Danville and to let the incident be a warning to others. The entire proceeding was carried out in an orderly manner.

Reports of the occurrence were confirmed at local union headquarters this afternoon, where it was stated that such a committee had been formed to see, as far as possible, that no workers were imported or that none came to work here since the union claims that scores of local mill workers are idle and need employment.

Another significant development in the textile situation here today was confirmation by the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mill Co. of reports that drastic curtailments are to be made in the welfare system of the mills. It was admitted that effective September 1, the Schoolfield Y. M. C. A., including the motion picture show, the welfare department, Hylton Hall Dormitory for Young Women and the kindergarten, will all be closed indefinitely and the group insurance on operatives of the mills cancelled.

It was also stated that Joseph Vezetti, leader of the company concert band, was no longer in the employ of the company. This action, it was stated is in line with an economy program recently approved by directors.

Reports that the local mills, which normally employ about 4,500 persons, are on the verge of a complete shutdown were denied, it being stated that future conditions must determine this and that no such action had yet been taken. Two of the five departments are already idle, having suspended several weeks ago. The mills have been operating at 50 per cent capacity since August 1, it was officially stated. Mill directors only recently slashed salaries of officials, ranging as high as 33 1-3 per cent, no further cut being made in operatives' wages.

Harrisonburg College To Grant 73 Diplomas

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 21.—The summer graduating class of the Harrisonburg State Teachers College is the largest in the history of the institution. The graduating class totals 73, distributed as follows: Forty-eight in professional courses, eleven in high school teaching and administration, eleven in elementary teaching and supervision, and three in home economics. The majority of these students come from the various counties of the State and from four other States and the District of Columbia.

President Samuel P. Duke announced today that he has secured Representative J. A. Garber, of Virginia, as the commencement speaker. Final commencement exercises will be held in Walter Reed Hall at 8 o'clock Thursday night. Dr. Charles R. Erdman, of the Princeton Theological Seminary, will be speaker at the vesper service at 6:45 o'clock Sunday.

JUDGE GIVES RULING ON DUPLICATE NOTE

Jurist in Montgomery Circuit Court Makes Award in Victor Lehto Case.

SERIES OF THEFTS LISTED

Holding that where notes are executed in duplicate purporting to be secured by a single mortgage or trust deed, the one first negotiated to an innocent purchaser carries the mortgage security, Judge Robert B. Peter, sr., in Montgomery County Circuit yesterday handed down an opinion awarding the property involved in the Victor Lehto case to W. W. McClaine, whom he held to be the first innocent purchaser.

The case has attracted considerable attention among lawyers and real estate men inasmuch as there were six persons involved in a controversy, all of whom attempted to prove that they were holders of the note secured by the trust on the property of Lehto, who fled jurisdiction and has never been arrested.

According to testimony, Lehto had secured a deed of trust on a property in Takoma Park and had used this as security on a note for $6,000. He also is said to have issued five other notes using the same deed of trust as security. The notes were allegedly issued in the following order: W. W. McClaine, November 30, 1927; International Finance Corporation, February 14, 1928; Ernest L. Schmidt, February 21, 1928; Irvin Owings, February 24, 1928; Takoma Park Bank, April 13, 1928, all of them being executed before a Washington notary public, it was claimed.

When Lehto disappeared holders of the notes attempted to collect on the property and it was found that there were duplicate notes. Suits were filed by each in an effort to force the trustees to pay the amount of the note to the holders.

Judge Peter cited Missouri cases which grew out of an almost identical manipulation by a man named Joseph S. Chick and a number of other decisions which adhered to the rule that the first innocent purchaser should carry the security.

Montgomery County police are investigating a series of robberies which took place yesterday morning in stores along the Rockville pike in Rockville and Bethesda as well as a report of much petty thievery on Conduit road from automobiles parked on the road. Three stores were robbed in Bethesda, and one in Rockville, all in a somewhat similar manner which led police to believe that they had been perpetrated by the same persons.

Cutting a small hole through the glass in the door of the Bethesda lunchroom, robbers unlocked the door and entered. A small amount of pennies was taken from the cash drawer. The robbery was reported by Joseph Frick, proprietor. The window of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. store in Bethesda on Edgemoor lane and old Georgetown road was broken with a rock and 60 dozen eggs and 35 cartons of cigarettes taken.

At the Fashion Shop, of which Harry Wolfson is proprietor, a hole was made in the show window and a pair of women's shoes taken.

Two panes in the rear door were broken to reach the lock on the back door and effect an entrance into the Piggly Wiggly store at Rockville. About $10 in cash was stolen.

Dorsey J. Griffith, 2228 Decatur place northwest, reported to police of the Bethesda substation that a series of small thefts of automobile accessories, such as tires, motometers and gasoline, had been stolen from a number of automobiles parked on Conduit road near Sycamore Island by campers along the river.

Bradley Johnson, of Brookville, Md., was arrested yesterday and turned over to Baltimore central office detectives on a charge of nonsupport and desertion preferred by his wife, Mrs. Fannie E. Johnson, of Baltimore.

MAN IS FOUND LYING SENSELESS IN ROAD

Upon Recovery, Tells Pair of Alexandrians He Was Hurled From Car.

SUIT CASE, $6 STOLEN

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Stephen Winter, 22 years old, of Perry, Okla., was found lying unconscious beside the road a short distance north of Washington avenue early yesterday morning by Richard Ross, of 515 Duke street, and Clinton Parker, of 1516 King street, who were returning from Washington. The man was taken to the hospital by Ross and Parker and was treated for cuts and bruises, including a deep cut on his head. He was able to leave the hospital yesterday.

Winter told the police he was given a lift by three men in a green touring car bearing New Jersey license tags, and when they reached a point near where he was found he was struck over the head by one of the men, after which he remembered nothing until he recovered consciousness at the hospital. He claimed that $6 and a suitcase which he had with him were missing.

The police notified Fredericksburg and Richmond authorities, as the car was bound south, but no news of Winter's assailants has been obtained.

The Alexandria Lodge of Elks, on their excursion to Marshall Hall next Tuesday, will have as their guests the children of the Alexandria Day Nursery and in addition every school child of Alexandria under 12 years of age, when accompanied by parents or otherwise chaperoned, will also be given the trip free.

The Elks have planned many entertainment features for this excursion, which promises to be the largest ever given by the lodge. The Elks Boys Band, of Washington, will give a concert here Monday evening at 8 o'clock and will go on the excursion the following day, furnishing orchestra music for dancing on the return trip. The proceeds of the excursion will go to the charity fund of the lodge.

The Friendship Veterans Fire Association will take part in the firemen's parade to be given in Washington Labor Day, a called meeting of the company having been held last night to formulate plans for their participation.

The members of the company will draw their old hand fire engine in the parade, this being a replica of the engine presented to the company by George Washington when he was a member of the company. The engine was purchased in Philadelphia and at that time was the last word in fire-fighting apparatus. It has taken many prizes in parades and attracts much attention whenever it is exhibited. The firemen will be dressed in the traditional red shirts, black trousers and leather helmets. Some of the leather fire buckets carried on the engine are said to have been used in Washington's time.

Members of the American Legion Junior Baseball Team of Gastonia, N. C., which recently defeated the Alexandria American Legion Juniors for the championship of the Southeastern States, headed by W. G. Gaston, secretary of the Gastonia Chamber of Commerce, were guests of the City of Alexandria yesterday. The party numbers 20, of whom 15 are members of the team, most of them being cotton mill employes.

An entertainment committee of Alexandrians, headed by City Manager Wallace Lawrence, after a luncheon tendered the visitors, took the boys to Mount Vernon, after which they attended the American League game in Washington.

Reports which were circulated to the effect that the 200 pounds of rain-making powder recently received by Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, from Santa Fe, N. Mex., would be sprayed on the clouds yesterday in the hope of producing rain, proved to be unfounded. Mr. Hollenga explained that the necessary spraying apparatus has not been received and until this is available the experiment will have to wait. The spraying of the powder on the clouds is to be done by an airplane from the Washington Airport.

James C. Bourne, 31 years old, was fined $5 and costs in police court by Justice W. S. Snow yesterday on a warrant sworn out by his neighbor, Policeman Fred N. Baker, charging Bourne with cruelty to animals, the alleged offense consisting of breaking the leg of Baker's dog with a brick. The case had been continued from the previous day, the judge having reserved decision until he could make an inspection of the scene and check up on the statements of witnesses.

Bourne claimed to have acted in self-defense, stating that the dog had frightened his stepdaughter and come "on his front porch as if to attack him."

Old School Baptist Body Holds Session at Luray

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Aug. 22.—The Ebenezer Old School Baptist Association, composed of churches in Page, Rappahannock, Warren, Prince William and Fauquier counties, Va., and also representing churches in Baltimore and Washington, convened in its ninety-fourth session today with Naked Creek Church, in this county. The association is composed of about 25 churches, representing a membership of three or four thousand.

Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Maryland are represented in the association. Washington city churches of the denomination are also represented. The association will last for three days with three sessions each day. The denomination does not believe in Sunday schools and missions and refuses to sanction the use of musical instruments in church worship.

Seventh Day Baptists Oppose New Calendar

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 22.—The National Seventh Day Baptist Conference at Salem was on record today as opposed to adoption of the proposed international fixed calendar, which would give thirteen months of 28 days each to the year. A resolution passed by the delegates said the new scheme would be detrimental to the church.

Delegates this afternoon were taken on automobile tours to nearby places of interest, following discussions of organization and functions of the Sabbath School.

ROVER BACKS LOWER BONDS IN RUM CASES

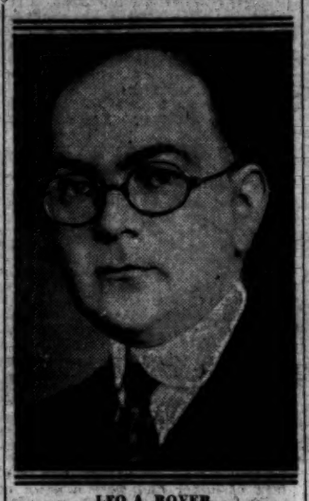
Crusade of Hart Meets With Approval of U. S. Attorney.

$2,000 POLICE BAIL REDUCED ONE-HALF

May Schedule Secrecy Causes Complaint by Lawyers.

KRONHEIM QUIZ PLEA SET FOR TOMORROW

Association Chief Blames "Disgruntled Attorneys" for Controversy.



LEO A. ROVER.

The stamp of approval on the crusade for nominal bonds in liquor law cases was fixed yesterday by the office of United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, when William A. Gallagher, an assistant, acting as United States attorney in the absence of his chief, approved a bond of $1,000 for a Negro, William Jones, charged by police with transportation and possession and held under $2,000 bond.

Mr. Gallagher's action was in line with the fight launched earlier in the week by Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, who declared that police should hold a man only on a small bond, leaving it up to his office, judges of Police Court or the commissioner to determine whether a higher bond should be assessed.

Bond Schedule Dispute.

Coincidentally it was revealed that the new bond schedule approved by Police Court judges last May never had been given to the Police Department. It never was revealed in toto to the press, and numbers of attorneys complained yesterday that secrecy shrouding the new scale had worked untold damage to their clients, particularly those held after 11 o'clock at night.

After 11 o'clock at night, attorneys state, police demand bonds according to the scale fixed by the judges and many persons since May have been held under heavier bonds than the judges' order of May authorized.

Lawyers insist that men arrested after 11 o'clock at night since May have been forced to make bonds of $2,000 or more in order to be liberated, because of this negligence.

Action by Kronheim.

Coincidentally, Milton J. Kronheim, president of the Professional Bondsmen's Association, declared that the resources of his organization would back any probe to purge it and the Police Department of charges of collusion. Kronheim, in a prepared statement, said, despite the fact that he did not see United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday, he would see him Monday and demand an official inquiry.

At the same time Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, in charge of prohibition enforcement in Police Court, declared that at last the police had gotten his idea of making good cases in few instances instead of lots of poor cases that will not stand up.

"Since Monday," said the prosecutor," the police have cooperated 100 per cent. Until yesterday I received only an average of two cases a day until this morning the police presented six cases and in every instance they had followed instructions of this office to the letter. I do not say that we will convict all the defendants charged, but we stand a better chance to do so then we did in

HEAD OF PAINT FIRM BADLY HURT IN FALL

SKULL BELIEVED BROKEN

Tumbling from a second-story window in his home at 4333 Kansas avenue northwest, Adolphe C. Neubeck, 52 years old, head of the paint firm of A. C. Neubeck & Co., received critical injuries early last night.

Attendants at Garfield Hospital, reporting him in a grave condition, declared he received severe concussion of the brain, possible fracture of the skull, internal injuries and other hurts about the body.

Mr. Neubeck was injured while he was said to have been standing on a second-floor window sill attempting to make repairs on a wire leading to the radio aerial. William Smithers, an employe of the Southern Dairies and a next door neighbor, said he heard the crash of window glass while he was leaving his back-yard garage and turned to see the man falling from the ledge.

Striking the roof of a porch 15 feet below, Mr. Neubeck rolled off and fell the remaining 20 feet to the ground, where he was picked up unconscious by Mr. Smithers. Police and Garfield Hospital immediately were notified.

Dog Fancier, Bitten, Expires of Paralysis

Albany, Ga., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—An unusual illness which puzzled physicians for three weeks brought death today to J. R. Wilcox, widely known as a dog breeder and manufacturer of dog foods and medicines.

Mr. Wilcox's illness came after he had taken 18 of the prescribed 21 treatments of rabies vaccine after being bitten by a dog. Some time after he had taken the treatments he began to suffer from paralysis that gradually extended over his body. His illness did not respond to treatment and physicians were unable to diagnose his case definitely.

Jury Charges Lynching To Mob of "Unknown"

Wilson, N. C., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—A verdict that Oliver Moore, 26, Negro, was "lynched by a mob of masked men whose identity is unknown" was returned by a Wilson County coroner's jury today.

The jury heard the story of the attack on the jail last Tuesday and of investigations made since, but no evidence was given it which connected any one with the lynching.

Dr. Charles Butts Injured in Crash

Geological Survey Expert Suffers Broken Arm as Car Overturns.

Hurt when the automobile he was driving plunged down an embankment and was wrecked on the Lee-Jackson highway near Aldie, Loudoun County, Va., yesterday morning, Dr. Charles Butts, 65 years old, a veteran specialist in the Geological Survey, was recovering last night at Emergency Hospital here.

Dr. Butts, a resident of 1808 Kenyon street northwest, suffered a broken shoulder and two fractures of an arm as well as shock. Knocked unconscious by the crash, he was extricated from his wrecked machine by passing motorists and removed by Loudoun and Fairfax Counties policemen. He regained consciousness several hours later and was reported in a condition not believed serious.

At the time of the accident Dr. Butts was returning to his home for a week-end visit with his family after field work in which he has been engaged during the greater part of the summer in and near Harrisonburg, Va.

MRS. FERGUSON FAR TO REAR IN TEXAS RUN-OFF

Trails Sterling in Race for Governor, Post She Once Had.

BITTER DRIVE DRAWS THOUSANDS TO POLLS

Victor Will Face G. O. P. Candidate Who Lost Six Years Ago.

WILLIAMS IN BATTLE FOR CONGRESS SEAT

Woman's Victory Will Mean Rum Violators' Release, Husband Says.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, Texas' first and only woman governor, was far behind Ross S. Sterling, wealthy Houston publisher and oil man, in early returns from today's Democratic run-off race for the guberantorial nomination.

Unofficial returns to the Texas election bureau at 9 o'clock tonight from 167 of the State's 253 counties, including ten complete, gave the following vote on today's contest: Ross S. Sterling, Houston, 180,280; Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, 124,842.

Today's run-off voting was preceded by an extremely bitter campaign filled with personalities.

No G. O. P. Election.

Five other Democratic nominations for State office were contested today. In the only congressional race partial returns from three of twelve counties gave Quinn Williams, of Decatur, incumbent, 5,690 votes, and B. D. Sartin, Wichita Falls, Hoover Democrat leader, 5,494.

Run-off voting between the two high candidates for office is required in Texas when no one receives more than 50 per cent of the total vote in the regular primary. The Republicans did not hold a run-off election.

The winner will meet Dr. George C. Butte, of Austin, the Republican nominee, in the November election. Butte was defeated for the governorship in 1924 by Mrs. Ferguson.

In the first primary a month ago Mrs. Ferguson led Sterling by 72,000 votes but their combined vote was less than half of the total cast for all candidates.

Husband Leads Drive.

The bitterness of the run-off primary campaign, in which both sides indulged freely in personalities, brought the voters to the polls in force today to decide the issue.

Mrs. Ferguson took virtually no part in the campaign, her candidacy being presented by her husband, former Gov. James E. Ferguson, who was ineligible himself because of his impeachment in 1917. Mr. Ferguson left no doubt that he would have a leading role in the event of his wife's election, offering the voters "two governors for the price of one."

Mr. Ferguson promised that his wife would pardon all convicts serving sentences for violation of the State prohibition law, although she has been regarded as a dry personally.

Mr. Sterling, who was attacked by Mr. Ferguson because of his wealth and on the ground that he lacked ability, promised a business administration if he is elected. The Houston man declared that "honesty in government" was the chief issue, citing Gov. Ferguson's impeachment and removal from office and attacking the pardon and parole record of Mrs. Ferguson when she was governor.

MYSTERY GIRL, DEAD 11 YEARS, IDENTIFIED

Omaha Editor Finds Family of Illinois Girl Slain During Honeymoon.

HUSBAND GANG'S VICTIM

Omaha, Nebr., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Eleven years of tireless, unremitting work by an Omaha newspaper city editor today had finally resulted in establishing the identity of Omaha's "Mystery Girl," murdered here in 1919 and long ago written off the books of police from one end of the country to the other.

The girl was identified by an Omaha World Herald reporter who took her photograph to Carthage, Ill., and presented it to John W. McConnell, retired farmer. McConnell said the girl was his daughter, Mrs. Beulah McConnell Wagle of Colchester, Ill., who married Henry Kelly Wagle, a liquor dealer, in 1919. The couple, he said, left Carthage on a honeymoon from which Mrs. Wagle never returned. Wagle died a little over a year ago, shot down by gangster enemies.

Since the day in November, 1919, when a farmer discovered the girl's body, shot through the head, in a lonely ravine north of Omaha, establishment of identity of the "Mystery Girl" has been the hobby of Benjamin Sylvester, city editor of the Omaha World Herald. Thousands of people, many of them from far places, viewed the girl's body in 1919, as it lay for days in a morgue here awaiting possible identification. Dozens of clews were traced down by police and by newspapermen.

The girl was finally buried in a potter's field and the case assigned by the police to the limbo of unsolved crimes. Every year, on the morning after Memorial Day, a wreath of flowers was found on the "mystery girl's" grave, but this mysterious memorial was generally ascribed to the generosity of some unknown Omaha citizen whose heart was touched by the girl's youth, beauty and mysterious, lonely death.

Sylvester, however, kept up his search, convinced that, sooner or later, the girl's identity would be established. It was a photograph he had caused to be taken while the girl lay in the morgue here that was identified by her father.

Three sisters of the girl, as well as her daughter, corroborated the

GERMAN FLIERS SPAN ATLANTIC; BELIEVED SAFE

Plane Radioes It Intends to Land at Bay on Labrador Coast.

TAKES IN ANTENNA; MESSAGES CUT OFF

Last Hop in Mysterious Flight Made From Greenland.

FOUR AVIATORS FIRST DENIED OCEAN PLANS

Intention to Come to U. S. Still Has Not Been Corroborated.

Ottawa, Ontario, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The crew of the German flying boat, bound from Europe to North America, was believed tonight to have landed safely in Cartwright Bay, Labrador.

The Hudson Bay steamer Baynain received a radio message from the craft at 1:18 p. m. (Eastern standard time), saying it was almost to Cartwright and expected to land in ten minutes. The German crew then reported that the antenna of its radio outfit was being hauled in and that it would not communicate further with the steamer.

Since there is no radio connection with Cartwright this was the last available news of the plane on its Greenland-Labrador hop, on which it took off from Ivigtut, Greenland, this morning.

Four Fliers Aboard.

Ivigtut, Greenland, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Four German aviators took off today on the last lap of a flight from Germany to the North American continent.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and his three companions, Edward Zimmer, aviation student; Franz Haek, mechanic, and Herr Albrecht, wireless operator, landed here yesterday afternoon from Reykjavik, Iceland, where they had arrived Wednesday, and made preparations to continue westward.

The fliers are reticent regarding their plans and their activities have been rather mysterious, since they left the German School for Commercial Pilots at Warnemuende, of which Von Gronau is chief, on a training flight early this week.

U. S. Hop Intention Denied.

They reached Reykjavik from the Faroe Islands Wednesday and it was reported then that they were headed for the United States. Later both Von Gronau and heads of the aviation school denied this, saying the fliers would remain in Reykjavik until the German gunboat Meteor had departed yesterday noon.

Instead, they rose early yesterday morning and went to their big Dornier Wal flying boat. Von Gronau told a bystander that they probably would be in Germany by night, but the next heard of them was that they were over the ocean half-way to Greenland. By midafternoon they had landed here.

It still has not been made known if they intend to go to the United States.

Reynolds, president of the Chicago Air Race Corporation; Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, president of the National Aeronautic Association; Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, and William Santiel, representing Mayor Thompson of Chicago.

Curtiss-Reynolds Airport, Chicago, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—A flier who chose to peril himself rather than endanger the lives of massed spectators lent a touch of breath-taking drama today to the opening of the tenth national air races. He was Fritz Loose, Germany's leading stunt pilot. His Junkers plane stalled, then crashed, after he had maneuvered it so that imperiled spectators and a score of pilots were saved from possible injury. Loose received only minor hurts.

To a salvo of cannons, the rise and fall of excited cheers, and a sweeping exhibition of aerial might, the air spectable swung to its opening, while in a far corner of the field lay the wreckage of Loose's plane, mute evidence of quick thinking which might have turned exultation into tragedy.

Loose had taken off at the east end of the field. As he reached the west end at a low altitude the motor of his plane stopped. He faced the prospect of crashing into bleachers, striking a squadron of civilian planes or smashing his own ship. He chose the latter and wheeled in a quick turn, the right wing of the ship plowing into the ground.

Directs Removal of Wreckage.

Bruised and tearful, he crawled from the wreckage and directed workers in removing it. Race officials endeavored to placate his grief by announcing they would obtain another plane for him to fly during the races.

The first racing event on the program over a 30-mile course for planes with 1,000 cubic inches displacement, was won by Jimmy Hainlip, of St. Louis, in a Travelair. His time was 9 minutes 45 seconds, and his average speed was 183.36 miles an hour.

Speed Holman, St. Paul, was second in 10:32.6, and R. O. Howard, St. Louis, third in 11:17.4.

A short time later spectators witnessed the finish of the first of the derbyists from all parts of the Nation. Jack Livingston, of Aurora, Ill., was the winner of the men's class B derby from Brownsville, Tex. W. G. Moore, only other entrant in the event, landed a few minutes later.

Senator Bingham Speaks.

Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, president of the National Aeronautical Association, was principal speaker at the elaborate ceremonies opening the air classic. Others were Earle H. Reynolds, of Chicago, president of the Air Race Corporation, and Clifford Henderson, manager of the air races.

As planes were being being tuned up for the civilian open plane race, the first on the opening day program, Army fliers soared over the grandstand in maneuvers which brought cheers from the thousands of spectators.

Just prior to the crash of Loose, Marcel Doret, of France, another of the foreign pilots, shot about in the skies, slithered over the stands and performed other stunts that held the spectators breathless.

PHYSICIAN AND WIFE HELD FOR DRUG QUIZ

Police Say Prescriptions Issued to Woman Basis for Investigation.

TWO ARE QUESTIONED

Members of the narcotic squad attached to the Detective Bureau last night arrested Dr. Edward M. Dodge, 38 years old, and his wife, Mrs. Louise Dodge, 35 years old, both of First street near V street northwest. The physician was lodged in a cell at the First Precinct, while his wife was being held at the Houes of Detention.

Using the teachnical charge of "investigation," detectives said they planned to hold the physician until an investigation of his alleged narcotic activities can be completed.

The couple were taken into custody at their home last night. They were brought to the evening "line-up" at the Detective Bureau and were questioned briefly before they were taken back to their cells.

On their way from the District Building in the custody of a matron and a policeman, the couple bid each other an affectionate farewell. They held a whispered conversation for a few moments and then were whisked away.

Detectives say that prescriptions alleged to have been written by the doctor and used by a woman are the basis for an investigation. An attempt is being made to link Dr. Dodge with the issuance of these blanks, some of which, it is alleged, are forged.

Flier Killed, Another Hurt in Plane Crash

Fort Leavenworth, Kans., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Lieut. Henry J. Stahl, of Kansas City, Air Corps Reserve, was killed and Private Murrell Travis, of Fort Leavenworth, was injured dangerously when their airplane crashed at the aviation field here today.

Travis was unable to give the cause of the accident. He suffered a fracture of the left arm and physicians believed he was injured internally. A board of inquiry was convened immediately to investigate.

THREE WOMEN HELD IN PAINTER'S KILLING

Georgia Warrant Declares They Aided Slaying of Capital Man.

TAXI DRIVER IS HUNTED

Darien, Ga., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—With two women in jail and a third under $500 bond as accessory after the fact, McIntosh County officers tonight were seeking a taxi driver by the name of Hamm as the "key" man in the mysterious disappearance and death of Frank Nagel, Washington, D. C., interior decorator.

Lillian Rewis, 22, and Annie Rowe were arrested at Savannah today by officers on warrants sworn out by Sheriff A. S. Poppell, of McIntosh County, who returned with the women to Darien and placed them in the county jail.

Mrs. Ruth Cross, the third woman held in the slaying of Nagel, was released on $500 bond yesterday. The Cross woman was arrested at Brunswick on August 14 on a warrant charging murder.

Sheriff Poppell said that Hamm, the taxicab driver, would, if located, furnish the "missing link" in the evidence, which he has in his possession. It was reported, the sheriff said, that Hamm had died since 1928, the year Nagel disappeared, but he intended to continue his search until it was definitely established he was either dead or could be arrested.

Mrs. Cross told authorities she did not take a taxi ride with Nagel on the day he disappeared. Officers charged that she was in the cab with the decorator the last time he was seen alive.

The death of Nagel came to light when his brother in Washington received a wire from Brunswick to the effect that Frank Nagel was dead and that his body was en route to Washington. The body never reached the National Capital and an investigation was started. It was found here more than a year later.

Frank Nagel, a native of St. Marys County, Md., was in Washington during the greater part of 1924, living

Lawyers Open Attack On New District Code

House Committee Charged With Having Attempted to Revise System in Letter from Barger to Representative Fitzgerald.

By DUNBAR HARE.

Led by Harry S. Barger, widely known attorney, Washington attorneys yesterday launched an attack on the new District of Columbia code, which recently was released from the press of the Government Printing Office.

Mr. Barger, in a letter addressed to Roy C. Fitzgerald, representative of the Third District of Ohio, and chairman of the House committee on revision of laws, declared that the committee had attempted to revise the code of the District when, in fact, the act under which the book was compiled only authorized "consolidation and codification of the laws."

Mr. Barger declared the code as compiled is absolutely worthless and he was joined in this viewpoint by a number of other attorneys, among whom are William B. O'Connell, of the firm of O'Connell & Whelan; James B. Archer, former chief assistant United States attorney and former president of the District Bar Association, now a member of the firm of Mullen & Archer, and Philip W. Austin.

"I don't want to be in the position of attempting to criticize," said Mr. Barger, "but the people who compiled the code hurled a challenge on the frontispiece when they said: 'Find an error in this code.' I've read it thoroughly and many attorneys whom I know personally also have read it. All I have questioned agree with me in my statement that the congressional act authorizing the new code was not followed. I'm not seeking publicity and I'm not trying to start any agitation. I do believe, however, that the lawyers need a real code and the newest example is not real in any respect.

"Not only do the lawyers need a real code but the people who are charged under that code also should be protected."

This viewpoint was backed up by Mr. Archer. "I can readily understand where the inclusion of a lot of worthless laws in the code will jeopardize defendants," he declared.

Mr. O'Connell, who has the reputation of having won many recent cases in the Court of Appeals on legal questions arising out of Police Court and directly predicated on the District Code, said: "The new book is not to be compared with the old. I haven't read all of it, but what I have read appears to show no concerted effort to follow out the dictates of Congress."

Mr. Austin said, "The new code is not as good as the old, and to my mind is worthless."

Government attorneys also joined in the criticism, but declared that

Newest British Princess Is "Twilight Sleep" Baby

Duchess of York's Infant Weighed 7 Pounds 2 Ounces; Father-in-Law of Duke Inspired Homely Phrase, "Both Doing Fine."

London, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—The Sunday Express today said that Great Britain's new royal princess, born Thursday night to the Duchess of York at Glamis Castle, is a "twilight sleep" baby.

She has dark hair and dark blue eyes, and at birth weighed seven pounds and two ounces. Her stature was an inch below the average, measuring eighteen and a quarter inches.

Her features are said to be characteristic of her mother's family, and she is described as more of a "Bowes-Lyon baby than a royal baby."

Her name is still under discussion, with the choice followed at present to be between Cecil a Victoria Margaret and Cecilia Victoria Anne. Scotsmen are clamoring for "Margaret."

The homely phrase in the official bulletin announcing the birth, which read "both are doing fine," was inspired by the Earl of Strathmore, father of the duchess.

At first it had been written in more formal terms. When the earl read it he said in a broad Scots accent to the physician,

"They're baith daein fine, are they?"

"Yes," replied the physician, Sir Henry Simson, "they are both doing fine."

"Then let's say it that way," the earl suggested. "The Glamis folk know what that means."

Georgetown Offers Dental Hygiene Course for Women

Subject Covers One Year of Instruction, Completion of Which Will Equip Graduates for Teaching or as Dentists' Aids.

Georgetown University has established a special department for women in this year in its school of dentistry in which instruction will be given in dental hygiene.

The new course was established as a result of a trial given last year, when several young women were admitted as special students in hygiene. It proved so successful that the school decided this year to establish such a course on a permanent basis, restricted to women, and with a complete faculty assigned to it.

Officials at Georgetown disclaim that it is a move to make the dental school coeducational, since women are not being admitted to any other classes in the school.

The course will cover one year of instruction, graduation from which will equip a young woman to enter a dental office as an assistant or teach or lecture on hygiene in schools, public institutions and women's clubs. Candidates for the course must be graduates of accredited high schools.

In addition to class instruction, the young women students will receive training in nursing at the Georgetown University Hospital and practical work in the dental clinic.

CHANGE IN COUNTY GOVERNMENT ASKED

Manager Form to Be Urged Upon Arlington Group by Committee.

HEALTH WARNING GIVEN

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Abolition of the present form of county government and the adoption in its stead of the county manager form, as provided in a recent act of the General Assembly, will be recommended to the Arlington County Civic Federation at its September meeting as a result of the action of that body's committee on legislation last night. The committee met at the home of William D. Medley, in Lyon Village, with its chairman, Robert N. Anderson, presiding.

The meeting marked the conclusion of several months of study on the part of the committee, during which time it considered the comparative merits of the several forms of government available to the county. These included, in addition to the present form of county government, incorporation as a city of the first class, a modified county commission form and the county manager form.

The present county government consists of a board of supervisors, three in number, one selected by each of the three magisterial districts of which the county is composed. The board is the legislative body of the county and also exercises the executive and administrative functions of the government through a directing engineer appointed by the board at a salary fixed by them and holding office at their pleasure.

Provides for Election.

The recent county government act provides for the holding of an election, upon petition of 200 voters, on the question of a change in form of county government. Three questions are to be submitted to the voters, as follows:

1. Shall there be a change in the form of government?
2. In the event of such change, shall it be the modified commission form or the county manager form?
3. In the event of such change, shall the members of the county board be elected by districts or at large?

Under the modified commission plan the act provides for the election of a board of five commissioners, to be elected at large or by districts as the voters shall have determined. All legislative, executive and administrative functions of the county are conferred upon the board of commissioners. They are required to create five administrative departments, each commissioner to be the executive head of one of such departments.

County Manager Plan.

Under the county manager plan there will be a board of five members, to be elected at large or by districts as determined by the voters. This board will possess legislative powers only. All the executive and administrative functions are to be exercised by a county manager who will be appointed by the board, at a salary fixed by them, for a term of one year, and who can not be removed from office during the year for which appointed except for cause. The county board will not have the power to appoint any of the officers or employes subordinate to the county manager. That official will make all such appointments.

Under either of the new plans of county government the present magisterial districts will be abolished. If the voters favor election of the five members of the county board by districts instead of at large, the act directs the court to divide the county into five districts of as nearly equal population as possible. These, however, will not be magisterial districts. They will be election districts.

Salary of Board Members.

Under both plans of county government the members of the board are to receive a salary of $600 each per annum. The federation committee will point out in its report that this provision alone renders the commission plan impracticable. It is impossible, they say, to obtain at that salary the services of competent commissioners who are required by the act to discharge the duties of administering one of the departments of the county government. Under the county manager plan, where the functions of the board are legislative only, the salary of $600 is regarded as adequate.

The committee will recommend that steps be taken to have the question of a change in government submitted at the regular November election. If the proposal carries the officers of the new county government will be elected in November, 1931, and take office the 1st of January, 1932.

The committee had the cooperation of similar committees from the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and the Arlington County Bar Association. It is regarded as a certainty that the latter organiations will receive the same recommendations from their committees, namely, the adoption of the county manager form of government, with the members of the county board to be elected at large.

Dr. F. M. Chichester, county health officer, again calls the attention to persons against bathing in the streams in the county and the Potomac River.

"There is great danger to health from bathing in the water of the Potomac River aboue the Key Bridge, due to the present low water resulting from the continued drought. Getting water into the mouth and ears already has caused illness among a number of children," he said.

According to reports from the office of County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, the resurfacing of all roads in the subdivisions of Virginia Highlands and Aurora Hills, within Jefferson district, has been completed. With the work of Jefferson district completed, the program as laid out will take the county road force next to Washington district and thence to Arlington district.

This work, it is stated, is being done at this time in order to have all roads within the county in good condition before the winter weather starts in.

Commenting on reports that many of those who have received their letters from the Cherrydale Baptist Church as a result of the recent disturbance, will return, the Rev. Elmer Lucas, formerly pastor of the church, said last night that it is just as certain that they will not return as it is that the sun will rise. He added that there are a number of other members who have asked him for their letters, to which he has replied that he is no longer connected with the church.

The Rev. Mr. Lucas stated last night that his plans for the future are still uncertain, but that he hopes soon to receive a call to another church.

After one of the most successful conventions and carnivals which has been conducted for the past two weeks on the field adjacent to the Woodrow Wilson School Building at Fort Myer Heights, the carnival comes to a close tonight.

Chairman John R. Mossburg announces that prizes, including an automobile and a suite of furniture, will be awarded as a closing feature tonight.

WARRENTON SHOW LURES HORSEMEN

Biggest Exhibit in Virginia Scheduled to Open on September 10.

RICH PRIZES OFFERED

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 22 (A.P.).—Horse fanciers of Virginia are grooming their charges for the thirty-first annual Warrenton show, the State's largest horse exhibit, which will be held on September 10 and 11. Entries close August 29.

Founded in 1899, the Warrenton Horse Show Association this year offers competition complete with 39 classes and rich in prizes. Cash and plate awards worth $7,000 are to be given, including the $1,000 Hunter Stake, coveted trophy eagerly sought after by owners throughout the State.

Another prize highly valued is the Brown Boy Trophy given annually by Mrs. D. N. Lee, of Middleburg. It is for horses 4 years and under, graded 50 per cent on conformation, quality and general promise and 50 per cent on performance. Jumping requirements are three and one-half feet for 3-year-olds and four feet for 4-year-olds.

Orange Winner Entered.

The winner in the Orange show hunter trials, Fortune Teller, owned by Dr. E. T. Price, of Richmond, has been entered in the Warrenton hunter trials, an event which attracts wide interest.

One of the most highly prized awards of the show is the Ullman perpetual challenge trophy, given to the grand champion hunter. It has a value of $300, and remains the property of the association. Each year the name of the winner is engraved on the trophy.

Plate valued at $200 and $50 in gold will be presented to the winning huntsman in the foxhound classes. Hounds will be judged as a pack for levelness, manner, workmanlike appearance and condition, 75 per cent; horses, for manner and appointments, 25 per cent.

Silver Vase to Be Awarded.

A silver vase of $250 value and ribbon will be awarded in the saddle horse championship, to which only blue ribbon winners of the Warrenton show are eligible. The trophy must be won three times by the same owner to become the winner's permanent property.

Judges of the show are to be as follows: American foxhounds, William duPont, jr., Wilmington, Del.; breeding classes, C. J. Fitzgerald, New York; hunters, Frank A. Bonsal, jr., Glyndon, Md.; Harry V. Colt, Geneseo, N. Y.; Dr. A. C. Randolph, Bluemont, Va.; saddle horses, Julian Morris, Keswick, Va.

COAL FOR SCHOOLS MAY BE REPLACED

Montgomery County Chief of Education Defends Action as to Fuel.

FAVORITISM IS CHARGED

If the coal put into three schools in Montgomery County, Md., before competitive bids were opened August 12 is found below the standard for Big Vein Georges Creek coal, it will have to be replaced with standard quality, it was declared yesterday by Dr. George E. Lewis, of Rockville, Md., county supervisor of school property.

This statement was made after the Progressive Democratic faction, which is opposing the organization now in power in the county, had protested when it was shown that Griffith & Perry, a coal company of Silver Spring, Md., had filled the bins in the Takoma Park, Woodside and Glenmont schools before the bids submitted by 25 other competing dealers had been opened and read by the county board of education.

Declaring that there had been "nothing wrong" with the transaction and that he had given the Silver Spring firm permission to put the coal into the three schools "merely as an accommodation because they had no other place to store it," Dr. Lewis said that "some time before school starts" he would ask the United States Bureau of Mines to analyze samples of the coal supplied by Griffith & Perry.

May Have to Remove It.

"If that analysis supports the analysis made for the Progressive Democratic faction and shows that the coal is below specification standards," he said, "Griffith & Perry will be required to remove it and replace it with coal that is up to standard."

Asked what would happen in case Griffith & Perry should be unable to supply standard coal, Dr. Lewis said he was unable to state yet whether the contract would go to the next lowest bidder, whose price was $5.27, or 2 cents above that quoted by Griffith & Perry, or whether new bids would be asked.

"But if any of these other dealers finally supplies the coal for these schools," he added, "we certainly will have their coal analyzed, too. It would be unfair for us to analyze the coal supplied by Griffith & Perry and not take the same precaution with that supplied by any other dealer."

250 Tons Involved.

Between 250 and 300 tons are understood to be involved in the bids for the three schools, or a total price between $1,130 and $1,575 on the basis of the low bid of $5.25 per ton submitted by Griffith & Perry. Other dealers state that a fair market price for good Big Vein Georges Creek coal now would be between $7 and $8 per ton.

In criticizing the transaction leaders of the progressive forces brought out that Thomas W. Perry, a partner in Griffith & Perry, is a brother of Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, present chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, and a brother-in-law of Mrs. Walter E. Perry, a member of the school board, both of these officials being allied with the Democratic organization forces now in power in Montgomery County.

Howard Griffith, the other partner, is a brother-in-law of Dr. Perry. It was brought out, and a brother of County Assessor A. H. Griffith, likewise an incumbent under the organization regime.

Dr. Lewis answered these facts with the declaration that "those things have no influence over our purchases of supplies for the county schools."

PRINCE H. CROWNED CHAMPION HUNTER

Bay Gelding Wins Honors in Clarke County Horse Show Feature.

Special to The Washington Post.

Berryville, Va., Aug. 22.—Prince H., a beautiful bay gelding, owned by E. W. Wolfe, of Upperville, was declared the champion hunter today of the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Clarke County Horse and Colt Show Association. This was an honor to be proud of, as never before in any of the previous shows have there been as many beautiful horses shown as the 300 entries which represented 54 leading stables from many sections of northern Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia.

There is always keen competition in Clarke County for the honor of carrying off the prizes. In the class for Clarke County hunters this year that premium went to Sir Clifton, owned and raised by Dr. L. M. Allen, of Clifton Farms.

Nothing could have been more beautiful than the Corinthian class in which the riders in full hunting costume took so easily the 4½-foot jumps. Judges for the jumping classes were Wilbur Osborne, of Gordonsville, and Congreve Jackson, of New York; for the heavy draft, Harry K. Russell and Scott Grant, of Winchester; for the races, William Metzger, of Leesburg.

Mrs. Potts Applauded.

When Mrs. Allen Potts, who is one of the most beautiful riders in Virginia, won the blue ribbon in the class for saddle horses with Love Token, her handsome brown gelding, the grandstand shook with applause.

There were fully 5,000 persons in attendance today.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA noticed me rambling around the house, looking into all the nooks and crannies.

"What're you doing?" she asked, "inspecting the premises?"

"Something like that. I'm just admiring the way you've arranged the furniture—after our vacation."

It rather pleased her, to see interest displayed in her housekeeping. Truth of it, I was searching for something that might be turned into ready cash; to get some money with which to redeem the family silverware, down at "Old Uncle Ben's."

By and bye, I came across a lovely old oil painting—a real rarity, by a celebrated artist—tucked away in the attic. 'Twas quite a job getting the landscape out of the house without being detected; but eventually the grade was made, and I went on downtown, sold the piece to an art dealer and reimbursed Uncle Ben.

* * * *

WHEN I came home with the plate silver Luella went into ecstacies. "Oh, my!" she exclaimed, "I'm so glad you got it back. Now we can give a dinner party. Who do you think we should invite"

Enthusiastically, she went down the list of names, calling off all our friends.

"Anybody you say is all right with me," I agreed, "they're all good pals, good friends."

"But you must have somebody you like more than anybody else?"

"I do, but——"

"Who is it?"

"You embarrass me, Luella."

"No, go on and tell me."

For a moment I was frustrated, not wanting to play any favorites among our many friends; but Luella was adamant.

"Who is it you like more than anybody else?"

"If you must know," I breathed, quite romantically, "it's you, my love——"

* * * *

TAKEN unawares, for a moment she was quite nonplussed.

Finally, she rushed into my arms, buried her head in my shoulder: "In that case," she gurgled, "I'll invite the ——," and she rattled off a list of names long as your arm.

"That'll be fine," said I, relieved of the task.

"And to make the party complete," said Luella, "I'll hang the oil painting, the Old Master, that was willed to me from Uncle Bedford's estate——"

"That what?" I gasped.

"The celebrated landscape, 'Moonlight on the Glen.' It's up in the attic. You can bring it down, if you please."

Here was another blow to happiness.

TEXTILE WORKERS DRIVEN FROM TOWN

Union Group in Danville Escorts Truckload of Men to State Line.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Aug. 22.—A truck containing a score of men, said by the local branch of the United Textile Workers of America, to be strikers from the textile mills at Gastonia, N. C., here seeking work in the local mills, was escorted out of town this morning by a committee of the local union. The group of 23 were taken in hand by the local union members and escorted 5 miles to the State line and told to stay out of Danville and to let the incident be a warning to others. The entire proceeding was carried out in an orderly manner.

Reports of the occurrence were confirmed at local union headquarters this afternoon, where it was stated that such a committee had been formed to see, as far as possible, that no workers were imported or that none came to work here since the union claims that scores of local mill workers are idle and need employment.

Another significent development in the textile situation here today was confirmation by the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mill Co. of reports that drastic curtailments are to be made in the welfare system of the mills. It was admitted that effective September 1, the Schoolfield Y. M. C. A., including the motion picture show, the welfare department, Hylton Hall Dormitory for Young Women and the kindergarten, will all be closed indefinitely and the group insurance on operatives of the mills cancelled.

It was also stated that Joseph Vezetti, leader of the company concert band, was no longer in the employ of the company. This action, it was stated is in line with an economy program recently approved by directors.

Reports that the local mills, which normally employ about 4,500 persons, are on the verge of a complete shutdown were denied, it being stated that future conditions must determine this and that no such action had yet been taken. Two of the five departments are already idle, having suspended several weeks ago. The mills have been operating at 50 per cent capacity since August 1, it was officially stated. Mill directors only recently slashed salaries of officials, ranging as high as 33 1-3 per cent, no further cut being made in operatives' wages.

Harrisonburg College To Grant 73 Diplomas

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 21.—The summer graduating class of the Harrisonburg State Teachers College is the largest in the history of the institution. The graduating class totals 73, distributed as follows: Forty-eight in professional courses, eleven in high school teaching and administration, eleven in elementary teaching and supervision, and three in home economics. The majority of these students come from the various counties of the State and from four other States and the District of Columbia.

President Samuel P. Duke announced today that he has secured Representative J. A. Garber, of Virginia, as the commencement speaker. Final commencement exercises will be held in Walter Reed Hall at 8 o'clock Thursday night. Dr. Charles R. Erdman, of the Princeton Theological Seminary, will be speaker at the vesper service at 6:45 o'clock Sunday.

JUDGE GIVES RULING ON DUPLICATE NOTE

Jurist in Montgomery Circuit Court Makes Award in Victor Lehto Case.

SERIES OF THEFTS LISTED

Holding that where notes are executed in duplicate purporting to be secured by a single mortgage or trust deed, the one first negotiated to an innocent purchaser carries the mortgage security, Judge Robert B. Peter, sr., in Montgomery County Circuit yesterday handed down an opinion awarding the property involved in the Victor Lehto case to W. W. McClaine, whom he held to be the first innocent purchaser.

The case has attracted considerable attention among lawyers and real estate men inasmuch as there were six persons involved in a controversy, all of whom attempted to prove that they were holders of the note secured by the trust on the property of Lehto, who fled jurisdiction and has never been arrested.

According to testimony, Lehto had secured a deed of trust on a property in Takoma Park and had used this as security on a note for $6,000. He also is said to have issued five other notes using the same deed of trust as security. The notes were allegedly issued in the following order: W. W. McClaine, November 30, 1927; International Finance Corporation, February 14, 1928; Ernest L. Schmidt, February 21, 1928; Irvin Owings, February 24, 1928; Takoma Park Bank, April 13, 1928, all of them being executed before a Washington notary public, it was claimed.

When Lehto disappeared holders of the notes attempted to collect on the property and it was found that there were duplicate notes. Suits were filed by each in an effort to force the trustees to pay the amount of the note to the holders.

Judge Peter cited Missouri cases which grew out of an almost identical manipulation by a man named Joseph S. Chick and a number of other decisions which adhered to the rule that the first innocent purchaser should carry the security.

Montgomery County police are investigating a series of robberies which took place yesterday morning in stores along the Rockville pike in Rockville and Bethesda as well as a report of much petty thievery on Conduit road from automobiles parked on the road. Three stores were robbed in Bethesda and one in Rockville, all in a somewhat similar manner which led police to believe that they had been perpetrated by the same persons.

Cutting a small hole through the glass in the door of the Bethesda lunchroom, robbers unlocked the door and entered. A small amount of pennies was taken from the cash drawer. The robbery was reported by Joseph Frick, proprietor. The window of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. store in Bethesda on Edgemoor lane and old Georgetown road was broken with a rock and 60 dozen eggs and 35 cartons of cigarettes taken.

At the Fashion Shop, of which Harry Wolfson is proprietor, a hole was made in the show window and 6 pair of women's shoes taken.

Two panes in the rear door were broken to reach the lock on the back door and effect an entrance into the Piggly Wiggly store at Rockville. About $10 in cash was stolen.

Dorsey J. Griffith, 2228 Decatur place northwest, reported to police of the Bethesda substation that a series of small thefts of automobile accessories, such as tires, motometers and gasoline, had been stolen from a number of automobiles parked on Conduit road near Sycamore Island by campers along the river.

Bradley Johnson, of Brookville, Md., was arrested yesterday and turned over to Baltimore central office detectives on a charge of nonsupport and desertion preferred by his wife, Mrs. Fannie E. Johnson, of Baltimore.

MAN IS FOUND LYING SENSELESS IN ROAD

Upon Recovery, Tells Pair of Alexandrians He Was Hurled From Car.

SUIT CASE, $6 STOLEN

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 533.

Stephen Winter, 22 years old, of Perry, Okla., was found lying unconscious beside the road a short distance north of Washington avenue early yesterday morning by Richard Ross, of 515 Duke street, and Clinton Parker, of 1516 King street, who were returning from Washington. The man was taken to the hospital by Ross and Parker and was treated for cuts and bruises, including a deep cut on his head. He was able to leave the hospital yesterday.

Winter told the police he was given a lift by three men in a green touring car bearing New Jersey license tags, and when they reached a point near where he was found he was struck over the head by one of the men, after which he remembered nothing until he recovered consciousness at the hospital. He claimed that $6 and a suitcase which he had with him were missing.

The police notified Fredericksburg and Richmond authorities, as the car was bound south, but no news of Winter's assailants has been obtained.

The Alexandria Lodge of Elks, on their excursion to Marshall Hall next Tuesday, will have as their guests the children of the Alexandria Day Nursery and in addition every school child of Alexandria under 12 years of age, when accompanied by parents or otherwise chaperoned, will also be given the trip free.

The Elks have planned many entertainment features for this excursion, which promises to be the largest ever given by the lodge. The Elks Boys Band, of Washington, will give a concert here Monday evening at 8 o'clock and will go on the excursion the following day, furnishing orchestra music for dancing on the return trip. The proceeds of the excursion will go to the charity fund of the lodge.

The Friendship Veterans Fire Association will take part in the firemen's parade to be given in Washington Labor Day, a called meeting of the company having been held last night to formulate plans for their participation.

The members of the company will draw their old hand fire engine in the parade, this being a replica of the engine presented to the company by George Washington when he was a member of the company. The engine was purchased in Philadelphia and at that time was the last word in fire-fighting apparatus. It has taken many prizes in parades and attracts much attention whenever it is exhibited. The firemen will be dressed in the traditional red shirts, black trousers and leather helmets. Some of the leather fire buckets carried on the engine are said to have been used in Washington's time.

Members of the American Legion Junior Baseball Team of Gastonia, N. C., which recently defeated the Alexandria American Legion Juniors for the championship of the Southeastern States, headed by W. G. Gaston, secretary of the Gastonia Chamber of Commerce, were guests of the City of Alexandria yesterday. The party numbers 20, of whom 15 are members of the team, most of them being cotton mill employes.

An entertainment committee of Alexandrians, headed by City Manager Wallace Lawrence, after a luncheon tendered the visitors, took the boys to Mount Vernon, after which they attended the American League game in Washington.

Reports which were circulated to the effect that the 200 pounds of rain-making powder recently received by Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, from Santa Fe, N. Mex., would be sprayed on the clouds yesterday in the hope of producing rain, proved to be unfounded. Mr. Hollenga explained that the necessary spraying apparatus has not been received and until this is available the experiment will have to wait. The spraying of the powder on the clouds is to be done by an airplane from the Washington Airport.

James C. Bourne, 31 years old, was fined $5 and costs in police court by Justice W. S. Snow yesterday on a warrant sworn out by his neighbor, Policeman Fred N. Baker, charging Bourne with cruelty to animals, the alleged offense consisting of breaking the leg of Baker's dog with a brick. The case had been continued from the previous day, the judge having reserved decision until he could make an inspection of the scene and check up on the statements of witnesses.

Bourne claimed to have acted in self-defense, stating that the dog had frightened his stepdaughter and come at him on his front porch as if to attack him.

Old School Baptist Body Holds Session at Luray

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Aug. 22.—The Ebenezer Old School Baptist Association, composed of churches in Page, Rappahannock, Warren, Prince William and Fauquier counties, Va., and also representing churches in Baltimore and Washington, convened in its ninety-fourth session today with Naked Creek Church, in this county. The association is composed of about 25 churches, representing a membership of three or four thousand.

Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Maryland are represented in the association. Washington city churches of the denomination are also represented. The association will last for three days with three sessions each day. The denomination does not believe in Sunday schools and missions and refuses to sanction the use of musical instruments in church worship.

Seventh Day Baptists Oppose New Calendar

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 22.—The National Seventh Day Baptist Conference at Salem was on record today as opposed to adoption of the proposed international fixed calendar, which would give thirteen months of 28 days each to the year. A resolution passed by the delegates said the new scheme would be detrimental to the church.

Delegates this afternoon were taken on automobile tours to nearby places of interest, following discussions of organization and functions of the Sabbath School.
